HOOVER FACES TARIFF DEFEAT

PRESIDENT LIKELY TO BE DEPRIVED OF RATE FIXING POWER

Senate Democrats and Republican Independents Agree on Plan to Strip Executive of All Control of Individual Rates Under Flexible Provisions—Would Continue Tariff Commission as Inquisitorial Body, Authorized to Recommend Changes, But With Final Power to Act Lodged With Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—President Hoover tonight faced the loss of his tariff-making powers in spite of his urgent appeal to congress to retain the flexible provisions in the new tariff bill.

Senate democrats and insurgents, who launched the fight to strip Mr. Hoover of all control of individual rates under the flexible provisions, were in accord on a new plan as a substitute for the existing law which republicans at first hoped to re-enact. The republican leadership meanwhile moved toward an agreement with the coalition with the possibility that a truce may be reached Monday depriving the president of his rate-fixing powers.

The coalition's plan would continue the tariff commission as an inquisitorial body, authorized to make recommendations to both the president and congress for changes in existing rates wherever revision was necessary to meet changing costs of production. The president would have power to forward a recommendation to congress along with the commission's report. The final power to act on the change would be lodged with congress.

Separate Rule Necessary.

In order to prevent a general tariff revision each time the commission submitted a report, the

Holds High Hopes Of Successful Outcome of Peace Undertaking.

WITH PREMIER MACDONALD'S PARTY, ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, bound for Washington on the greatest personal effort at international peace ever undertaken by a single statesman, spent his first day aboard ship resting and in preliminary social contacts.

The socialist-labor premier was in genial mood and in high hopes of a successful outcome to his undertaking. The party was somewhat fatigued after the excitement of departure and a rather broken night aboard ship at the Southhampton docks, but he planned to do much important work after getting settled down to ship routine.

When Lord Arnold, traveling with the premier's party unofficially as a British counterpart of Colonel House, told MacDonald this morning that he must get much rest during the voyage, the premier replied:

"That's all very well, but I have much work to get through."

Only First Step.

Five of the pieces are battered from wear and plastered with hotel and railway and steamer stickers.

The sixth shone among the others in pristine newness. It was a brand new leather hat box, and inside of it was a highly polished silk hat, destined for use at the official functions the premier will attend in Washington.

Train Kills Five In Auto

WESTFIELD, N. J., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Five persons were killed tonight when the automobile in which they were riding was demolished by the fast Buffalo Express of the Lehigh Valley railroad. The accident occurred at a grade crossing.

Andrew Zullo of Westfield, 17, driver of the car, was killed with two young men and two girls, none of whom was identified.

The express whisked the car along for more than half a mile and carried with it the body of one of the girls.

Engineer Frank Salk of Lehighton, Pa., told police he did not see the car at the unprotected crossing until it dashed onto the tracks.

MISS SHANAFELT SUES FOR $10,000

Asks Heavy Damages For Injuries In Auto Accident.

Damages of $10,000 are asked by Marjorie Shanafelt as the result of injuries she claims she suffered when a car in which she was riding turned over. The suit, drawn against Genevieve Buncher, driver of the car, was filed in District court Saturday.

The accident which forms the basis of the suit happened, her petition alleges, while she was riding from Lincoln to Crete with Genevieve Buncher, August 14, 1928. Miss Shanafelt charges that at the bottom of a steep descent the car upset, rolling over several times.

As a result of the accident, she claims her injuries caused her to be incapacitated for eight weeks.

DOLLY GANN IS CENTER OF NEW SOCIAL 'BATTLE'

NEITHER IS INVITED TO HOWARD DINNER

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 28—(UP)—Dolly Curtis Gann today fired the first shot in the threatened renewal of her "social war" in Washington.

She began packing her baggage and announced she would return to the capital to participate in state fetes marking the visit of Premier Ramsey MacDonald.

Previously she had said she would be absent from Washington during the premier's visit, temporarily halting gossip of new difficulties surrounding her seating at diplomatic affairs as hostess for her brother, Vice President Charles Curtis.

It was learned here today that Mrs. Gann is cancelling social engagements in Topeka and plans to leave for Washington next week. Originally it was understood she would remain in Kansas until after October 6, when she was to attend a party in Kansas City. But the Kansas City engagement also is understood to have been cancelled so Mrs. Gann may be in Washington a week earlier than expected.

Mrs. Gann said today she "probably would return to Washington next week," but declined to discuss the portents of her return to the capital.

Some of the Topeka matrons are reported to be miffed over the way in which their functions, planned in honor of Mrs. Gann, have been upset by that lady's change in plans.

DRIVER LICENSE LAW STRINGENT

County Attorney Towle Says To Be Rigidly Enforced.

Thousands Have Thus Far Failed to Obtain Permits.

Approximately as many drivers' licenses had been issued at the close of work Saturday as there are licensed vehicles in Lancaster county, William Albers, county treasurer, estimated Saturday, with Monday the last day to secure licenses before the law becomes operative.

Attention to the drastic provisions of the statute is called in a statement issued Saturday by Max G. Towle, county attorney. "The provisions of this act will be stringently enforced, he declared, "due to the ever increasing casualties as the result of the operation of automobiles."

Driving without a license from October 1 on is punishable by a fine of not to exceed $100 or three months in the county jail or both. Treasurer Albers estimates that there are more than 7,000 drivers still without licenses in the county as a minimum figure. That the number of drivers still unlicensed may run near to 20,000 is his belief.

Provisions for revocation of drivers' licenses on conviction of offenses while driving motor vehicles were cited in the statement issued by County Attorney Towle. His statement follows:

County Attorney's Statement.

"October 1 is the date fixed by chapter 148 of the 1929 session laws when all persons driving automobiles who live within the state shall have their operators license. An important part of this law is the penalty provided and the manner of revoking ones license. The law provides that upon conviction in any court within this state of any violation of any of the provisions of any law of this state pertaining to the operation of motor vehicles, or any statute or village ordinance relating to the operation of a motor vehicle in a manner to endanger life, limb or property, the judge may suspend the license of such person for a period of from ten days to six months that if the conviction shall be for manslaughter resulting from the operation of a motor vehicle, or for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor or drugs, the license shall be revoked for one year where the conviction is had while a person is operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor or a drug, whether a death occurred or not.

"In addition to this provision, the department of public works may sus-

ORDERS STATE TO PAY WIDOW

Agent Guaranty Fund Commission Dies From Accident.

Bump On Chin Causes Unusual and Fatal Malady.

The state of Nebraska must pay Mrs. Bessie M. Woods of Lincoln $5,250 as full legal compensation for the death of her husband, Charles D. Woods, as the result of a peculiar road accident in Cherry county while he was working there a year ago as a real estate salesman for the guaranty fund commission. That amount is awarded her by the state labor department, to be paid in $15 weekly installments, in findings announced Saturday.

Woods was showing some land to a prospective purchaser when one wheel of his car dropped into a "chuck hole" on the road, causing him to strike his jaw on the steering wheel. Little was thought of this at the time, although he felt some pain; but an infection of the jawbone developed inside of three weeks. He was treated by several doctors in turn and also visited a clinic, but failed to get relief. His malady was pronounced "osteomyelitis," and he died from it last May.

As the injury was sustained in the regular course of Woods' employment, the state is held liable for 350 weeks' compensation to his

FRANK M'DOUGAL KILLED BY FALL

Toppling backwards off a guard rail to cement steps twelve feet below, Frank McDougal, 64-year-old Lincoln laborer, was instantly killed at 8:20 o'clock Saturday night.

McDougal was sitting on the railing on the west of the Grand Grocery building, at the northeast corner of Tenth and P streets, smoking his pipe. He was seen by a small boy across the street to throw his hands into the air and fall over backwards. He struck headfirst on the steps which lead into the basement of the grocery.

After the boy who saw the accident gave the alarm a crowd gathered quickly. Driver Carpenter of the police department, Deputy County Sheriff Hughart and Dr. George E. Lewis, city physician, were called.

A fractured neck caused McDougal's death according to Dr. Lewis.

He is survived by his wife, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Peter Moock, 3425 W street; three sons, Harvey of Waverly, Williams of Lincoln and Clifford of Denver, Colo.; and two daughters, Mrs. Moock and Mrs. Charles C. Johnson, 3445 W street.

Mr. McDougal was born at Decatur, Ill. He had lived in Lincoln for about forty years. The body is at Spiain and Schnell's awaiting funeral arrangements.

SENATE QUIZ OF SHEARER CHARGE IS NEAR CLIMAX

OTHER OFFICERS TO BE CALLED LATER

Lobbyist to Be Asked If He Tried to Break Up Geneva Parley.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—The appearance of two witnesses Monday will bring to a dramatic climax the ten-day-old senate investigation into the activities of William B. Shearer, employed for $25,000 to "observe and report progress" at the 1927 Geneva arms conference by three American shipbuilders.

They are Rear Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, naval general board member, and Shearer himself.

Reeves will appear first. The committee decided late today, at the request of the naval officer, to hear him before Shearer testifies. He will make a statement in connection with charges that he "hoped the conference would fail," and was prominent in a group of the American delegation to the conference who nightly listened to anti-British talk from Shearer.

Shearer will be asked whether he merely carried out instructions of his employers, Bethlehem, New York and Newport News company officials, said were given him, to "observe and report," or tried to break up the parley.

Reeves Is Named.

Drew Pearson, newspaper reporter, brought Reeves' name into the crowded picture of the Shearer inquiry. He told the committee that at the hotel where he was staying in Geneva during the conference Shearer and five of the American delegation gathered at night to discuss the parley. They all seemed to hope for failure, Pearson said, and seemed in general agreement with

VETERAN RELIEF FUNDS ADEQUATE

Report on Investigation of Money Raising Campaigns.

Decision that there is no present need for further emergency "soldier relief" was made Saturday by a committee composed of representatives of five veterans' organizations. The committee, appointed by Frank Eager, president of the chamber of commerce, had been investigating money raising efforts for soldiers at the request of the chamber.

Availability of funds for soldier relief was believed adequate to provide for major needs. The investigation showed that funds now in operation include: Service pension for all Civil war veterans; disability pension for all Spanish war veterans; compensation for all World war veterans where disability is shown to have originated in the service; and hospitalization for all veterans of all wars to the extent of the capacity of the hospitals.

There is a waiting list at every hospital in the country but emergency houses are provided for by other means, the committee found. The government is also providing additional facilities through the construction of hospitals such as the one to be located in Lincoln.

Represent All Groups.

Members of the investigating committee and the organizations they represented were: C. C. Bell, Civil war veterans; Charles B. Towle, Spanish war veterans; Milton Barratt, American Legion and auxiliaries; Dr. J. E. M. Thomson, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Howard Wilson, member of the board of directors of the community chest and a World war veteran.

The committee was called in response to a general demand by the public for inforamtion as to the merit and worthiness of various campaigns for the sale of tickets and the solicitation of funds for the purpose of raising money for "soldier relief," chamber officials stated.

Nebraska conditions were found favorable by the committee. Veterans have two homes to which they may be admitted, one at Milford, the other near Grand Island. Neither is occupied to full capacity. The following statement was given out following aSturday's meeting:

State Provides Aid.

For emergency and disability relief the state has provided the income from an endowment of $2,000,000. This amounts to approximately $85,000 per year. Lancaster

IMPROVEMENT IS SHOWN BY BOY STRUCK BY AUTO

The favorable trend in the condition of Harold Walrath, 7 year old Lakeview boy, injured when struck by an automobile Friday afternoon four miles west of Lincoln, continued Saturday evening. While not out of danger entirely, the boy's recovery is expected, attendants at the Lincoln General hospital said.

The boy sustained a fracture at the base of his skull when he was knocked to the pavement by a car driven by Barton McKee of Palmyra. Harold, it is claimed, ran from behind a parked car directly in front of the McKee auto. He was unconscious when taken to the hospital but had regained consciousness Saturday morning. His condition has shown marked improvement since.

REGINALD BOYER DIES OF BURNS

Burns From Hot Oil Fatal To Former Lincoln Man.

Word has been received from Seattle of the death of Reginald R. Boyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Boyer, 1935 Pepper avenue, as a result of severe burns suffered by him a week ago.

Meager information that their son had been burned by hot oil was received by the parents Friday evening. Saturday they were informed of his death.

Although he had not made his permanent home in Lincoln for more than fifteen years, he was well known here. Two years ago he returned to Lincoln and for a year was employed with the Neon Sign Co. He left Lincoln a year ago to take the position of steward on the "Chepopa."

He was born in Lincoln in 1879 and attended the Lincoln schools.

He is a member of the Lincoln post of the American Legion. He served in the World war as a first sergeant of the Sixty second infantry of the regular army, having volunteered for service at the outbreak of the war.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Ray and Oliver D. Boyer.

The body probably will be returned to Lincoln for burial, although definite funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

From its Key West tip to Stuart high above West Palm Beach on the east coast, Florida waited in darkness Saturday night for the dawn to check up on the devastation and possible death exacted by the elements.

THE WEATHER

Bobbing barometers — dropping here, and there and everywhere—at a late hour had failed to show weather observers just where the center of the freak hurricane, which has been threatening the peninsula for days, will strike.

Late Saturday night it was believed to be centered north of the Florida keys, after whipping across the Bahamas and leaving a known death toll of twenty in its wake.

Fort Myers was cut off from all communication with the outside world. Damage to the Sunshine state already is immense.

A property loss estimated at $150,000 was sustained late Saturday when a sea cyclone—possibly an off-shoot of the hurricane—whipped Fort Lauderdale, after brushing Stuart with relatively small damage.

Three of the prisoners who escaped took part in another sensational dash for liberty recently.

Hurricane Has Stopped Florida Rum Running, Temporarily at Least

MIAMI, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Among those hardest hit by the hurricane in the Bahamas are the bootleggers who supply the Florida coast from Daytona southward and other sections of the country with their rum supply.

All rum running activity naturally has been delayed pending the storm's abatement.

Bimini, Gun Cay and Cat Cay, where the hurricane reached its maximum intensity, are famous as spots where the bootleggers cache their liquor and from where they set out for the Florida coast in their contraband carrying speedboats.

LANDS TO BEAR MOST TAXATION

Proportion Not Quite So Great As For Last Year.

Farm and ranch lands, with the improvements placed upon them, still make up considerably more than half the grand assessment roll of Nebraska. They are valued for taxation this year at the aggregate sum of $1,782,761,375, in a total of $3,167,489300 for all kinds of tangible property. This means that rural real estate will bear 56½ per cent of the state tax burdens for 1929.

The ratio has been reduced slightly however, as compared with last year, when farm and ranch holdings represented 56.9 per cent of the grand total. At that time they were assessed for $1,780,032,646, while the collective worth of all tangibles was $3,125,856,462. Land valuations this year are $2,729,000 higher, as compared with an increase of $42,000,000 on all taxable wealth, aside from intangibles.

State Tax Commissioner Scott gave out Saturday a detailed statement of the 1929 assessment, showing the amount listed for each of 80 different classes of personal property. The total of these is $757,719,965. The largest single item in this division is $260,002,022 for railroad companies. Live stock amounts to approximately $160,000,000; autos and trucks, $76,000,000; merchandise stocks, $69,000,000; farm machinery, $30,000,000; and grain on farms, $28,000,000.

LEUPOLD JURY FAILS TO AGREE

Liquor Case Declared Mistrial, Set For October Hearing.

After having been out twenty-four hours, the jury in District court which heard the charge against Posey Leupold of third offense, possession of intoxicating liquor, was discharged by Judge Broady shortly before 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He declared the case a mistrial and set it for hearing before the October jury.

Discharge of the jury came only after it had twice reported to the judge that it was impossible to reach a verdict. It was said after the dismissal that the jury stood seven for acquittal, five for conviction.

Bury "Old Man Bad Roads"

When the new six mile stretch of state paving was opened east of Scottsbluff last Monday the right leg of "Old Man Bad Roads" was buried with solemn ceremony. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. McCaffree of the Scottsbluff Methodist church, who was a youngster in western Nebraska when Old Man Bad Roads was in his infancy. State and local officials were the pallbearers. The tombstone, the pallbearers and the minister are seen in the above picture. From left to right they are: S. G. Woodman, county commissioner; T. C. Middlswart, state district engineer; J. C. McCreary, president of the Scottsbluff chamber of commerce; A. H. Read, contractor; Roy Cochran, state engineer; Charles Morrill, county commissioner, and Rev. McCaffree.

HORNE CHOSEN BY SOCIAL WORKERS

Election to National Group Indicates Local Welfare Work Up to Standard.

Another indication of the increasing high standards of social welfare work in Lincoln is contained in the election of Louis W. Horne, secretary of the Lincoln community chest, to membership in the American Association of Social Workers, according to President J. H. Agee of the chest. Mr. Horne has been engaged in the Lincoln social work program since the inception of the chest here eight years ago.

The association is highly professional in its constituency, Mr. Agee said, and is a national organization in which certain rigid qualifications must be met for membership. It takes from six to eight months of investigation before the prospective member whose name is submitted to the national office at New York City is either admitted or rejected.

Qualifications for membership comprise four years of practical experience in social organizations of recognized standing and an educational equipment and background, which, combined with the experience, would seem to give promise of sound professional achievement. These qualifications are passed on by a national membership committee chosen by the council of the association.

It has been largely through the efforts of this association that social welfare work in this country has been so greatly promoted during the past few years and welfare work has become a profession requiring as much training as the law or the medical professions, says Mr. Agee. Social welfare workers as represented in the association constitute the leading force in the United States today in intelligently attacking human welfare problems of national as well as local scope and in helping to remove the causes of dependency, poverty and unemployment.

Investment experts and prominent financial writers are expressing the opinion that many stocks are now selling at prices far beyond their present earning power or any earning power that may be expected in the future. At present values some of the prominent stocks are selling on a basis of less than 2% a year. Many other stocks are selling on a basis of a much less return.
There is a limit to everything and unquestionably some day these stocks will sell for what they are INTRINSICALLY worth and no more.

STOCK MARKET IS UNSETTLED

Retail Trade Reported To Be Fully Equal To Year Ago.

By W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Instead of a seasonal fall boom in trade activity as was expected, we are having a mild setback from the phenomenal activity of the summer months. Fall trade and the industries depending thereon are inclined to show sustained business activity. It is in such key industries as steel, automobiles and building where the trend seems to be downward.

Unsettlement prevailed in the stock market which had more than the average number of unfavorable developments to contend with. The advance in the Bank of England discount rate to 6½ per cent, although well expected, was indicative of a tightening in world credit conditions. The surprisingly large increase in brokers' loans of $192,000,000 to a record peak of $6,761,000,000, a gain of $2,236,000,000 in such borrowings over a year ago, brought heavy selling to the market and resulted in one of the sharpest reactions of the year. The average figures of leading issues taken this morning show a decline of some 15 points from the peak of the year established on September 7.

In wholesale and jobbing lines the general report is of a fair to good fall trade, and despite a return of warm weather in northern areas. Retail trade is fully equal to a year ago.

Car loadings still exceed last year's and for the year to date are more than 4.5 per cent ahead of 1928.

Steel Mills Suffer.

Steel mill operations have suffered a further decline. Using the weekly figures of per cent of operations of the United States Steel corporation, and making adjustments for seasonal factors, the decline from the record week of June 15 now amounts to about 15 per cent.

According to The Iron Age "steel ingot production is now slightly under the 85 per cent average of twelve months ago and signs point to some further recession, in contrast with the rising trend of 1928."

Prices of steel products have declined. The Iron Age composite having fallen from 2.398 cents to 2.384 cents. More significant still is the decline which has occurred this week in steel scrap prices.

Although automobile production has held up well with respect to seasonal movements, statistics on new passenger car registrations in August are not nearly as favorable as the production figures. Data shows that compared with the preavailable for about twenty states vious month, sales of all makes declined about 20 per cent, which is more than twice the usual seasonal decrease.

Building activity has declined materially in recent months, which has had its effect on industries dependent to a large extent upon a continuance of the operations in this field.

Liquidation and lower prices for all grains was on in American and Canadian markets for the greater part of this week, with prices of wheat the lowest in two months. Steady accumulation of wheat supplies in this country, with limited export demand; partial breaking of Argentine's drought and scattered rains in Australia seem sources responsible for the selling and decline.

Total freight cars ordered up the end of August, aggregated 61,920 units, a gain of approximately 122 per cent over the corresponding months of last year. Accompanying the improved demand for freight cars there has been a correspondingly sharp expansion in orders placed by the carriers for locomotives.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Grains reacted in the local market today following the bullish upturn of the previous day. Wheat was off 7-8 to 2c with scattered selling to take profits. Corn finished 5-8 to 1 3-4c off and oats 1-4 to 3-4c lower.

For the week price for wheat were off 7-8 to 2c, corn down 5-8 to 1 5-8c and oats 1-4 to 3-4c lower.

Wheat was generally inclined to lower levels during the week's trade. Bearish crop news from abroad, generally lower cables and slack cash demand were chief factors. Temporary oversold conditions developed at times, but only slight rallies resulted as the upturns met with free selling grain.

Reports from Argentina and Australia indicated recent rains had checked deterioration, but the outlook in both countries is considered doubtful. Outside interest in the wheat pit was small. Export demand continues of light proportions and clearances from North America continue small.

The situation in Canada remains unchanged. Total clearances from that country continue extremely light compared to normal.

Weakness in foreign markets was attributed to ample stocks for immediate requirements and the improvements in the weather in the southern hemisphere.

The run of news in the corn pit was generally bullish but the market failed to make any headway, weakness in wheat and an increase in country offerings depressing the trade. Shipping demand was fair and cash trade strong. Weather conditions over the corn belt were generally favorable.

Hog Market Depressed.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—A heavy run of hogs depressed the market during the week. Arrivals for the week were estimated at 124,000 against 108,000 last week and 115,000 a year ago. Prices are closing the week mostly 15 to 25c lower. The best hogs closed at $10.95, with the bulk of the good 175-225 lb. averages at $10.50 to $10.90. Choice heavy grades cashed at $10.50 with the bulk at $10 to $10.45. Packing sows were listed at $8.25 to $9.10.

The cattle market was uneven during the week. The market was active and higher early owing to light receipts, but gains were lost later on common and medium steers that comprised the bulk of the week's offerings. Good to choice steers advanced 50 to 75c early in the weeks offerings. Good to choice steers advanced 50 to 75c early in the week and held the gain. They sold at $15 to $16.75. Most of the grassers and fed steers closed at $10 to $13.50. Arrivals for the week were 55,000 against 61,000 last week and 59,000 a year ago.

The general market for she stock worked to new low leves for the sason. Decine ranged from 25c to $1.00. Demand was unusually light grass cows sold at $6.75 to $8.50 and the grass heifers went at $8 to $10. Good grain fed yearling heifers sold steady most of the week at $13 to $14.75.

Receipts of sheep and lambs in the aggregate at eleven markets were quite heavy during the week and this together with a slow demand and weaker undertone to the dressed trade depressed the local market. The general market is 50 to 75c lower. Choice lambs sold at $13.25 to $13.50. Western classes cleared at $12 to $13. Receipts for the week were 99,000 against 114,000 last week and 127,000 a year ago.

Chicago Cotton Lower.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Trade in cotton was light today. Final prices were unchanged to 4 points lower. For the week the maret is 14 tok 28 points lower.

Closing prices today were: Oct. 1827; Dec. 1853; Jan. 1860; March 1884 and May 1899.

The market was erratic throughout the week, with trade light and the run of news mixed. The government weekly weather report indicated generally clear and favorable conditions west of the Mississippi river. In other sections of the belt, however, unfavorable conditions prevailed due to cool weather and rather frequent showers.

Cables were irregular. The census bureau report on ginnings showed 3,353,038 bales compared with 2,500,781 bales for the same period last year and 3,504,995 bales for 1927.

A private estimate issued late in the week put the total stock of all cotton in this country on September 1 including unpicked as well as picked and ginned at 16,307,000 bales against 1,000,000 bales the same date last year.

'Pop' Goetz Dead

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Paul P. Goetz, the "Old Man of the Films," was dead today and generous Hollywood was reaching for its purse to prevent his being buried at public expense. "Pop" Goetz disappeared a while back and nobody along the boulevard knew where he was until the county hospital reported his death. For years Goetz had played old man roles.

DOUMERGUE HAS LITTLE RELIEF

French President Stays Near Paris During Vscation.

Chateau Furnishes Some Change From Life Of Business.

PARIS, Sept. 28— (I. N. S.) — Gaston Doumergue, president of the French Republic, cannot go very far away from his white house in the French capital to go fishing or hunting during his summer vacation. Prisoner of his greatness, he is obliged to spend his holidays during the seven long years of his term, at the Chateau Rambouillet, a few miles from Paris.

It is set in the heart of a magnificent forest, once the playground of kings and queens, which Mr. Doumergue knows from one end to the other. Up at six in the morning, for the president is an early riser even on his holiday, he reads the papers for an hour and then takes a brisk walk throughout his domain, wearing a rport cap and unattended except by his two guards who walk at a safe distance behind. "Gastounnet" really prefers to be alone, but the government won't let him.

Let's Them Live.

There are many pheasants, rabbits and other game in the forest, but the chief is not a great hunter a id prefers to let them live.

Nine o'clock always finds him back at the chateau, refreshed by a bath and change of clothes and his early breakfast, which is the usual French one, with "cafe au lait," petits pains and butter.

Then comes the big mail-bag from the Elysee Palace in Paris and the president retires to his little office, which was once the boudoir of Marie-Antoinette when she had the good fortune to live at Rambouillet.

Twelve-thirty and "Monsieur le President est servi." Under a handsome crystal chandelier, luncheon is served to the head of the nation, his general secretary, Jules Michel and the officer on duty. It is always a good lunch and a gay one, for the president likes to eat and makes no bones about it. There is also good wine on the table and he drinks it.

Diligent Reader.

After luncheon, he retires to his private salons for the afternoon. He is an insatiable reader. On the table in the library lined with books of every description, is his favorite paper-cutter, two pairs of horn-rimmed glasses and the loud-speaker of his T. S. F., for Doumergue is one of the best radio-fans France can claim.

He has another set in the dining-room and always has music with his evening meal. The more complicated and delicate the sets are the better he likes them. He has not yet heard New York because he says that three a. m. when America tunes in, is just a wee bit too early for him.

"I shall get you soon though," he told an American recently, "because we French are beginning to concentrate on short wave reception."

Henwood, Principal in Murder Sensation, Dies

CANON CITY, Colo., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—The man who was the principal in Denver's most sensational murder and whose act sent a millionaire's wife finally to a pauper's cot at Blackwell island, New York, died in the Colorado state penitentiary today.

He was Harold Henwood, the favorite son of the late Harold F. Henwood, Yonkers, N. Y., philanthropist.

Henwood who killed Sylvester (Tony) Von Phul, St. Louis wine salesman, and George T. Copeland and crippled J. W. Atkinson in the barroom at the rown Palace hotel, May 24, 1911, was 42 years old. Death was due to 'acute dilation of the heart," following an operation for removal of his tonsils yesterday.

Quarreled Over Woman.

The fatal shooting followed a quarrel between Henwood and Von Phul over beautiful Isabel Patterson Springer, wife of John W. Springer, millionaire banker and sportsman. Henwood was found guilty of second degree murder, got a new trial, but at his second hearing a jury found him guilty of first degree murder and he was sentenced to hang. His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Henwood's bullets shattered the life of Mrs. Springer, sending her to a pauper's cot at Blackwell island and created a cloud of woe on many lives.

AVIO PORT IS OPENED FOR LINCOLN BOYS

Interest in aviation among the boys of Lincoln received an impetus Saturday, when the first supplies of parts for the construction of model planes arrived at Ben Simon & Sons, local avio port of America, rapidly growing organization for boys interested in this great science.

Any boy between the ages of eight to eighteen, in good standing at school will be welcomed as a member of the avio port. Here he will find books on the subject of aviation and all parts for the construction of model airplanes.

Fred Krause will be in charge of the port, and will be in attendance after school and on Saturdays.

Mr. Simon said "that he believes nothing holds a brighter future for the boys than aviation" and he knew of no better service a store could render its community than to open the way for local youngsters to obtain first knowledge of the great industry of aviation.

LIFE SIZE CAVE MAN REPRODUCED

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—With completion of the first authoritative life-size reproduction ever made of a cave man, his family and his cave home at Field museum of natural history, this city today is the only community in the world where the dim past of prehistoric man is thus visualized.

The reconstruction represents one of the earliest types of prehistoric man, the ape-like Neanderthal or Mousterian man whose race lived in western Europe during the last glacial period, and represents the earliest stage of human existence of which complete skeletons have been found. Scientists estimate that the race lived some 50 years or more.

Work of Expedition.

Realization of the cave man group is one of the results of the recent Captain Marshall Field Archaeological expedition to Europe under the leadership of Henry Field a member staff. In the work of the expedition and the preparation of the group the scientists have had the co-operation of leading anthropologists of England and France.

The individual figures of the group consist of a man about 55 years old, a boy about 12, a woman about 30 with a baby in her arms, and an older woman. These figures have all been carefully reconstructed from measurements, casts and models made of the skulls and skeletons of neanderthalers which have been found in various localities of Europe. The figures are in lifelike attitudes, and are represented as engaged in occupations typical of their time and stage of development.

True to Life.

Special characteristics of the Neanderthal race are carefully represented. These include very prominent and continuous brow ridges extending from temple to temple; short thick necks with heads thrown forward because of peculiar construction of the spinal column which made it impossible for these people to stand quite erect; broad flat noses; bent knees like a gorilla's, which it was impossible for them to straighten.

Their bodies, the group shows, were short and of stout build. Their heads were proportionately large and the size of their brains was not below that of modern man's according to Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology. While in volume their brain substance apparently equalled that of modern man, the proportions were more like those of apes, according to Dr. Farrington. The hands were extremely large, and lacked the mobility of those of modern man. The arms were relatively shorter than the legs, and the shin bones shorter than the thigh bones, thus indicating that those people were clumsy and slow-moving beings.

Does Your Will Mean What You Think It Does?

Examine it and See

The following came to our attention the past week: A mother, by will, gave her entire estate to three children, naming them. One daughter died leaving heirs. In case of the mother's death, the daughter's heirs would receive no part of the estate, as the testatrix intended they should, but the daughter's one-third interest became an intestate estate, subject to administration by the State.
Come in and talk these matters over with our Trust Officers.

CAPITAL AWAITS PREMIER'S VISIT

MacDonald's Mission May Bring New Era in World Policies.

Belief Prevails Affairs Other Than Navies To Be Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—With Premier Ramsay MacDonald actually on the high seas bound for the United States, the capital looked forward today to an exciting fortnight ahead which quite probably will mark the beginning of a new era in the long and varied history of British-American relations—a history that has embraced two wars and has been checkered throughout with discordant bickering.

For the first time in that history a British prime minister, a successor to Peel and Disraeli and Gladstone, will visit Washington in his official capacity, and the coming of no prince or king has ever been regarded with such significance or with such anticipation.

The dozens of foreign diplomats that comprise Washington's foreign colony are coming back from seashore and mountain to be on hand during the epochal period of the British premier's visit with President Hoover.

Ostensibly, MacDonald comes to Washington to celebrate "with a hand-clasp," as he himself termed it, the preliminary agreement reached on the naval question, and which, if accepted by the other world powers, may mark the end for all time of Britain's naval domination of the world and the Anglo-American naval rivalry.

To Discuss World Policies.

Actually, the belief prevails here that something more than merely the naval question—highly important as that undoubtedly is—brings the British premier across the Atlantic for the first time in history. That something is the establishment of a general Anglo-American accord on world policies, an accord which backed by the enormous economic resources and the spiritual influence of the English-speaking races shall become a lasting force for maintaining the peace of the world. In brief, a British-American partnership to maintain that peace.

The naval question insofar as it affects Great Britain and the United States, is already what the diplomats call a fiat accompli—finished. Some details remain to be worked out, but they are for the technicians of the general naval conference, which is to be held in London in January under British sponsorship. Of course, the British-American agreement is contingent upon and France and Italy consenting to "go along" in a reasonable program to curtail navies. But even should that conference fail the failure hardly would kill entirely the accord already reached between Washington and London. It could be revamped and altered to suit that circumstance.

Hence, Washington considers that Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald are going to talk of many other things beside navies.

Hastings Notes.

Calendar event focussing attention on Hastings college this fall are the night football games, the Friebure Passion play to be presented October 21 and 22, and the debate with Oxford university scheduled for November 20.

Chadron Normal

Professor Barbour and his family were in Chadron visiting with their daughter, Mrs. Cook, who is head of the Chadron geology department. Professor Barbour in his address to the assembly urged the students to stress scholarship.

Their Marriage Expected Soon

Reports which are apparently based on fact are current in European capitals, that the Princess Ileana (left), daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania, and King Boris of Bulgaria (right) will shortly be wed. Both parties have been the subject of much martimonial gossip in diplomatic circles and it is believed that this alliance will do much to strengthen continued peace in the Balkans.

coalition agreed to include a provision asserting it to be the policy of congress that such recommendation should not be subject to amendment in either house or senate. Under the constitution each branch of congress would have to adopt a separate rule to carry this provision into effect.

The substitute plan will be sponsored by Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, and the "non-amendment" provision with a few other minor changes will be offered by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska. The insurgents decided on this course at a conference today. The verdict against continuing the president's tariff powers was unanimous.

The republican leadership was divided over its next step. A few administration spokesmen were holding out for readoption of existing law, but others suggested acceptance of the coalition substitute, with an amendment limiting the time within which congress can act on the recommendation. This in effect would give congress a sixty day veto over any proposed change in rates. In event of congress failing to act, this group would have the commission empowered to place the new rates in effect at the end of the sixty-day period.

Opposed to Time Limit.

The coalition's leaders were opposed to this time limit and it may prove the big bone of contention in the fight next week. There were indications that the senate would reach a final vote late Tuesday or early Wednesday.

The final outcome was rather in doubt, with both sides claiming victory. An incomplete poll showed the coalition slightly in the lead, but with enough votes doubtful to give the regular republicans a chance.

The president appeared defeated. His appeal for support of the existing flexible provision, giving him absolute power to proclaim or pigeonhole individual rate changes, seemed certain to be rejected. It was said that his appeal, termed a political blunder by both senate factions, had provoked his defeat by driving into the coalition two republican independents who otherwise might have supported the administration.

president's sister, Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, shall sit at official dinners by excluding her and the vice president from the guest list for the large dinner they are to give for Prime Minister MacDonald at the embassy Oceober 8.

Word that Mrs. Gann, center of Washington's precedence controversy since her brother was inaugurated last March, was returning from Topeka, came at the same time this information was given the United Press by an authorized representative of the British ambassador. Mr. Curtis and Mrs. Gann, his official hostess, will be invited only to the large reception following the dinner, it was said.

It was explained that the brevity of MacDonald's visit precludes inviting the same officials both to the luncheon and to the dinner at which ladies will be present, a bachelor luncheon having been arranged.

Telegrams Received At K. C.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28—(INS)—Dolly Curtis Gann, sister and official hostess for Vice President Curtis, is expected to return to Washington next week to brave the uncertain waters of the capital's society during the lavish social functions in honor of Premier MacDonald, it was disclosed on excellent authority today.

Telegrams were received today by at least two society matrons of Kansas City, Kas., cancelling engagements for Mrs. Gann to appear at functions the two matrons had arranged for October 9.

Word was circulated in Topeka social circles today that Mrs. Gann was returning to Washington next week.

When Mrs. Gann went to Topeka, Kas., the vice president's home town, two weeks ago and accepted engagements until October 9, Topeka society believed there was a reason for her absence from Washington at such an important time.

Mrs. Gann talked pleasantly with newspaperment today. If the social engagements in her honor were cancelled, she said, her sister (who made all engagements for Mrs. Gann during her visit to Kansas) must have had a reason. Had Mrs. Gann heard from the vice president? Yes, she had and he was feeling excellent. When would she return to Washington? In a few days, maybe. She didn't know a grat deal about her future plans.

Topeka Society Abuzz.

If the vice president has unscrambled Washington social affairs, Mrs. Gann has left Topeka functions in an omelet.

Topeka matrons had felt Mrs. Gann's visit to Topeka would thwart a renewal of last spring's social war in Washington when certain circles rebelled at accepting the vice president's sister as "second lady of the land." Topeka arranged a lavish function for every day of her visit.

The sudden cancellation of the remaining dates, coupled with the word she is returning to Washington for Premier MacDonald's visit created a big stir in this vicinity. Hostesses who had planned affairs in honor of Mrs. Gann saw their plans upset and were chagrined.

In fact, there were reasons to believe there might be social troubles for Mrs. Gann in the Curtis "old home town."

LEGION TO SPONSOR FREIBURG PASSION PLAY HERE OCT. 17

The Freiburg Passion Play will be presented at the University coliseum, starting Thursday, October 17, for three nights and a Saturday matinee, under the auspices of the American Legion. The play was presented for the first time at Freiburg (Baden), Germany, in 1264.

Hundreds of people will participate with appropriate costumes depicting biblical days. The company was brought to America to dedicate the Krug Park bowl at St. Joseph and then visited St. Louis where capacity crowds greeted the visiting players.

The play begins with a prologue depicting Adam and Eve in the garden, and the fall of man. This is followed by a tableau of glorification of the cross. The drama of the passion of Christ closes with the resurrection and the singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah."

great powers, Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald told the labor party of Great Britain in a message written on the eve of his departure for the United States.

The message, addressed to the national executive of the labor party, will be read to the opening session of the annual party conference at Brighton Monday.

Regretting his inability to attend the meeting, MacDonald reiterated that any Anglo-American naval agreement reached as a result of his Washington trip "can only and is only intended to be preliminary to a larger agreement which must be reached in conference with the other naval powers and later in the preparatory disarmament commission sitting at Geneva."

"We're not trying," the message continued, "to present any other nation or nations with a fait accompli which they must take or leave. What we have determined to avoid is that the general march toward disarmament may be held up in future as it has been in the past, while two great naval powers, ourselves and America, halt at the wayside to argue about their special difficulties.

Well Within Reach.

"I think we can now say that the kind of agreement necessary to prevent that is well within reach, and I go to meet President Hoover in the hope and expectation that a degree of friendly understanding achieved during many weeks of distance correspondence will be strengthened and rendered closer by a few days of personal contact.

"I also feel, quite irrespective of particular points we have been discussing, that the establishment of such a contact is immensely to be desired, and nothing could be of more value to international good will than mutual confidence between the governments of the United States and Great Britain."

In the opening of his message, referring to the Brighton meeting, the premier said:

"It causes me very deep and personal regret to be absent from this important conference, but I am sure you will appreciate the reasons which made my attendance impossible. My visit to the United States could not be delayed because in a month's time parliament would be sitting. This visit is the culmination of negotiations and exchanges of views begun when we first came into office in June and assiduously pursued ever since.

"Before we came in at all, the importance of an Anglo-American understanding on naval matters had been borne in on me by experience and I was glad to find when General Dawes arrived in England that President Hoover took the same view.

Wants No Misunderstanding.

"I do not want that there shall be any misunderstanding as to the nature of what we are attempting."

The message then explained that any agreement would be preliminary to a larger agreement as outlined above.

The remainder was devoted to mention of the labor party's increased growth, the government's achievements so far and its future program.

"During the next session of parliament," it said, "you will see development of the forward movement on the home front which I hope will be no less satisfactory than what has been achieved at The Hague, Geneva and in Egypt and I hope may be accomplished when our negotiations with America are finally completed."

county's proportion of this income is $10,000 which is expended under the direction of officials of the American Legion.

The state provides a fund of $15,000 per year for the relief of Spanish war soldiers and their dependents, which fund is expended by a committee of Spanish war veterans.

There is a general tax levied by the county commissioners of three tenths of a mill, producing approximately $5,500 annually, which is expended by the commissioners for soldier relief on the recommendation of a committee composed of representatives of veterans' organizations. Similar levies may be made in every county in the state and have been made in most of the counties.

No Bonuses Ever Requested.

In Nebraska the veterans' organizations have never asked for "bonus relief." Most of the states in the union have paid "bonuses" to soldiers. Every state adjoining Nebraska has paid such bonuses. In Nebraska the legislature at the suggestion of the veterans' organizations has pursued a policy of providing adequate emergency relief through the creation of the endownment fund and by direct appropriation. The legislature so far has granted all requests made by veterans' organizations for this relief.

As the passage of time may make it necessary for additional relief it is the belief of veterans generally that the legislature will continue to make the necessary appropriations.

One of the purposes of the committee is to see that any funds contributed for "soldier relief" shall be expended for relief purposes and not find its way into the pockets and profits of professional promoters.

This committee has been constituted for the purpose of protecting the public by investigating all such projects and it will approve any proper campaign that comes to it through any of the regularly constituted veterans' organizations and whenever there is need for further relief this committee will ask for it publicly, members stated.

The public are requested by the committee when approached on projects of this wind and there is doubt as to their worthiness to call the office of the chamber of commerce, community chest or any member of the committee for information.

BALLOONS BEGIN LONG GRIND FOR COVETED TROPHY

A crowd of 20,000 surged against the ropes guarded by the police lines to get as close as possible to the big bag. The world's greatest international event for free balloons was not held at a regular aviation field, but had as its setting a huge vacant lot where a large gas tank for filling the balloons was located.

The perfect weather which has been promised by the weatherman at Washington prevailed.

As the first balloon climbed into the sky a northeasterly wind was blowing and the bag started toward Illinois in the general direction of Chicago.

Shifts Toward Iowa.

At 4:04 the Goodyear VIII balloon the American civilian entry, piloted by Ward T. Van Ormon of Akron, O., swayed gently and soared into the air as soldiers let go the basket.

The Goodyear apparently found it hard to gain altitude but started off in the wake of the German balloon, Stadt Essen.

At 4:08 the Argentine balloon Argentina, a brillian orange bag, started its climb in the quest of fame and fortune. E. Edurodo Bradley was the pilot, assisted by Francisco Cadaval.

The Danish entry, the Denmark, with Pilot Lieut. George Schenstrom and his aide S. A. W. Rasmussen in the basket, was released at 4:14.

Ballonists Are Happy.

All of the ballonists waved cheerily as their bags began the ascent. A ripple of laughter swept through the crowd as Bradley of the Argentina removed his headpiece baring a shining bald pate.

The fifth entry, the Barmen, after being jockeyed about by its soldier guard, started its climb at 4:20. Dr. Hugo Kaulen and Fritz Ebener, the pilot and the pilot's aide, were in high spirits and waved and shouted at the crowd as they dumped two sand bags ballasts which started their sky buggy upward.

The Belgica was walked into position and released at 4:25. Capt. Ernest De Muyter, the famous Belgian pilot, waved an American flag as he and his aide, Frans Leharlier, began their sky journey.

The biggest cheer of the afternoon swept through the throng as the navy balloon with Lieut. J. G. W. Settle and Lieut. Wilfred Bushnell started skyward at 4:30. A band started up wtih the national anthem and the soldiers and sailors who accompanied the army and navy entries snapped to attention.

Cautioned By Wife.

Lieutenant Settle's pretty wife had kissed him good by and cautioned: "Remember now, no landing on islands."

The navy bag was equipped with a lightning arrester and pontoons. It is regarded as the very latest in balloon styles. The bag was a bright silver and gleamed whitely as the rays of the setting sun hit it.

The faces of the navy pilots were still discernable as the band again began the national anthem and the army balloon started upward. Capt. William E. Kepner and Capt. J. E. Powell were in the basket as pilot and pilot's aide respectively. Apparently the rivalry which characterized the army and navy's relationship in their long football was was remembered by the crowd and various individuals picked their choices and rooted wildly for their choice, either the army or the navy.

pend for a period of a year any such license where a person has been convicted of reckless driving or operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs.

"The law further provides that any person operating a motor vehicle without having secured this license shall be fined not to exceed $100, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed three months, or both.

"Attention is called to the drastic provisions of this law in order that every person may be informed of its provisions; and due to the ever increasing casualties as the result of the operation of automobiles, the provisions of this act will of necessity be stringently enforced."

Monday Last Day.

Nearly 2,000 licenses were issued Saturday, almost 400 more than on any previous day. Records for the week showed a substantial increase in licenses towards the close of the week.

A day by day tally of licenses issued showed: Monday, 1,269; Tuesday, 1,190; Wednesday, 1,521; Thursday, 1,697; Friday, 1,627; Saturday, nearly 2,000. Despite the heavy flow, persons applying for licenses were disposed of in less than ten minutes.

Saturday was the first day that the office had been too busy to handle the mail applications during the day. Treasurer Albers' force, at the close of business Saturday, had all mail applications except those received Saturday cared for, and had practically all licenses indexed properly. Mr. Albers said he had received many compliments on the way he was handling the issuing of the licenses.

Monday will be the last day to secure licenses before the law becomes operative. Treasurer Albers issued a statement Saturday that he would prefer not to have checks presented in payment for the small amount of the license.

Makes Accusation.

Reeves is the man whom Pearson said he heard most frequently express the hope that the conference failed." Questions which the committee will put to Reeves, and after him to Shearer, were expected to throw light on a number of reports that have been circulating since the failure of the Geneva parley.

Several times in the hearings there has been mentioned an amazing, secret British document" which Shearer wrote his employers he had in his possession, and which he said he considered so vital" as to have it photographed by the navy department. A copy of this document is now in the hands of the committee, it was indicated, and undoubtedly Shearer, possibly Reeves, will be questioned concerning its authenticity and source. The document several times popped up as a subject of discussion in the senate during debate over the fifteen-cruiser bill passed last spring.

Lost Eye While Making Bed.

May Berry, a chambermaid at the Lincoln hotel, lost the sight of her right eye last June by the corner of a bed spread flopping up into it while she was doing her work. On account of this the Eppley Hotel Co., or its surety, is directed to pay her $78, or the equivalent of 12 6-7 weeks' wages at $6.92 a week. A medical bill of $45 is also charged to them.

Other recent decisions by the state labor department in cases from Lincoln are:

Orlon B. Harris against Omaha Steel Works, self-insurer, $1,050, at the rate of $15 a week, for 40 per cent permanent loss of use of right hand due to fracturing of three fingers by having a tank fall upon them. This award is made in addition to $750 paid as temporary compensation, and medical expense. The accident occurred in August, 1928.

Ronald L. Adams against Beatrice Creamery Co. and its surety, $46 for temporary disability during a four-week period in August and September, 1928, after a fellow employe in the ice department dropped a pair of tongs on his foot, cutting an artery. Of this amount, $29 has already been paid.

Fred C. Bradsby against Frey & Frey and surety application dismissed on finding that defective vision is due to disease and not to any accident in the course of employment.

NEW YORK, ept. 28—(I. N. S.)—The cradle of the original sports-girl lies in the sun-kissed hills of the Pyrenees, according to Rita Wiman, short story writer and playwright who just returned from a vacation in the little Basque village of St. Jean de Luz overlooking the Bay of Biscay.

This mystery race whose origin has been lost in the maze of history has produced tall, broad-shouldered Amazon womanhood with the rhythm of the sea in their stride.

The Basque maidens have been going without stockings and bronzing themselves on the sands since long before Columbus made his famous ferry trip across the Atlantic.

Miss Weiman told of the narvete of these Pyrenees lasses. One came out of the sea and stretched out a large towel. She dropped down and by a series of lightning-like manipulations she discarded her one-piece bathing suit and robed herself completely without exposing an inch of unauthorized skin.

"She did it so gracefully and skillfully that one could not get any impression of immodesty," said Miss Weiman.

Born to the outdoors, the Basque girl wears clothing to keep her body free. Miss Weiman believes that there is a distinct influence from the Basque apparent in present sports styles.

"One large American department store ordered a large consignment of the rope-soled sandals which the Basque girls use," she said. "And the fad of wearing bright-colored smocks and berets is increasing in America.

"Incidentally, you can tell the American girl from the native Basque by the way she wears her beret. A native wears the beret straight across her forehead as her grandmother did before her. But the American girl puts on her beret at a jaunty angle."

One of the charming qualities of these people is their play instinct, said Miss Weiman. The umbrella repairer sings a song telling of his trade outside his customer's door. And at the village fetes, the entire populace makes-believe and runs hither and thither in pretended fright as a native bearing a papier-mache bull spouting fire charges across the square.

GENEALOGY OF HOOVER TRACED

Incumbent Is Fifteenth President Of Welsh Blood.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—President Herbert Hoover is claimed by Welsh historians and genealogists as the fifteenth president of the United States whose ancestry can be traced back to the noted little country in the southern part of the British Isles, long ago merged into the government of Great Britain.

The statement is being proclaimed with pride by Welsh organizations in the country, who enlisted the aid of genealogists as well as that of Secretary of Labor Davis, a native of Wales, in establishing the ancestry of Mr. Hoover.

From Mother's Family.

The Welsh blood of the president comes from the maternal side of his family, according to the tracings of genealogists. The Druid, a Welsh publication in Pittsburgh, says that a few years ago President Hoover stated that he was related to General Nelson A. Miles, a famous Indian fighter, on his maternal side. General Miles was known as of Welsh descent.

The first Hoover, according to the American Heraldy society, came to the United States in 1740 and settled in Maryland. He was Andrew Hoover, born in Baden, Germany. He married Margaret Founts.

A son, John Hoover, went to North Carolina and thence to Ohio and married Sarah Burket. Their son, Jesse Hoover, settled at West Branch, Iowa, which became the Hoover home for many years.

President Hoover's mother's name was Hulda Randall Minthorn. Family names of other women in the Hoover clan were Rebecca Yount and Mary Davis.

The name Hoover is given by Harry M. Hoover, author of the "Huber-Hoover Family History," as essentially Dutch or German in its origin. The original spelling was "Huber," this being derived from the old German word, "Hube," pronounced Hubay.

Land Owners.

The word "Hube" was said to mean the possessor of a tract of land. In German the name is pronounced "Huver" which is said to have led to the variation of Hoover in the England tongues. The name is also found as Huber, Hover, and Hoober in the United States.

All of the coats-of-arms of the various branches of the Hoover family, it is said, indicate land-ownership and industry.

The Welsh claimants of a part of the ancestry of the president also declare that the last three presidents, including the late President Harding and ex-President Coolidge, all had Welsh blood in their veins. The mother of ex-President Harding, it is claimed, could speak the Welsh language.

Welsh societies have long claimed that their people have shown a remarkable aptitude for public life and politics. The achievements of Lloyd George in British politics are pointed as an example of their power in the British Isles.

ROTHSTEIN CASE POLITICAL CLUB

New York Mayoralty Candidates Use Slaying Against Tammany.

Charges and Counter Attacks Fly Fast; Plan to Try McManus.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(UP)—The long buried Arnold Rothstein murder case has been opened wide under a arrage of "scandal" charges fired at Tammany by three of its major political foes.

Under the pounding of Representative Fierpela LaGuardia, republican mayoralty candidate, former Police Commissioner Enright, square deal party candidate, and Norman Thomas, socialist candidate, the Tammany regime has decided to let the ghost of Arnold Rothstein walk again.

Tammany has promised publicity in the wake of the following charge by the trio of opposing candidates:

That Rothstein, mysterious underworld chief, was linked to officials of the Tammany regime and some of them were beholden to him.

That Magistrate Albert H. Vitale, a Tammany man, received a Rothstein loan of about $20,000, a charge Vitale says is vicious and untruthful, though he admits a non-personal borrowing from a mortgage corporation which Rothstein numbered among his manifold undertakings.

McManus to be Tried.

These charges have resulted in a decision by District Attorney Joab Banton to place on trial quickly on a murder charge George A. McManus, associate of Rothstein known throughout the haunts of gambling men in the "roaring forties."

McManus is now out on $50,000 bail, released after authorities some months ago decided they were insufficiently equipped to make a killing charge against him stick. Banton's political enemies claim his decision to go on with the trial is the result of their constant goading and their continued charges that Tammany men knew Rothstein so well that they would not want the lid tilted on what Banton has called merely the murder of one gambler by another.

Rothstein was shot and killed in the forties eleven months ago. Police Commissioner Whalen claimed shortly afterward that he could lay his hands on the murderer in short time, but later he admitted he was probably too optimistic.

Tammany's enemies have hinted that something more than carelessness permitted his getaway, suggesting that Tammany might not want the public to know that some of its folks were listed as associates of Rothstein.

May Sue LaGuardia.

Magistrate Vitale, the second justice to appear in political headlines recently, announced he would sue LaGuardia on a libel charge if he found LaGuardia, the little Italian-American major, had accused him of taking a personal loan from Rothstein.

The loan of more than $19,000, he said, was made against his note to a mortgage corporation in which the versatile Rothstein was interested, though Vitale said he was unaware of Rothstein's position in it, and furthermore was not a friend of the dead gambler. The other justice recently under fire is Judge Francis X. Mancuso, who has appeared as a recipient of funds from the late President Frances Ferrari of the defunct and attacked City Trust bank. Mancuso has claimed the transfers discovered from Ferrari's papers were legitimate, as does Vitale of his financial transaction.

Meantime, Isaac Gainsburg, attorney for the Rothstein estate, has said he would like to know the names of men whom the republican, socialist and square dealer leaders claim were on a sort of payroll in Rothstein's "little black books." If he could have them, he says, he would try to collect owings for the benefit of the gambler's estate.

DAY WILL WED AFTER RELEASE

Sinclair's Aide Plans to Marry Washington Girl Next Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Through the bleak walls of the district jail love came winging to Henry Mason Day, straight from the heart of Miss Dorothy M. Ridenour, Washington society girl, and the ally of Harry F. Sinclair will answer the call when he has completed, next Thursday, his four months' sentence there.

Day plans a wedding—his second—immediately after his release, to be followed at once by a honeymoon trip to Europe.

He is on the last lap of a sentence for contempt of court in connection with the Sinclair "jury shadowing case." It was Day, the vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., who hired the Burns detective agency to shadow the jury, impanelled to try Sinclair's first conspiracy trial. The shadowing resulted in a mistrial.

Miss Ridenour, a striking blonde, is a familiar figure in embassy circles and is a frequenter of the better supper clubs here.

Although the courtship has been carried on under singular difficulties, Day is not the man to be balked by a few stones and bars. Every visitors' day—some of her friends say every day—Miss Ridenour has appeared at the jail, and many times she has been seen on the avenues in his foreign made limousine.

The bridegroom has scoured the corners of the world for Sinclair, hunting oil concessions.

HOUSE TO GIVE TOPEKA PARTY

Former Kansan, Who Caused Sensation, Says It Is His Turn Now.

Guests Need Have No Fear For Liquor Will Not Be Served.

TOPEKA, Kas., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—A second important social note was given Topekans today. Jay House, former mayor and newspaper writer whose repudiated reports of free and easy liquor in Topeka turned official and social circles upside down, served warning he would visit here Christmas.

Furthermore, Mr. House announced he would give a party in a Topeka hotel. If agents insist on arresting him, he will give the party in the jail or the sheriff's home, House said.

House caused a sensational liquor investigation here recently when he asserted, but later denied, that thirteen or fourteen of his friends served him liquor here last Christmas.

In a letter to Arthur J. Carruth, jr., Topeka editor and one of House's friends called in the exploded inquisition, House said:

Wants No Invitations.

"I trust that during my forthcoming visit nobody will invite me to his home or attempt to entertain me in any way. To do so would subject him to espionage and nobody, neither host nor guest, may be entirely comfortable when snoopers are around. It may be that nobody wants to entertain me.

"Anyway, it is my turn to give the party. I shall have a suite at one of the hotels and anybody who wants to see me may call on me there.

"I shall not be able to offer anybody any liquor. I know full well that the moment I leave my room my bags will be searched. Therefore, I shall bring no liquor."

Of the recent inquisition, House wrote, "Was there, maybe, a little politics in that noble effort?"

STRIKE OF MALE WORKERS IS DUD

However, Women at Kansas City Biscuit Factory Still Hold Out.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—When their enthusiasm ebbed, a planned rush by striking employes on the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. plant failed today, and the men strikers decided to return to work. The women and girls, constituting about 80 per cent of the strikers, however, still held out.

An agreement affecting all the employes is expected to be reached at a mass meeting tomorrow, when it is believed the men will advise the women to return to work.

A crowd of 600 or 700 employes marched toward the plant today with the announced intention of obtaining their pay checks and clothing. The crowd broke up, however, when its members saw patrolmen grouped at the doors. They entered the plant in an orderly manner, received their money in silence and passed out.

Men Return to Work.

Following a meeting, the men sent word to the company that they were willing to return to work. Officials replied that they could return on the same terms existing before they struck. The strikers have protested against a new system of payment installed last spring, which they contend lessens their earnings.

Refusing to settle down at a meeting, the women and girls marched up and down in front of the plant, shouting at any executive they saw. Some rode the company's trucks back and forth.

Handbills were circulated among the workers today, urging them not to join the American Federation of Labor. Agitators also urged against returning to work until their demands were met.

WEST FLORIDA HIT BY STORM

coast from Tampa south with gales and menacing it with winds of even more dangerous velocity.

The storm center was placed tonight by Washington weather authorities as being fifty miles north northwest of Key West, apparently moving at a rate of ten miles an hour in a northwesterly direction.

With gales still whipping the lower east coast, the entire Florida coast from Jupiter to Key West on the Atlantic and back up the west coast to Pensacola was in the storm area, the Washington advices stated.

Dispatches received here tonight declared that Fort Myers and Punta Gorda were getting winds of approximately fifty miles velocity, that the gale at Fort Myers was up to sixty miles per hour and that Punta Rassa was experiencing winds of near hurricane proportions.

The following barometers readings were reported from the west coast: Tampa, 29.66; Punta Rassa, 29.14; Punta Gorda, 29.45; Bradenton, 29.51; Fort Myers, 29.31. The winds were mostly in a northeasterly direction.

Key West Optimistic.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 28—(INS)—The Florida east coast, menaced since last Monday by a West Indian hurricane that roared through the western Bahamas, tonight had apparently escaped being struck by the worst part of the disturbance.

Reports here from Key West tonight said that the storm's center had passed north of Key West along the Florida keys.

"There is nothing here to worry about now," H. H. Boyer, Key West weather man, is quoted as having said tonight.

"Highest winds," the dispatch said, "were seventy miles an hour. At 7:30 o'clock the wind was blowing fifty-two miles an hour, with the barometer standing at 29.36.

"No casualties or serious damage were reported with the exception of waterfront, where several docks were wiped out. Number of fish boats sunk.

"No reports from Florida keys. Relief unit probably be sent to "No Name" key tomorrow to render any assistance possible to Monroe county ferry and crew. Officials here think all safe on keys unless wind reached higher than at Key West."

City In Darkness.

The message added that the city was in darkness and had been put under martial law by local authorities using the Key West branch of the national guard.

The storm, which is said to have cost twenty lives as it moved over Nassau, was believed to be moving slowly into the Gulf of Mexico by local weather officials.

At Miami the strength of the gales which swept the city throughout last night and today was diminishing, but the winds were still high, tearing at the beautiful trees and shrubbery and crashing through windows and flimsy structures.

Fort Lauderdale, twenty-seven miles north of here, was not so fortunate. A tornado disturbance, believed to have been thrown off by the hurricane, came out of the sea there late today and caused property damage in excess of $15,000, according to reports here. The twister hurt sixteen persons, none seriously, it was said. None was killed.

About twenty buildings were badly damaged, some completely razed, dispatches said.

Homestead Suffers.

Homestead, thirty miles south of here, also suffered severe damage when hurricane winds passed over there this afternoon. Roofs were blown from buildings by a gale that approximated a hundred miles per hour. A check up late today showed no casualties.

The Panama Special of the Florida East Coast railway, which was halted a few miles south of Homestead by the bad weather, returned here tonight.

Homestead was not believed to have felt the center of the disturbance.

Ilsmaroda, a smaller town about thirty miles south of Homestead, is the object of especial concern tonight. It is believed to have been extremely near the center of the hurricane during the afternoon. Meager reports brought in here gave the wind velocity there as more than 110 miles per hour. There has been no direct communication with the place since this morning, and it is feared that there might be a death list there.

Between Homestead and Key West there are only a few small hamlets. All of these have been cut off from communication.

Meanwhile from Miami north to Vero Beach, including Palm Beach, heavy gales whipped the coast throughout the day, not diminishing until early tonight.

Windows and flimsily built structures in these towns felt the effect of the blow, but no serious damage was reported and there were no known casualties.

Fort Lauderdale Loss Big.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Fifteen persons were painfully injured, nearly twenty buildings were razed or unroofed, and property damage estimated at $100,000 was caused here late today by a cyclone—sort of off-shoot, it was believed, of the West Indian hurricane.

One of the buildings to suffer the greatest damage was the four-story Broward hotel, one side of which caved in. The American Express Co. building was unroofed. Approximately twenty buildings in the downtown section were razed or badly damaged. No one was killed.

Some damage was done in the residential section. Windows were smashed and many trees uprooted. The twister came out of the southeast a few minutes after 5 p. m., and first struck in the heart of the downtown section.

The twister also struck on the outskirts of Stuart, Fla., earlier in the afternoon, wrecking a small building and uprooting a number of trees. No one was reported injured. Stuart is about thirty miles north of West Palm Beach.

It took Fort Lauderdale by complete surprise, and for a few minutes terror spread through the town. For the past twelve hours the city had been experiencing high winds—the tail of the West Indian hurricane headed toward Key West.

Crews of workmen began digging into parts of the downtown debris to determine if any persons could possible be buried beneath the pile of wreckage. Those injured were struck by whirling boards and pieces of wall.

NO WORD FROM FRENCH AIRMEN

Coste and Bellonte Are Believed to Be Far Over Siberia.

PARIS, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Mystifying silence tonight enveloped the fate and whereabouts of Dieudonne Coste, famous French aviator who, with a mechanic hopped off from Le Bourget field yesterday morning to try to set a new world distance record.

Coste and his companion, Jacques Bellonte, headed due east. They crossed the French frontier and were sighted over Liege, Belgium. Later Friday afternoon their plane was sighted over Cologne, Germany. Then all trace of them was lost.

The airmen were heading eastward when last seen and it was believed that they would try to get as far over Siberia as possible before landing. At 8:20 o'clock tonight they had been on the way thirty-six hours, and if they were still aloft, and had been able to average 100 miles an hour they should be approximately 3,600 miles east of Paris.

It was possible that the plane may have been forced down in some very isolated district of soviet Russia. It did not carry radio apparatus.

KATHLEEN NORRIS ATTACKS LINDSEY

Writer Says Judge's Companionate Marriage Idea is Subtle Bit of Advertising.

DENVER, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Judge Ben Lindsey, noted author, lecturer and advocate of companionate marriage, today defended his companionate wedlock program against a bitter attack of the plan and denunciation of Lindsey himself by Kathleen Norris, novelist and newspaperwoman.

"Judge Lindsey's theory is a tissue of the most ridiculous inconsistencies," Mrs. Norris told an audience in Mill Valley, Cal. "It is a subtle bit of advertising work. When Judge Lindsey comes around with such ideas the women of America should rise in their might and bar him from their cities."

"Mrs. Norris either doesn't know the problem of companionate marriage or she deliberately misrepresents it, as others have done for their own peculiar personal reasons, or for church or private money interests," was Lindsey's heated reply here.

The former Denver Juvenile court judge charged that Mrs. Norris represented a high foreign church group "in their fight in this country against the right of American womanhood to scientific family limitation."

VILLAGE WANTS CHIEF CLEARED

Citizens Threaten To Go Into Court For Slain Officer.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—The village of Elmwood park is threatening to go to court to clear the good name of Theodore Schuette, its police chief, who was slain in a road house after it is alleged he whipped out his pistol and threatened the lives of merry-makers.

Village officials have announced that they may seek a murder warrant for Policeman Fred Bryant who shot Schuette three times. Bryant has been exonerated by a coroner's jury.

The murder charge would not be filed for the purpose of convicting Bryant, the officials said, but solely to clear the name of Chief Schuette, who was accused of being in a drunken rage and brandishing his revolver when slain.

"We don't believe Schuette was drunk, as they said, and don't believe he was threatening to kill anyone, Village Attorney Daniel Webster said. "We tried to bring them out at the inquest, but they would not let us question the witnesses. If we go into a court on a murder charge we can question them.

"It is bad enough for Schuette to have been killed. For the sake of his five children we want to clear his reputation if we can."

LINCOLN RANKS HIGH AS CENTER LIFE INSURANCE

Home-Owned Companies Here Continue To Show Growth.

Five Local Firms Carry Total of $217,665,257 In Force.

Lincoln leads Omaha by more than $25,000,000 in the volume of life insurance risks carried by home-owned companies, according to the records of the state insurance bureau. Where Omaha has been going backward in late years, through the passing of some of its companies into outside hands and the absorption of others by their local competitors, every Lincoln concern has been making progress and building up its own business on an independent basis.

Only one minor consolidation of life insurance interests has taken place in Lincoln during the past six or seven years. That was when the Midwest Life bought out the Lincoln Life in 1924. The latter was a very small unit in the local field, having only $839,000 insurance in force when it was taken over. Not one of the companies now operating in this city has undergone a change of ownership or management within the time mentioned.

Many Changes at Omaha.

At Omaha, the conditions are not so well stabilized in the life insurance business. No fewer than three of the companies there have been sold to purchasers outside Nebraska since 1922. Three others which had been struggling for existence were finally swallowed up by rivals in Omaha. The latest of these mergers occurred just two weeks ago.

Removal of the American Old Line Insurance Co. from Lincoln to Omaha, which occurred in 1926, helped the latter at the expense of the former; but the change of location does not seem to have resulted in much benefit to the company, as its volume of business is little larger now than it was then. The company itself is now under non-resident control, a majority of its stock having been purchased by Chicago interests this year. It is still being operated with headquarters at Omaha; but whether this is to be permanent is not known.

How the Comparison Stands.

Lincoln has five stock legal reserve life companies, under home ownership and control, with combined insurance of $217,665,257 in force, as shown in the last published report of the state insurance bureau.

Omaha has seven companies of the same class, whose total risks carried are $197,664,411.

This is a margin of $20,000,000 in favor of Lincoln, among the stock companies.

Lincoln also has the two largest lines of mutual life insurance in Nebraska. One is the Security Mutual, which had $24,992,548 of policies in force at the close of business for 1928. The Home Guardian Life of Lincoln had $3,030,500 at the same time. Omaha has no company of this class with as much as $1,000,000 of insurance, or at least had none at that time.

However, there is an assessment concern at Omaha, the Guaranty Fund Life, which was credited with $20,291,856 of insurance in force. Balancing this against the two mutuals named in Lincoln, the capital city is more than $7,000,000 ahead of its neighbor in these divisions.

The Globe Insurance Co. of Omaha, whose progress has been handicapped by litigation ever since it was started less than two years ago, is omitted from this compilation, as the insurance bureau's report contains no figures for it.

Lincoln Has Largest Company.

The Bankers' Life of Lincoln leads all companies in the amount of insurance in force, which is shown to have attained $132,974,660 last year. The Old Line of this city has $26,537,042; the Midwest, $24,463,891; the Lincoln Liberty, $18,184,108; and the Service, $15,505,556.

Omaha's home-owned life insurance is distributed as follows: Bankers' Reserve, $123,572,309; United Benefit, $19,535,937; Northwestern, $18,837,850; Omaha Life, $17,173,096; American Reserve, $8,119,500; Equity, $6,283,309; Union Pacific Assurance, $4,142,414.

Figures given for the Northwestern of Omaha in the fore-going paragraph include $8,730,979 which it took over in the recent merger with the Prairie Life, as well as $515,000 which it acquired from the Union Reserve Life which it bought in 1926.

Some That Didn't Stock.

Among the former Omaha companies no longer in the Nebraska field was the North American National, sold to Rogers, Caldwell & Co. of Nashville, Tenn., less than two years ago. It had $15,000,000 of policies outstanding. It was resold to the Inter-Southern Life of Louisville, Ky., and has completely disappeared.

The Commonwealth Life of Omaha, organized in 1909, continued in business there until 1923 and had $34,000,000 insurance in force when it was sold to and merged with the Standard Life at Decatur, Ill.

Still another concern, the Columbia Life, had a precarious existence in Omaha from 1908 to 1928, having accumulated only $2,766,000 of business in twenty years. It was sold in the latter year to the American Old Line, which in turn was bought this year by Chicago men. The Columbia was a mutual.

AIR CARNIVAL FOR DIAMOND JUBILEE

OMAHA Sept. 28—(U. P.)—An air carnival, characterized as the greatest aeronautical exhibition in the history of Nebraska, will be held in connection with the jubilee observing the diamond anniversary of the state, Nov. 5 to 7, Col. Amos Thomas, chairman of the aviation committee, announced tonight.

Walter R. Johnson, captain of the army air reserve corps, will aid in making plans for the carnival that will be the greatest air demonstration since the Pulitzer races held here in 1920.

Stunt flying, airplane races, balloon bursting contest and other special events will be planned. Two army circuses will participate in the events.

Several of the big schools of the south have announced there will be no radio broadcast of their games this year.

City's Human Welfare Program Demonstrated With Live Models

Lincoln's human welfare program was on live display Saturday night in down town windows with the majority of the participating agencies in the Community Chest staging demonstrations or still displays. This was the third annual live window display night of chest agencies. Mrs. Eugene Levy, who had charge of arrangements, declared the displays to be even better than those of the two previous years.

Starting at Tenth and O streets, the first display was that of the humane society in a window at Sears Roebuck's. Two kittens, all "dolled up" for the occasion and each with a ribbon around its neck, and a family of white rats furnished the center of the display with placards telling of the work the society is doing.

At Mayer Bros., the Y. M. C. A. program of play, work, love and worship was represented by Billy Larson who sat behind a large window and worked at building a model airplane. Other implements used in the character-building "business" were in evidence, such as ball bats, volleyballs, basketballs, and archery paraphernalia. Next door at Gold & Co. the Red Cross hd a display featuring the public health nursing service and disaster relief. A Red Cross first aid demonstration was given in the balcony window at Ben Simon & Sons with E. F. Burke, first aid instructor of the Lincoln Telephone Co. in charge. Assisting him were members of the first aid teams at the telephone company, Nebraska-Iowa Light & Power Co., and the Boy Scouts. The work was explained to the spectators below by means of a public address system.

Camp Fire Program.

In an Orkin Brothers' window the Camp Fire Girls put on a program emblematic of the character-training work that asency is doing in Lincoln. A regular Camp Fire ceremony was presented by the Timego group in charge of Mrs. Young, assisted by Nora Elizabeth Bowes, Virginia Nichols, Lila Mary McRae, Doris Sanborn, Ruth Cobbey, Margaret Lowe, Mary Virginia O'Heeron and Virginia Lewis. The Kiniks group, Lila Moore, guardian, and represented by the following girls, sang Camp Fire songs: Elinor Bignell, Evelyn Riggs, Elizabeth Jones, Janice Sarbach, Marilyn Spohn, Betty Gail Thielen, Neba Beryl Webster and Constance Stalcup.

Three different windows were in use by chest agencies at Miller & Paine's. The first, occupied by the Society for the Friendless, was a lively place. Five small youngsters were having the time of their lives as they picked up and held for the spectators to read various placards showing the work the society is doing to care for families of prison inmates and to help paroled men and young men to find employment. A man and his wife stepped up to Superintendent McIntosh of the society, while the exhibition was in progress and asked if it would be possible for him to adopt any one of the five kiddies in the window. It wasn't.

Y. W. C. A. Has Display.

The Y. W. C. A. and the University Y. W. C. A. occupied the next window with perhaps the most elaborate display of the evening. Ten different scenes were enacted with a curtain dropping between each scene. The theme of the city Y. W. program was the difference between the girl of many years ago when knitting and reading were considered fitting recreation for girls, as compared to the modern girl who attends summer camp, plays tennis, rides horseback, attends gym class, etc. The girl reserves who took part in the program were Margaret Happ, Dorothy Smith, Jane Keefer, Frances Keefer, Elizabeth Brisbee, Marion Dobson, Winifred Allen, Very May Peterson, Imogene Happ and Martha Hershey. Business girls taking part were Miriam Clark, Ruth Luehr, Alberta Longeman, Margaret Eddy, Alta Adams, Winona Poehler.

University Y. W. girls demonstrated the program of that organization. Girls taking part included Lucilew Ledwith, Eleanor Bivins, Harriet Horton, Elizabeth Howser, Jane Axtell,Lois Lyson, Minne Namechek, Hope Campbell, Evelyn Krotz, Della Hoy, Darlene Johnson, Virginia Kimball and Dorothy Craig.

In the third window was Superintendent Hinkin of the People's City Mission. Placards showed that the mission gave 9,528 free meals, 7,002 free lodgings, 3,329 showers, 1,440 jobs and had an attendance of 24,938 at chapel services, last year. A second occupant of the window was a man who drifted into Lincoln several months ago with his body a mass of sores. A placard signed by him stated, "If it had not been for the care and help received at the mission I probably would have died."

Baby Clinic Work.

The Junior League had a window at Rudge & Guenzel's where layettes made by league members, a baby weighing machine and other accessories of the league's baby clinics were on display. Placards showed that 600 infants this year have been cared for at the clinics, all of whom might have gone without needed medical attention had it not been for the clinics which serve babies in needy families free of charge.

In Hardy's windows the Boy Scouts were at work on the various handcraft projects peculiar to scouting. Scouts who took part in the display were Don Loos, troop 16; Ernst Schaekel, troop 16; John Marrow, troop 37; John Morrison, troop 22, and Ralston Graham, troop 22.

The tuberculosis association had a display consisting of Camp Kinnikinnik, nutrition camp for undernourished children maintained last summer by the association, done in miniature. Frances Titus, Marjorie Conn, Elene Binning and Betty Binning held cars telling of the work the association is doing to combat the white plague in Lincoln and to build up the bodies of undernourished children who might contract tuberculosis.

About Your Winter Coal

It does not pay to experiment with your winter's supply of coal on which the comfort of your home depends. It is much better to buy a standard coal which has been sold for years from a good mine by a dependable company than it is to jeopardize your winter's comfort by trying to save fifty cents or a dollar a ton buying unknown coal on an unknown dealer's word. There is more profit for the dealer in these much advertised cut price "Cash Coals" than there is in our reliable brands.

After six years in the coal business I buy only the best coal from each respective district.

"MAGIC" Semi Lump and Egg, from the largest and most modern mine in the semi district, which has given perfect satisfaction to my customers for three winters.

"ROYALTON," a genuine Franklin county, Illinois, soft coal, mined by the Franklin County Coal Co. Illinois produces no better coal.

"STAR," Rock Springs, Wyoming, nut for cookstoves and grates, the hardest and best storing of the Rock Springs coals.

DEEP SHAFT PITTSBURG NUT, the best that we can buy.

All the above coals give value commensurate with their cost. We naturally recommend "MAGIC" because it is smokeless and sootless and you are getting every feature a good coal has to offer. "MAGIC" Semi Egg saves the work of breaking lumps. We never handle odd cars of "distress" coal. We fill your order with the same coal every order.

We sell for cash because that is the economical way to merchandise coal.

We weigh your coal on the latest type Fairbanks TRUCK scale which is absolutely accurate. Our coal is wet down after it has been weighed and has left the scale. All our drivers are experienced and obliging.

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 28—Say, there is an awful lot in the papers the last few days about these experiments these college professors are making with rats. One professor had to turn his out, for the rats know enough not to try any of the experiments. Another one wanted to find out what effect athletics had on anyone's intelligence. They wanted to see if he was dumber or keener after running back punts. And tackling another rat for awhile, the experiment showed that the rat was keener with athletics. By him demanding tuition and board for nothing and 10 per cent of the gate on all big games, the rat with no exercise wound up as a bond salesman.

Yours, WILL.

CITY MOVING IS REACHING PEAK

Heaviest Fall Trek Is Indicated in Phone Transfers.

As the September and October "moving day" reaches its peak, it appears that Lincolnites are making the largest trek to new quarters on record, according to D. G. Bell, manager of the Lincoln business office, of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

A study of the total of orders received at this time last year for moving, disconnecting and installing telephones together with a review of the factors which enter into the extent of the city's population shift during September and October has led to the conclusion that these two months will see one of the most active moving periods in the history of the city.

Many new apartment houses, homes, business buildings and a larger university attendance—these developments and many others too numerous to mention are the reasons for the forecast, said Mr. Bell.

According to precedents set in other years most of the moves made this fall season have been largely residential as business concerns usually move in the spring of the year.

Telephone plant engineers who are in charge of this immense job of moving telephones point out that by notifying the company well in advance of moving day, subscribers can facilitate the installation of service at their new addresses. Despite the large number of orders received, little if any delay in furnishing telephone service to moving subscribers has been experienced, company officials say.

York College

Miss Leona Stafford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stafford, and Lloyd Nichols, son of Rev. and Mrs. Maurice Nichols of Denver, both former college students were wed during the past week. Rev. Nichols, father of the groom performed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents in York. Following the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left for Dayton, O., where Mr. Nichols will enter Bonebrake seminary to study for the ministry. Mr. Nichols will be associated with Dr. C. E. Ashcraft of Bonebrake seminary, former dean of York college, and W. W. Stoner, former superintendent of city schools in York, in conducting a night school in Dayton.

Wesleyan Notes

The Y. M. C. A. of Nebraska Wesleyan sent representatives to the "retreat" of the student associations of Nebraska held at Crete yesterday and today.

WESLEYAN TEAM SOON MAKES BOW

Methodists Prepping Mix With South Dakotans Next Friday.

Nebraska Wesleyan's football squad completed its second practice week Saturday, the varsity gridsters defeating the reserves, 20-0, in a practice contest in the Wesleyan bowl. Briggs, Bauer and Chittenden, varsity backfield men, scored the touchdowns in straight football, while the two try-for-points were netted by forward passes.

The somewhat gloomy outlook presented by Wesleyan at the opening of the practice season has been altered but slightly by Coach F. T. Alabaster, who was not highly impressed with the varsity's ragged appearance Saturday.

Wesleyan will clash at home next Friday with Southern Normal, a South Dakota school, that has not ranked lower than fourth place in the South Dakota conference for the past four years.

Dakotans Look Good.

The normal institution is presenting quite a creditable aggregation this fall, included in which are four all-state players, and is playing its second game with Wesleyan. The school played St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minn., Saturday.

The Wesleyan team that started the game with the reserves averaged about 180 pounds on the line and 165 in the backfield.

Beef in the line was represented in Bonham, 206-pound guard and Wesleyan three-letter man, and E. Smith, 220-pound tackle. The line-up included Capt. McConnaha and Haberlan at ends, E. Smith and Meisner at tackles, Hawley and Bonham at guards and Allyn at center. The backfield included Briggs, quarterback; Thompson and Bauer, halfbacks; and Chittenden, fullback.

HAVELOCK READY TURN ON LIGHTS

Shoptown Squad All Set Try Out New Night Football Plant.

Football interest is boiling over at Havelock, where installation of the Shoptown high school's night football equipment is scheduled to be completed by Monday noon. Havelock gridsters are planning a practice workout under the arc lights either Tuesday or Wednesday night, according to Coach Paul G. Delaporte.

The dozen 50-foot poles, six on either side of the gridiron, have been installed, wiring up to the field has been completed and only the installation of the 20 duplex projectors that will furnish 40,000 watts of light for Ballard field remain on the workmen's program.

Work on the bleachers to seat 3,600 fans already has been started and everything will be in readiness for the Friday night mix with Teachers College high, the Shoptown's first game. A scrimmage with Bethany is slated for Tuesday.

Reports that the first Hastings college night grid game attracted a crowd of 5,000 fans has greatly encouraged Delaporte, who is planning a banner season at the suburban school.

Michigan U. Rings Up Twin Victory

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Showing promising strength, Michigan opened the 1929 season with gridiron victories over Albion and Mount Union under a broiling Indian summer sun today.

Albion was the first victim of the sturdy Wolverines. The Methodist eleven did not make a first down until late in the fourth quarter, while Michigan piled up 18. The score was 39 to 0.

Mount Union displayed surprising strength in holding Michigan's first team to three points in the first half. Dahlem, substitute halfback, and Gembis, veteran fullback, led a determined attack in the second half to score a touchdown in each period and make possible a 16-6 triumph.

The Ohiowans gave stern opposition to the wilting Michigan players from the opening kickoff to the final gun.

The game was featured by a spectacular 85-yard run in the third quarter by Raber. Mount Union right end. The scores:

First game—
Michigan ..... 14 7 6 12—39
Albion ..... 0 7 0 0— 7
Second game—
Michigan ..... 0 3 7 6—16
Mount Union ..... 0 0 6 0— 6

Hoosiers Win and Lose.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—University of Indiana's Crimson warriors, making their debut for 1929, swept to an easy victory here this afternoon over Wabash, winning, 19 to 2.

Indiana outpunted and outplayed the little eleven, which profited from an Indiana safety, which counted two points for Wabash.

Badgers Turn Back Coyotes.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Wisconsin ushered in its 1929 season with an easy victory here this afternoon over South Dakota, 21 to 0.

Huskies Step On Whitman.

SEATTLE, Sept. 28—(U. P.)—A flashy fast passing University of Washington backfield ran up a 47-0 score against Whitman college here today before a record opening season crowd. The Huskies' big line failed to function in accordance with the early forecast against the lightweight Missionary forward wall.

Oregon Ags Hard Pressed.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Held almost helpless for two periods by the California Aggies, Oregon Staters came through with a touchdown in the third period and two more in the fourth to win, 19 to 0.

College Students Come All Sizes

College students come in all sizes at the University of Illinois, where George Brown, 18, is the smallest ever enrolled and Lou Gordon, football tackle, one of the huskiest. Brown is 48 inches tall and weighs 47½ pounds. Gordon stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 220 pounds.

Hastings Notes

Hastings college enrollment for its forty-eighth year totals about 525 in the academic departments and 225 in the conservatory, with a marked increase in numbers in the upper classes. Nearly all the midwest states are represented in the student personnel, Nebraska, Colorado and Wyoming leading the count. From a distance comes Miss Katherine Vinnedge of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Miss Julia Wood of Canton, Ohio. Seven Oriental students are listed, five Koreans and two Hawaiians.

Innovations of a curricular nature include the new chair of religious pedagogy occupied by Dr. W. E. Uphaus of Muncie, Indiana; the course in freshman orientation conducted by Dean Clara Altman, and the English examiantion required of all entrants in freshman standing.

TROJANS TRAVEL AT SWIFT PACE

U. S. C. Defeats Its Los Angeles Rival By 77-0 Score.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28—(U. P.)—The University of Southern California, champions of the Pacific Coast football conference last year, opened the current season here today by drubbing the University of California at Los Angeles, 76 to 0.

Approximately 35,000 fans were in the stands at the start of the contest, the first gridiron meeting between the schools, but the slaughter became so uninteresting that only half of that number saw the finish.

Russ Saunders, destined to be the star of the Trojan backfield this year, took the edge off the Bruins off the first quarter when he ambled 51 yards to score the first touchdown.

Trojans In High Gear.

In the second quarter the Bruins crumbled before the Southern California attack and the Trojans counted 25 points. The Trojans made 24 more in the third and 20 in the final quarter. In all, Southern California scored 12 touchdowns. Of these, Saunders was responsible for three, while Pinckert, Hill and Shaver each registered two and Musick, Kemp and Willingham made one each. Saunders was the most brilliant for Southern California although he was not in the game very long. His first touchdown came on a 51-yard run, his second on a 55-yard trip and his last on a 15-yard dash.

Bears Bump Santa Clara.

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—California's Golden Bears, reminiscent of the "wonder" teams, defeated the fighting Santa Clara Broncos, 27 to 6, here today.

The Santa Clarans, obviously far outclassed, managed to squeeze over their lone score just a minute before the end of the game.

A passing attack netted the Broncos their touchdown. One pass from Mettler to Machado gained 21 yards. Another pass gained 11 yards and then Haskinson passed to Machado for 11 yards and the little halfback skipped over the line.

California answered the prayers of its followers by "opening up." The Bear offense was confined principally, however, to passing. The Bears exhibited a good defensive line and Santa Clarans were practically unable to penetrate it.

The Bears opened up with a vengeance and Lom's brilliant aerial markmanship netted many big gains. Elsan also shared honors in the backfield.

Stanford Uses Tricks.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Forced by the presence of many former Stanford stars in the opposing Olympic club lineup, Coach Pop Warner of the Stanford Indians was forced today to uncork almost a whole bag of tricks to outguess the guessers and send the big Stanford machine off to a 6 to 0 victory in the first real test of the season.

When Olympic line plunges failed to penetrate the Stanford defense wall for consistent gains the clubmen took to the air, with Kaer, former U. S. C. star, figuring heavily.

Few of Stanford's passes gained much ground and the Cards made their yardage on power bucks and deception plays.

To be Up-to-Date Means to be Up-to-Chrysler

When anything new is produced, there are always those who create and those who follow.

In the change to balloon tires, some makers asserted the new type would never succeed. Four-wheel brakes found some who disastrously supported the two-wheel design. And today, there are engineers who decry the Multi-Range Gear Shift and the Down-Draft carburetor.

Chrysler has never been among those who shun new things—if the new be better than the old.

The public acclaim for Chrysler, instead, has been based on Chrysler's pioneering or ready acceptance of those new creations which have made motoring safer, more comfortable, surer and more economical.

To be always ahead of or abreast of the times, but never to experiment on the public is the real foundation of Chrysler success.

You who prefer the latest, the most advanced, the best, have made Chrysler the most copied car in the world.

Because Chrysler has built the kind of cars you up-to-the-minute people want, you have given Chrysler the greatest success in the history of automobile building.

Selfishly, therefore—because we want our shining success to continue—we have built into the newest Chryslers, the greatest performance, the finest design, the highest luxury, the greatest safety and the most extraordinary value in our history.

Sincerely, we commend to you the new Chryslers which are again setting the pace for the entire industry.

We invite your most critical inspection. We want you to be our guests in a test run which shall prove that Chrysler, now more than ever before, is far, far ahead of all other motor cars.

OKLAHOMA REGENT FORESEES BIRTH OF NEW SCHOOL SPIRIT

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 28—(U.P.)—Birth of a new school spirit to be shared by all its 5,000 students was foreseen tonight by Frank Buttram, chairman of the board of regents, for the University of Oklahoma.

"Although abolition of the university's two pep organizations, the 'Jazz Hounds' and the 'Ruf Neks' may seem a drastic move, it is only in keeping with progress of modern college life," declared Buttram.

The two organizations were abolished by official order because their members staged a paddling initiation last Wednesday night in defiance of a university rule against hazing. The members of the two groups were suspended from the university pending investigation of each member. The committee conducting the investigation will report Tuesday to the board of regents recommendations for penalties.

CROCODILE IS SCIENCE FIND

Chicagoan Bags Animal He Had Pictured In Museum.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—The ways of the scientist are strange and sundry, as the case of Karl P. Schmidt, noted herpetologist at the Field museum here would indicate. Two years ago he discovered a crocodile skull which gave evidence of belonging to a species that had apparently never been recorded, so he set about to remedy the matter.

An ordinary man, setting out to discover a new kind of crocodile, would merely start out to discover one. But the scientist, first of all, scrutinized and microscoped the skull to his heart's content, then gave it a name, and then drew a picture to fit the skull and the name.

Efficient Job.

With this extremely simple and efficient job done, he journeyed into the queer places of the world where queer crocodiles might be found, and hunted around the swamps until he had bagged the crocodile that fitted the skull, the picture and the name. Now he is prepared to let the world know about his discovery.

Mr. Schmidt got his first inkling of the existence of this hitherto unknown crocodile species through examination of some decorated crocodile skulls used as fetishes by wild native tribesmen of New Guinea, which had been collected by an ethnological expedition. The museum's department of anthropology, having duplicates of the skull fetishes, turned these specimens over to the department of zoology.

Upon close examination, Mr. Schmidt found characteristics in the skulls which did not correspond to those of any crocodile ever reported before by zoologists of any country. He pursued his studies and finally named the new species "Crocodilus novaeguines," and prepared a description for the scientific world which was duly published by the museum.

Distinguished Party.

Last November he sailed with Cornelius Crane on the latter's yacht at the head of a party of other distinguished scientists to explore the islands of the South Pacific in the interests of science. Recently, the object of Mr. Schmidt's search, a new specimen of crocodile, was found in the deep interior of New Guinea. It matched the museum skull, fitted its new name and represented line for line the picture the scientist had drawn.

An airplane was used at times to help the expedition, although the larger part of the exploring was done by motor launch and afoot.

Proper Housing for Poultry—Importance of proper housing of pullets to secure best production and to prevent disease infection is stressed by J. F. Purbaugh in his county farm bureau notes mailed Saturday. If the poultry raiser has more pullets than space, and has no chance to build more housing facilities, he should cull his flock, the county extension agent writes. "One hundred good well grown, vigorous, and healthy birds, well housed in plenty of room will return far more profit than 150 birds of all sizes and all stages of development, that are crowded in the same house. The light breeds should have three square feet of floor space per hen, and the heavier breeds, including Reds, Rocks, Orphingtons, and Wyandottes, should have four square feet space per hen. Less than this amount of floor space will not only cut down the egg production of the flock but will increase the chances of disease infection."

TELEPHONE CO. PLANS JUBILEE

Silver Anniversary Of Founding Will Be Celebrated.

Monday marks the silver anniversary of the founding of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph company, and plans to celebrate the anniversary were completed by company officials Saturday. According to Don G. Bell, manager of the Lincoln office, this entire week has been set aside for a silver anniversary jubilee campaign. The program will be extended throughout the entire territory of the company, every employe being expected to take a part.

It is expected by officials here, it was said Saturday, that the week will see a complete history of the company written by the employes. This will include the names of those subscribers who were users of the service when the company was founded. It also will include the names of those employes who have been with the company during the entire quarter of a century, and the names of those who were on the pay roll twenty-five years ago who have since gone into other work but still live in the same town.

A feature of the week will be the writing of a record of the development in telephones during the period. Emphasis will be laid upon the difference in time required to complete a long distance call. A comparison of rates, speed and clearness of talk being considered, also will be made, along with a record of the miles of wire owned by the company at its founding and now.

SOUTHERN CITY IN FLOOD GRIP

Savannah River Spreads Death and Destruction in Georgia.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 28—(I.N.S.)—With damage to the section conservatively estimated at more than $1,000,000, this city tonight is in the grip of the turbulant yellow currents of the Savannah river—43.9 feet above the normal level.

Five persons and possibly a larger number are known missing from the Carolina side of the stream where the river is spread out, in some places more than a mile wide. Stiff currents caused efforts to rescue them from this side to end in futility.

In Waynesboro, Ga., thirty-five miles southeast of here, the residents are reported gathered in the one high section of the city, completely surrounded by water.

Drinking Water Polluted.

All drinking water there is polluted, the report said, and there is danger of typhoid fever. Attempts to send medical assistance to the stricken people atop the hill, by land and air, both from this city and Millen have ended in failure.

Railroad traffic south of this city and on the Macon divisions of both the Georgia railroad and the Central of Georgia railroad will not be resumed until ten days after the floods have subsided. Meanwhile, as reports of the flood devastation suffered in other sections seep in, this city is under from two to six feet of water in the lower part of the town.

The main levee, protecting the Georgia side of the river from the stream's fury, gave way today at a curve in the stream on Pierce's farm, about four miles below here and turned the full force of the stream on the surrounding lowlands.

Airplanes Are Used.

The crest of the stream, weather bureau officials said, now seems to be centered around Waynesboro and Millen, also inundated. Airplanes have been able to reach Millen, but that is the only method of transportation to the city.

The five men who are missing were observed yesterday clinging to tree tops on the Carolina side of the stream. Boats at once put out from the Augusta side as the faint calls for help came from the stranded men, three white and two negroes.

Before the boats, buffetted by the stiff currents, were able to reach the men, the tree to which they were clinging disappeared, apparently uprooted by the turbulent stream.

Saturday seven men were observed in trees just below the north Augusta bridge, calling for help. Several attempts were made before speedboats reached the scene and then the men could not be located.

Anniversary Dinner For Farragut Post

G. A. R. Members Are Honored By Relief Corps Saturday Noon.

Farragut post, G. A. R., celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a banquet given by the relief corps to veterans of the post and others totalling more than 100 at the Elks club Saturday noon. Mrs. Maude B. Keck, past department president of the relief corps, presided as toastmistress.

Former Senator E. J. Burkett addressed the veterans and their families on the value of their organization and comradeship in perpetuating the principles for which they fought. "Still prevalent in you today is the binding spirit of the battlefields and the nation honors you for your achievements," he said.

Mrs. Elva Weston, president of Farragut Woman's Relief corps No. 10, presented the post with $50 in gold, commemorating the fiftieth aniversary. H. V. Hoagland who also gave the invocation, accepted the gift, expressing the appreciation of his comrades. Mrs. Laura Hohan and Mrs. Mollie Hayes, dressed in costumes typical of the styles of fifty years ago, presented the veterans with cake with fifty candles on it.

Other Entertainment Features.

Mrs. Lillian Harm in a reading stated that no fraternal organization with ritual work had a deeper and more significant basis for organization than the G. A. R. Mrs. Keck, the toastmistress, read a poem entitled "The Faithful Few," dedicated to members of the G. A. R. Berna Poole, accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Beck, sang "Marching Through Georgia" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

The post was founded Sept. 28, 1879.

BILLY PARKER SHOT TO DEATH

Anti-Catholic Crusader Slain in Office at Jacksonville.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Billy Parker, nationally known anti-Catholic crusader, was shot and killed in his office here late today.

Harvey Jackson, who was the subject of an article in the current issue of Parker's Wekely, published by "The Blue Shirts," a local labor organization, was arrested on a charge of murder.

The local magazine had fostered editorial attacks on the negro question which caused a split between factions headed by Parker and Jackson, it was disclosed by police.

A paragraph in the current issue of Parker's Weekly said:

"Certain men who didn't care if their daughters married negroes have joined the Jackson clique of Blue Shirts."

Parker was said by the police to own an interest in "Menace," an anti-Catholic paper published at Aurora, Ill. He has spoken in various parts of the country attacking the Catholic church.

A report received by J. H. Agee, president of the Lincoln Community Chest, from J. Herbert Case, deputy governor of the federal reserve bank of New York, and president of the association of Community Chests, reveals that a grand total of $71,978,593 has been raised for charitable and philanthropic work during the current year by Community Chests throughout the country. This is an increase of almost $5,000,000 over the total amount raised through the same medium for use in 1928.

The report includes the results of campaigns held between September 1, 1928 and September 1 just passed—the period during which funds for expenditure during 1929 were raised. Totals from 330 cities and towns operating under the chest plan are embraced. In contrast to the 1929 total, the report shows that $67,200,000 was the amount contributed to Community Chests for expenditure last year.

Analyzing the report, Mr. Case makes this statement:

"In the spring we estimated that the Community Chest total throughout the country for 1929 would reach seventy millions. We find this estimate exceeded by almost two millions. It demonstrates that there is a steady and decided advance in public support of this method of financing and administering community welfare activities. In all parts of the country people are learning the wisdom of substituting co-operation for competition in finding the funds necessary for socal progress.

"Another demonstrated fact is that the people, in spite of certain excesses and extravagances, are making good use of the present era of national prosperity in matters of community welfare. They are developing the giving habit. Wage-earner and employer alike are learning to set proportionate amounts aside at regular intervals for the common good.

"There is more general understanding than ever before that the relief of poverty is only one of the many functions of philanthropy and that Community Chest budgets include preventative health programs and many character-building enterprises which quite naturally should be better supported in times of prosperity than they possibly could be in times of depression.

"The gift per capita averages about a dollar more in other cities than in Lincoln. Of the cities near Lincoln, Omaha with a population of 211,768 raised $448,835 for its chest or a per capita gift of $2.11; Des Moines, 145,053, raised $275,691 or $1.90 per capita; Denver, 280,911, raised $721,000 or $2.56 per capita; Kansas City, 383,100, raised $1,072,817 or $2.80 per capita; Minneapolis, 447,700, raised $1,252,096 or $2.79 per capita. Lincoln's per capita gift is $1.72.

Praises Friendship of Two Lincoln Men

Magazine Comments on Long Association of Ira Miller and W. G Roberts.

The respect of Lincoln funeral directors for the late Ira M. Miller is the subject of an editorial in the September 15 issue of "Casket and Sunnyside," national funeral directors' trade journal.

The editorial, titled "Such Friendship is Rare," stated:

"When an employer and an employe can work together for over a quarter of a century and keep on such friendly relations that they call each other pals, they are made of the right sort of stuff. The employer in such a case has a real heart, and the employe works for more than mere salary. Such was the case with Walton G. Roberts, well known funeral director in Lincoln, Neb., and his assistant, Ira M. Miller. The latter died last month in his fifty-fifth year. Mr. Roberts was in Colorado at the time of Mr. Miller's passing but he made the trip home to attend the funeral and then resumed his vacation.

"On June 15, Mr. Miller retired from funeral directing to enter another business in order to labor with his two sons. He died while at his new work. When he left Mr. Roberts, that gentleman in token of his high regard for his old friend and former associate, presented him with $2,500. That is a mark of appreciation and friendship rarely heard of in the business world, but the donor felt no less could be done for his former faithful helper.

"The example of unusual esteem did not stop there. The heads of the other funeral establishments in Lincoln, every one of whom knew Ira Miller to be a man of real worth and an honest competitor, acted as pallbearers, while twenty assistants from the various establishments helped in the details of the service, and all counted it a special honor. Over five hundred people attended the funeral, and 104 cars were in the cortege. One hundred and fifty floral pieces attested the high regard in which Mr. Miller was held by the procession in and out of Lincoln, and by scores of friends in other walks of life.

"The family of Mr. Miller can be no prouder of his record of faithfulness and ability than are the many who worked with him so long, and those who knew him so intimately as a gentleman, capable member of the profession and friend. His record is well worth emulation; his sort of friendship is rare."

TENSE FEELING IN TEXAS TOWN

Borger Awaits Word on Whether Martial Law Will Be Declared.

BORGER, Tex., Sept. 28—(U. P.)—There was an air of expectancy in Borger tonight as citizens awaited word from Gov. Dan Moody as to whether he would declare martial law in this oil town of the Texas panhandle.

Oil-spattered men milled the streets as usual; the two-mile highway was as bright as ever; "tin music" from the honky tonks continued to issue racous strains. It was Saturday night in Borger. But above the din there was a feeling of tenseness. Borger doesn't like policemen.

The sole topic of conversation tonight is whether Borger is on the verge of a new era—an era of respectability. It was a novel thought for these grimy-faced oil field roustabouts who have seen Borger rise from the dust of the Texas plains to the greatest oil center of the southwest.

More than a score of murders in three years and but one prosecution. Stabbings and bootlegging. Texas rangers, John A. Holmes, a prosecuting attorney, shot down in cold blood. These and other things have combined to give Borger its unsavory reputation. These are the things Governor Moody seeks to remedy.

He said today he had not fully made up his mind to send state troopers into the town, but if he does, they will go in quietly. The governor already has sent rangers here, but, as yet, they have found no clue to the slayer of Holmes.

Troopers stand ready to take over the town. An order from the governor will place Borger under the rule of pistols and knives. Martial law will only mean that militiamen will be armed as well as rackateers.

Lincoln Boy Sketches From Age Of 3; Drawings Win First Premiums At State Fair

His bent for drawing first manifested itself eleven years ago when he was but 3 years old. When a pencil was placed in 3-year-old Delbert's hand he didn't try to eat it like most children of that age. Instead he sought a nice clean place on the wall paper on which to scrawl pictures of cows and houses and trees.

His cows and houses and elephants weren't worthy of displaying in art exhibits, perhaps, but they were good enough to indicate that Delbert had some ability in this field.

As he grew older, Delbert, who is now in the tenth grade in high school, continued to draw everything that caught his fancy. He even solved the question of what to give for Christmas presents by the use of pen and pencil. Now he's become so attached to his hobby that he's decided to continue drawing the rest of his life. Six months ago he started taking lessons preparing to be a commercial designer.

Delbert has been winning prizes at exhibitions such as the Y. M. C. A. pet and hobby show for several years. A year ago he entered some of his material in the state fair competition for amateurs between the ages of 13 and 18 years and won two first place prizes.

At the state fair this year he did even better. The ship, pictured in the upper right and the state capitol drawings both won first premiums and the capitol drawing also received the sweepstakes prize as the best article in the entire class. The pencil drawing of Lindbergh also is another of his recent works.

It is interesting to note that Delbert doesn't sketch in the lines first for his pen and ink work. He works rapidly too'—the capitol drawing having taken him but two hours and the ship only an hour.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Jackson, 1400 Cheyenne street.

"WHY SHOULD'NT I BE HAPPY?"

Not An Ache or Pain Now. Miller's Herb Extract has Proven the Master of Another Case of Indigestion, Constiguation, Kidney Trouble and General Run Down Condition.

"I am indeed a happy woman to know that I have at last found a medicine that is absolutely reliable and all that it is claimed to be and more. Miller's Hefb Extract has worked wonders for me in a surprisingly short time. Why only a short time ago I was in a dreadful condition from constipation and a very gassy stomach; also a very bad kidney disorder which caused my feet to swell. But since taking only three bottles of Miller's Herm Extract I feel better than I have in years," said Mrs. Sarah Baruer, who resides at 315 So. 9th St. Lincoln, Nebr. in a recent conversation with the special representative.

MRS. SARAH BRAUER.

As she continued her story Mrs. Brauer said it certainly is nice to be without aches or pains and to be able to eat such things as you like without any suffering afterward. And that is just what I am doing. Before I started taking your Herb Extract I was unable to eat scarcely anything unless it caused me great pain and badly bloated feeling afterwards. I think the most of this trouble was caused or aggravated by a case of chronic constipation, which had been with me over a period of a good many years. It seems that my kidneys were also infected and from this kidney disorder, I suppost my feet and lower limbs would swell very badly at times. I had gotten to the point where it was just agony fo rme to drag around, and I was losing in strength and vigor all the time. So I started the Herb Extract remedy and what a blessing it has proven to me. Since taking only three bottles of this great medicine my ailments are all a thing of the past. Constipation has been permanently corrected; never suffer any more from that bloated gassy feeling after meals. My kidneys seem to be in excellent order and the swelling in my feet and lower limbs has vanished with the rest of m yailments. I feel 100% better than I have felt in a long, long time; and it is Herb Extract that has made this wonderful improvement possible. As I said in the beginning I am a very happy woman to know that I can at least enjoy good health in my later years by the assistance of such a wonderful medicine as I have found Herb Extract to be."

It is quick results every sufferer wants and Herb Extract brings results over night as thousands of statements, similar to the above from grateful users indicate. This remarkable preparation contains herbs, leaves and barks that promote gastric juices that are necessary to regulate bowel action and insure good health.

For sale in Lincoln by HARLEY DRUG COMPANY, local headquarters for this great medicine. Special price: $1.00 per bottle; 3 bottles, $2.75; 6 bottles, $5.25; add 10c per bottle for postage and packing when ordering by mail.—Adv.

CRETE, Neb., Sept. 28—The public school teachers were honored guests at a combined meeting of the Woman's association and the Missionary Society of the Congregational church on Tuesday. Taylor, president of the Woman's association, presided during a brief business meeting of that organization. The missionary department then took charge of the program. Mrs. George Dunlap read a selection exemplifying the joy of the giver and Mrs. W. H. Ferguson sang the prayer song "Hear Us As We Pray." This was followed by a little playlet, which was planned and written by Mrs. E. B. Dean. It presented in a very entertaining way, the new educational missionary project," The Guest Book." Those taking part were F. B. Mickle, Andrew Ireland, Mrs. George Dunlap, Mrs. W. S. Collett, Mrs. J. E. Two policmen were on hand and proceeded to make arrests both for real and imagined offenses. The culprits must then pay their fines by entertaining the assembled court or be thrown into jail. The club president, Mrs. Clyde Knight, was the first criminal arrested and paid her fine by playing a piano solo. Mrs. Glenn Jelinek and Miss Alice Boekel paid theirs by singing a duet; Miss Helen Graham, with a vocal solo, while Mrs. Ed Wilding preferred being an auctioneer to a prisoner. Proof of Oakland Value Superiority

The following facts were obtained from a comparison of the Oakland All-American Six with 20 other medium-priced automobiles. All told, 878 individual comparisons were made. Of these, Oakland proved to be distinctly superior in 451 or 51.37 per cent. The 20 cars combined were at best equal to Oakland on 382 or 43.50 per cent. And 13 of the 20 were higher-priced than Oakland.

WHEELBASE Only one car as low-priced as Oakland has a wheelbase as long as Oakland's, which is 117 inches. That car requires a turning circle to the left of 42 feet as compared with Oakland's 36 feet. Six higher-priced cars have shorter wheelbases.

PISTON DISPLACEMENT Oakland's 228 cubic inch piston displacement is greater than 12 of the 20 cars in its price field. Of the 8 remaining cars, 7 are much higher priced than Oakland.

G-M-R CYLINDER HEAD Only Oakland and one other car in the field use the G-M-R cylinder head. Sixteen have no type of non-detonating cylinder head whatsoever, although 11 of the 16 are more expensive to buy than Oakland.

RUBBER ENGINE MOUNTING

Only Oakland in the entire field employs rubber "biscuit" insulators. While others claim rubber mountings, none offers such resilience and permanent freedom from vibration as Oakland.

HARMONIC BALANCER Only Oakland and one other car in the field have the Harmonic Balancer. Of 13 using some other device, 11 are higher priced than Oakland. Oakland's crankshaft is fully counter-weighted. The crankshafts in nine higher-priced cars are not counterweighted at all.

CRANKCASE VENTILATION

While most cars in the field have crankcase ventilation, only Oakland and one other, according to available information, have any method for cleaning the air. Six have not, although three of the six are higher-priced than Oakland.

CROSS-FLOW RADIATOR

Only Oakland in the entire field has the Cross-Flow Radiator or anything similar to it. All other cars use the down-flow radiator, this despite the fact that 13 of the 20 are higher-priced than Oakland.

BRAKES Only Oakland and one other car in its field use the fine type of brakes which Oakland employs. And no car in the field equals Oakland's 290 square inches of brake band area. Oakland's separate emergency brake operates on the transmission. Seven cars in the field have no separate emergency brakes, although three of them exceed Oakland in price.

FISHER BODY Only Oakland and two other cars in the field offer bodies by Fisher. And one of the two is nearly $100 higher in price than Oakland. Of the 18 cars which have less-known bodies, 11 are priced above the All-American Six.

Ragged Showing In Annual Clash

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers caught a tartar Saturday in a fighting band of freshman football players who battled Coach Dana X. Bible's regulars to a 12-0 score in the annual varsity-frosh game played at Memorial stadium. A crowd of 6,000 spectators watched the contest.

While Coach "Choppy" Rhodes' frosh failed to uncover much in the way of a sustained offense, they were in there to give the regulars a battle and they accomplished that very thing, staging a last ditch fight which stopped the varsity on all but two occasions.

"C" Team In Spotlight.

With the frosh making a splendid showing in the regulation contest, the "C" team of the varsity squad grabbed the spotlight by scoring two touchdowns against the yearlings in the last 15 minutes of a 30-minute additional scrimmage staged as an aftermath to the varsity-frosh tussle. The third-stringers, in fact, offered the most polished presentation of the Bible offense on display Saturday afternoon, mixing aerial play with a driving attack which twice swept up the field and across the frosh goal line.

Claude Rowley and Vic Scherzinger scored the varsity touchdowns during the 60 minutes of continuous football designated as the regular game, "Red" Young and Bud McBride crossed the freshman goal in the 30-minute additional scrimmage which wound up the afternoon drill.

Many Gridders in Action.

Coach Dana X. Bible used over three full teams during the afternoon game, while Freshman Coach Rhodes made use of a like amount of first-year material. The ragged showing of the varsity in preseason competition indicates that the regulars must get down to serious business this week if the Southern Methodists are to be stopped in the season inaugural next Saturday, while the fine performance of the freshmen assures the varsity of plenty of spirited competition in preparing for the season's games.

The ragged showing by the varsity Saturday consisted of the usual trouble which trails varsity teams in freshman contests. Fumbles, confused signals and faulty timing cost yards, but there was enough versatility of play in evidence to indicate that when the Cornhuskers of 1929 do start "clicking," the resulting brand of football will be pleasing to Nebraska followers.

Varsity Strong On Defense.

Among the bright spots in the annual skirmish with the frosh was the varsity defense against aerial play. While the yearlings did not place much reliance on forward passes, the Cornhuskers succeeded in tossing a wet blanket around a majority of the attempts.

Coach Bible's regulars, on the other hand, reached into their bag of tricks for the best organized demonstration of early season passing that has been displayed by a Cornhusker team in several seasons. Forward passes set up the pins for the two touchdowns scored in the regulation game, while an aerial flip paved the way for one touchdown and an interception made possible the second counter in the 30-minute appendage.

Center Candidates Deliver.

Football fans who were concerned regarding the center situation on the Nebraska squad also had an occasion to breath easier after the Saturday exhibition. The four center candidates performed in fine style, Maasdam, Morrison, Rhea and Bauer taking turns at the pivot position and passing the ball in good form.

Other linemen outstanding during the game included George Ray at tackle, Joe Still and Morris Fisher at ends. Still was on the receiving end of a number of forward passes that gained yardage.

First-String Backs.

The first-string backfield which opened the game listed Captain George Farley, Claude Rowley, Harold Frahm and Harold Peaker. Rowley was the punch in this combination, with Farley and Frahm also contributing some nice gains.

Marvin Paul was the bright spot in the "B" backfield and Vic Scherzinger was the big noise for the "C" team. Paul drove through for a couple of first downs, while Scherzinger plunged and passed in a fine fashion.

Mathis At Helm.

Outstanding players in the frosh lineup included Chris Mathis, flashy Tecumseh athlete, who directed the team play of the first string frosh combination. The Tecumseh boy handled the yearlings in good style, in addition to carrying the ball for three first downs.

Roby of Nelson and Staab of Ansley also were numbered among the backfield luminaries, while Ely of Grand Island, Ossowski of Fairbury and Hulbert of Havelock looked good in the line.

Mathis of Tecumseh ran a varsity punt back to the frosh 30-yard line soon after the first kickoff and then combined with Roby of Nelson for a first down before the Cornhusker forwards stopped the drive.

Rowley Goes Across.

The regulars then cut loose with a varied attack which included a 21-yard aerial gain, Rowley to Frahm, to bring the ball to the frosh 37-yard line. Rowley ran the end for 30 yards and, after three plays, carried the ball across for the first touchdown.

Mathis again headed a freshman drive after receiving the kickoff, but the yearlings failed to make consistent gains and the quarter ended with Rowley shooting a 13-

MUSTANG TEAM HAS CLOSE CALL

S. M. U. Barely Able Pull Out 13 to 13 Tie With Howard-Payne.

BY GEORGE WHITE.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 28—(Special)—Herewith is chronicled, more or less, what they did and didn't in the little matter of a decisionless deadlock in Ownby stadium this afternoon when Howard Payne's gayly striped Yellow Jackets paid their traditional visit to Mr. Ray Morrison's Mustangs out at S. M. U. As a matter of record, the score was 13-13, but the tabulation is something else again, as no doubt citizens of Brownwood will attest. In fact, certain fans were willing to proclaim the score as 13-13 in favor of Howard Payne.

Some 3,500 fans, well-paid for their hot afternoon, know pretty well what happened. Many others are no doubt wondering just that and it is difficult to answer without some embarrassment to the vaunted Ponies, who are hardly accustomed to such abruptness despite the unpleasant festivities of one week ago, when Denton's grid luminaries left their impress in no uncertain manner. Perhaps the two matinees are considerably parallel.

Jackets at Their Best.

The Mustangs, saddlebroken by now as a West Texan would state it, found the Jackets at top form for their first tilt of the year. Coach Chaney had them primed and they over-looked little, for within just six minutes after the kickoff Gibbs picked a Pony pass out of the air and started for Brownwood with the ball. Ninety-eight yards he legged it and nobody got close enough to get dust in his eyes. This Gibbs may not be the fastest man on the squad, and they say he isn't, but he could have carried a basket of peaches along for lunch had the peaches been available.

Cornhuskers Tuned Up for Taming of Mustangs.

Mustangs First On Husker Slate

Southern Methodist U. From Dallas, Tex., Tackles Nebraska U. This Weekend In Opening Game.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers will embark on their 1929 football campaign next Saturday, opening with one of the toughest assignments confronting any major eleven in the present season of collegiate football. The Scarlet and Cream tackles Southern Methodist university—a leading team in southern grid circles and which will have the advantage of two early games before meeting the Nebraskans.

Not One "Breather" Game.

Confronted with the task of preparing a team for three intersectional battles which appear one-two-three on the football slate, Coach Dana X. Bible and his aides have left no stone unturned in their effort to rush the Huskers into readiness for the strenuous assignment.

Early in the season Coach Bible made it plain the Cornhuskers will "point" for no particular game this fall, but "play each contest as it comes along on the schedule." The busy schedule, which allows no "breathers," has factored in helping the Nebraska skipper arrive at this decision for where could the emphasis be placed on a football card which includes games with three intersectional opponents and five conference members?

Mustangs Are Real Goods.

Southern Methodist university, the first team to appear at Memorial stadium this season, is rated as one of the most spectacular teams in American football. The Mustangs, always a brilliant team, made their big splurge last season when they battled the Army to a 14-12 score at West Point.

In the game with the Cadets, the Mustangs cut loose with a series of forward and lateral passes which made the game one of the most spectacular of the season. Two forward passes, which netted a 60-yard gain, scored the first touchdown after four minutes of play, while the second score was the result of a series of cleverly executed lateral flips. Costly fumbles presented the Army with an opportunity to score both its counters and the Cadets were halting a 55-yard advance as the timer's pistol ended the game.

New Brand of Football.

While the S. M. U. game will give Cornhusker football fans a chance to see a new brand of football, it will also provide grid enthusiasts an opportunity to start the season with plenty of thrills. Ray Morrison, former Vanderbilt athlete and Mustang cach, is rated as the most daring coach in American football. His teams often throw 50 per cent passes in the gamble for touchdowns and their success is shown by their record.

A veteran line is the boast of the Dallas collegians this fall. The same set of forwards which stopped the Army attack last fall is being counted upon by Texas fans to halt the rushes of Coach Dana X. Bible's Cornhuskers.

All-American Guard.

"Choc" Sanders, Southern Methodist captain and all-American guard on the New York Sun selections is the bulwark of the line, the Indian playing his third year on the team. Sanders weighs 208 pounds.

Hammon, third-year tackle and 193-pounder, is another strong player in the Mustang forward wall.

The wings feature a pair of clever pass-grabbers in Long and Koontz. Both have the height and agility to fit well into the aerial attack.

Power In Mustang Backfield.

The Southern Methodist backfield this year combines power with the usual bag of tricks. According to Ed Weir, Nebraska end coach who was in Dallas a few weeks this summer, the Mustang squad includes two backs that resemble Blue Howell in the matter of build. They are Ira Hopper, 200-pounder and a third-year veteran, and "Dutch" Winters, sophomore who balances the beam at 206 pounds.

The Mustangs regard the Nebraska contest as the headliner on their 1929 schedule and have been prepping for it in much the same fashion that the Cornhuskers several years ago steamed up for their opening game with Illinois.

All Dallas Wrought Up.

"While I was in Dallas last summer, all I heard from the football fans was talk about the Nebraska game," says Ed Weir. "They have planned three or four special trains, in addition to a fleet of busses, the delegation including not only Southern Methodist representatives but also friends of Coach Bible coming to Lincoln to witness the first game of the Bible-coached Cornhuskers."

Just what lineup Coach Bible will start against the Mustangs is problematical. During the past week the forward wall has seen a number of changes, while the choice of backfield starters probably will depend on the physical condition of some of the cripples as the opening game approaches.

Sloan, Witte Injured.

Probable starting choices will find Captain Farley and Harold Frahm at two positions, with the other places resting between Witte, Sloan, Peaker and Rowley. Sloan and Witte are nursing practice injuries which may keep them on the sidelines.

Frank Prucka and Morris Fisher, letter ends, have been getting the nod in most practices the past week, while Raymond Richards has been a steady performer at one tackle post, with George and Marion Broadstone dividing time at the other position. Elmer Greenberg has been holding down one guard, with "Dutch" Koster seeing most service at the other. Felber Maasdam has been the first-string center in scrimmages this fall, with Paul Morrison snapping the ball back for the "B" string.

REDS AHEAD ON BUNCHED BLOWS

Cincinnati Takes Picks On Cubs' Ace; Wins By 5-3 Score.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Pete Donohue was a better pitcher this afternoon than Pat Malone, so the Reds beat the Cubs, 5 to 3.

Five of the Reds fell on Malone for singles in the fifth inning before he could get a man out and right there the game went bye-bye.

Rain interrupted the game in the eighth inning, causing a delay of 15 minutes. Two of the Chicago runs came on a homer by Cuyler in the fourth, the ball bounding over the right field screen. The score:

Dallas Steers Win Dixie Series Game

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 28—(U. P.) Playing before a Saturday afternoon crowd of 10,000, the Dallas Steers, pennant winners of the Texas league, today defeated the Birmingham Barons, champions of the Southern association, 4 to 2, in the third game of the series to determine the baseball championship of the south. Birmingham has won two games and Dallas one.

Birmingham threatened in the eighth inning when Baron runners were perched on every base with non out. George Connolly, Dallas hurler, relieved Whitey Glazner, starting pitcher. He fanned the first man and caused two more to pop out. The teams will play here again tomorrow. Score:

Brass Tacks By Cy Sherman

Names Nation's Best. Snubbing the Huskers. That Faulty Memory. "Big Ten" Knows Better.

ELSEWHERE in this issue of The Star, Grantland Rice, one of sportdom's best known commentators, nominates 20 or more gridiron aggregations as the strongest in the nation. I confess personal chagrin because of the fact that Nebraska is not included in Mr. Rice's list.

Failure of the New York scrivener to see the Cornhuskers while scanning the gridiron horizon probably will be a pain in the neck to Nebraska followers in general, most of whom have a profound belief that Cornhusker football, year in and year out, is quite equal to that at any institution in the pigskin realm.

Nevertheless, Mr. Rice has given our Huskers the frigid shoulder and the icy stare, so there must be some reason as a basis for his inability or refusal to rate Nebraska as belonging in college football's most select circle.

POSSIBLY the New York writer was present at that aggravating exhibition of last November when a powerful Nebraska eleven tossed to the four winds a golden opportunity to humble the Army and, meantime, one Christian Cagle and his mates rambled to victory at the Cornhuskers' expense.

Possibly Mr. Rice recalls another sour display on the part of Nebraska's 1928 team in which the mighty Huskers were held to a 0-0 tie by the Panthers of Pitt U. and, to make the pill more bitter, failed to negotiate as much as one first down against a physically inferior foe.

Possibly Mr. Rice isn't expecting much of the 1929 Cornhuskers, being cognizant of the fact that Nebraska is on the mark this season with a varsity squad pretty well riddled by graduations, with a new coach who must get along with a brief practice period of three weeks in drilling his pupils in the intracacies of an entirely changed system of football—a system which promises satisfactory results but at least suggests doubt that the Huskers will be at their best for the strenuous tests coming so early in the 1929 campaign.

OTHER possible viewpoints on the part of the eastern scribe might be mentioned, yet I am constrained to at least drop a hint that Mr. Rice has a treacherous memory. Nor is he exactly fair in measuring Nebraska's prowess by pursuing a line of reasoning which only takes into account the disappointments of 1928.

Speaking for myself, I suggest that a true measure of Nebraska football is impossible unless one reviews the accomplishments of Cornhusker teams over a long stretch of years. Viewed from this angle, I have a firm conviction that Nebraska deserves a Grade A rating and that it need not doff its hat to any institution in the game.

Reverting to Mr. Rice and his faulty memory, I recall that the New York writer was present at Urbana, Ill., a few years ago on a day when the crimson-jerseyed Huskers devoted their time and talents to the task of tackling one Red Grange. Their efforts in that direction were crowned with so much success that while the celebrated Illinois redhead was being flopped with great frequency on the flat of his shoulder blades, never making so much as an inch in the general direction of Nebraska's goal line, the Huskers were compiling a decisive triumph. The net results, to be more specific, were 14 to 0, the nothing being Zuppke, Grange & Co.'s share of the spoils.

MR RICE, it seems, had come west for the special purpose of getting a first-hand glimpse of the redhead running wild on a lime-lined gridiron and the shock of seeing Mr. Grange many times prone on his back so upset the eastern scrivener that when he returned to his Gotham haunts, the most cheerful word he was able to say concerning the victorious Nebraskans was to rate them as one of the best accoutred teams it had been his privilege to inspect; the touchdowns achieved by Frank Dailey and Choppy Rhodes and the persistent smothering of the redhead were secondary in importance to the flaring scarlet of Cornhusker shirts.

But the Rice of the present moment evidently is less provincial than the Rice of 1925. Whereas, four years ago, he evidently derived nothing but chagrin from Nebraska's defeat of Illinois, doubtless viewing it as a fluke, he has broadened his conceptions until he gives the Big Ten circle, the south and the far west equal rating with the east in making up the list of his top-notchers. This broadening process perhaps may continue until Mr. Rice can detect more prowess

YANKS THUMPED IN BRACE GAMES

New York Outfit Victim of Twin Defeat By Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(U. P.)—The Washington Senators thumped the New York Yanks twice today, winning the first game, 6-4, and the second, 6-3, Firpo Marberry ringing up his eighteenth victory of the year in the nightcap. Myer connected for a homer in the first game with two on, while Joe Judge put across one in the second.

Sherid allowed the Senators only one hit up to the fifth in the opener, but the Senators drove him to the showers in the fifth, plating across five runs on three singles and a homer, Reimach finishing. Sad Sam Jones held the Yanks safe after the fourth, allowing but two hits and a run, the Yanks getting one in the third and two in the fourth.

Marberry allowed the Yanks only seven hits in the night-cap, while the Senators hit Rhodes freely. Cronin, Senator shortstop, accepted 13 chances in the first game and eight in the second without a bobble and cracked out two singles and two doubles in five times up. Score of first game:

Star Against Star In World Series By Macks and Cubs

Great Men of Diamond Sport Now Have Chance Prove Real Greatness

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Is Simmons a better outfielder than Wilson? Does Foxx really outrank the National league field as the leading first baseman? How good is Cochrane in comparison with catchers in the rival league?

All At Same Time.

It isn't often that you get the all-star ball players of the country under scrutiny at one and the same time. Usually these moot points have to be settled in prvisacy with the customary punch on the nose but this time the eye itself will make the settlement and the nose can have a rest. The world series between the Cubs and Athletics will feature as many as seven of the 10 or 11 men who figure to break into any all-star team selected.

Hornsby at second base can't miss. He hasn't Critz's speed and hocus-pocus stuff in the field, but neither has Critz a half dozen other things that go to make Hornsby the great man he is, even when beyond the flush of youth.

Grove is just as certain to get a 100 percent vote as one of the pitchers and I presume that Bush of the Cubs is entitled to the other place.

Simmons Favorable.

Perhaps both Simmons and Wilson aren't due to make the team but, in any case, the one left over would get the outfield utility job. Which one would that be? You can write your own prescription on that, although general opinion will be inclined to regard Simmons as the better man. The real tip-off, however, will come in the series where they can be compared, man to man and move for move.

Nobody, for example, would have named Jimmy Wilson for an all-star team after the 1928 games. He was the leading catcher of the league before the series and barely the leading catcher of the Cardinals after it was over. The big series is as good a place as any to decide whether a man really belongs or not.

All Eyes on Cochrane.

For this reason, everybody will be watching Cochrane. Here is a catcher who is supposed to have everything — speed, arm, brains, punch, enthusiasm. They not only compare him to Kling, Bresnahan, Ewing and other immortals; some of them claim that he is the greatest of all ages.

Will he fool them and fumble his great chance? It doesn't seem possible. Cochrane has yet to fall down in any pinch and it isn't likely that he will do it when the biggest of them all comes along.

If Hartnett is ready, which isn't probable, a comparison between the two stand-out catchers will be more than interesting. It will be a little world's series of its own.

Many Disagreed.

Foxx got Mister Ruth's approval as the all-American first baseman but many disagreed and some of them rather violently. James can smite that baseball but he isn't the most modish of first basemen, so the deep students have decided that Billy Terry, of the Giants, was and is a more plausible candidate. Be that as it might, Foxx is no worse than very good at anything he does and remains, per se, as one of front row names in the group portrait of 1929 celebrities.

The rear row will have a few representatives—Cuyler, Stephenson, Haas, Dykes, etc.—in this series, too. In fact, the affair has everything in the way of talent; all it needs is a few dramatic values. If it gets these, it ought to be a wow.

GARDEN GRIPPED BY GREAT URGE

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 —Having discovered the other evening that the only fighter who really loses is the fighter who isn't present when the help is paid, the Herr Schmeling is soon to emerge from his hiding place under the sauerkraut and rejoin the situation before somebody gives the heavyweight title away for 10 profit-sharing soap wrappers.

The Herr Schmeling left us in a dudgeon some time ago, vowing ne'er to return, but that was before Sharkey slapped Loughran slue-footed the other evening, causing the Reilly-Jacob-McCarney team to decide on their new watchword: Out of the sauerkraut by Christmas.

They figure on digging him out within a month, as a matter of fact, and the Herr Jacobs is to be despatched next week to Germany with some of the best sauerkraut diggers of modern times.

Big Money In Sight.

The answer is that there is a half million dollars waiting for Schmeling here in a Sharkey fight, if they ever can get him unwound from the red tape of his multifarious difficulties. This might not turn out to be one of the grapples of the generation, but only a chump would deny that today it stands as the fight of the year.

They could pay off with the Muldoon-Tunney trophy on this one without asking for a further report from the sub-committee on public morals and the half-million it would draw would give the Garden its first real winner since the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago.

That Real "Natural"

This fight in fact looks so "natural" that it could be laid out by an undertaker and still live.

Sharkey has been built up bigger than a patrolman's foot with his three-round knockout of Loughran Thursday night. He has Mr. Muldoon's approval as the American champion and, as for John J. Sapps-In-The-Street, scion of the socially prominent Saps-In-The-Street, the Sharkey gent can have the world's title and welcome.

There is, in fact, only one man they figure belongs in the same ball park and that man is the Herr Schmeling. When they get that way about an idea, the only thing to do is to lock the gates and refuse to sell any more tickets. You have, in brief, a killing.

Saving the Big Shot.

The Garden spent all day yesterday trying to connive its way into another series of eliminations, just to be sure that no mistake was made in this first series. Actually, however, they only were after some haircut money with these, meantime saving Sharkey and Schmeling for the clean-up position in the battling order.

But the Herr Muldoon, being a man without the finer instincts of this life, spoiled everything by blandly announcing that everybody had already been eliminated except Sharkey, Schmeling and Scott.

Scott? Where have I heard that name before? It must have been that time I became confused while looking for a vacant elevator shaft and wandered into the boxing commission offices by mistake.

Mr. Scott Plenty Haughty.

Yes, the Herr Scott is very much "in" and he will stay in there until they catch him in a run-down play between the bases and firmly tag him out. Fillup is to be tagged, of course, but he is particular about who does it. The Garden offered him Maloney, Von Porat or Griffiths yesterday and he sneered almost brutally. There is no money in being tagged by that kind, so it looks as though Schmeling is elected. He was "it" the last time they were playing, anyhow.

HIGH GRIDDERS IN FULL SWING

Pigskin In for Thumping In All Corners of Husker Realm.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Football will be in full swing in Nebraska high school circles this week, with virtually every team in the state in action on the Cornhusker prep gridirons.

The feature of the week's slate is the entrance of the city teams into the 1929 title chase. Every metropolitan eleven is scheduled for action, several locking horns with major opponents in opening encounters.

Lincoln high, defender of the mythical title, will journey to Hastings for the opening test. With an all-veteran team, Coach Harold Browne's capital city squad appears in a good position to retain the championship. However, the Hastings Tigers may prove a tough hurdle to clear. Coach Dwight Thomas has a well-balanced squad and will have the advantage of one game's experience before tackling the Brownies.

Tech Perking Up.

Omaha Tech, also in with fine prospects, will have its hands full at Lexington, unless pre-season signs fail. The two teams battled to a scoreless tie at Omaha last fall and the Minute Men are out to lift the Maroons scalp this season. Lexington is particularly hard to down on its home field.

Omaha Central opens the new conference by entertaining St. Joseph Central. The Missourians had a fine season last year and are optimistic this fall.

Omaha South will invade Iowa to play Washington at Cedar Rapids, while Abraham Lincoln crosses the river to meet Omaha north. Benson will visit Thomas Jefferson.

Prepsters at Plattsmouth.

Creighton Prep will be the favorite over Plattsmouth, the latter squad lacking size and experience this year. Weeping Water travels to Omaha for a game with the Nebraska Deaf.

With Lincoln performing at Hastings, capital city fans will have several home games to inspect. Jackson high, with a light team this year, entertains Crete; Adams plays at Bethany; Lincoln Reserves meet College View and Cathedral travelse to Wymore.

The Havelock Engineers draw credit for planning the first night football game in Nebraska high school circles. Coach Paul Delaporte will send his Shoptown eleven into action against Teachers college high in the first game under the flood lights.

Tekamah at Fremont.

The appearance of Tekamah at Fremont will provide fans in that section with a high school game of high caliber. Coach H. A. Greutzmacher is reputed to have a fine squad at Tekamah this year, while Coach Clyde Knapp of Fremont also is in with an improved outlook this fall.

The Tecumseh-Beatrice annual argument will feature the southeast Nebraska card. Tecumseh won the game last year, but Coach D. J. Hamilton has a more promising squad at the Gage county seat this fall and Orange and Black prospects for victory are brighter than last season, when Chris Mathis ran wild to upset the Beatrice beans. Mathis is a member of the University of Nebraska frosh squad this fall.

Auburn at Falls City.

Auburn and Falls City meet on the latter's gridiron in another southeast Nebraska classic.

The Cozad-Gothenburg clash will bring together two leading central Nebraska teams. Broken Bow at Kearney and Chappell at North Platte also are a pair of headliners.

CATHEDRAL HI ON MARK FOR WYMORE

The Cathedral high eleven is rapidly getting into shape for the season's first game and will play Wymore this weekend at Wymore. Wymore team showed up well in its game with College View, losing by a single point.

Miller is doing the kicking and averaging 35 to 40 yards. He is also doing his share of the ballugging. Captain McConnell is trying his hand at backfield work this week with fair success. He is doing virtually all of the passing and is also contributing gains by his plunging ability.

The line problem is not as serious as the backfield at present, according to Father Kenney, the tutor for the squad. He hopes to round his team into shape in time for next Friday's tussle.

Canadian Golf Title To Long Island Girl

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Miss Helen Hicks of the Inwood club, Long Island, N. Y. captured the twenty-fourth annual Canadian women's open golf championship here today when she defeated Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., 7 up and 6 to play, in a 36-hole final match.

Miss Hicks went into the final round with a lead of five up at the end of the first 18 holes as a result of brilliant golf in the morning round. The afternoon cards were:

Miss Quier, out ..4 6 4 6 4 3 5 4 5—41
Miss Hicks, in....4 9 4
Miss Quier, in....4 5 4

The Way Side Tee.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

Tommy McNamara, one of the soundest and smartest golfers of his day, when he was playing competitive golf, brought up an important point not long ago. 'Nearly every professional teacher understands," remarked Tommy, that nearly every average golfer rarely gets the correct feel of using his hands, and arms in swinging the club head. They all know that most golfers get entirely too much body action in the swing, to the point where the body dominates the hands and arms that should take almost entire charge of the swinging. When I was teaching golf, before taking up the business side of the game, I used to work out a system along this line—to make the pupil stand stiff-legged and keep his body entirely out of the swing—to make him hit the ball with his hands and arms without moving his body. Of course, in any good swing the body must keep its balance with the action of hands, arms and club head.

"But I found in this way I could get many pupils to take over the right idea where other methods failed. It isn't a bad idea at times to keep the body and legs still, out of the swing, and just use hands and arms in the swing."

I still recall from many years ago Walter J. Travis standing by a dozen or so practice balls and flicking away at these with a brassie. He was only hitting the ball 80 or 90 yards, but the idea was to build up the habit of using his hands, and arms, to handle and control the head of the club. He used no body action at all in this type of practice. He merely wanted to get the right feel of hands and club head.

There is no question but that too much body action ruins most of the swings that 90 per cent of the golfers use. Body tension prevents the hands and arms from swinging the club and the first move must be to work out some system that will help to correct this evil. The body is touching the club in any way. It should have nothing to do with swinging the club, except as it works in with the use of hands and arms, keeping its place, or holding its balance.

The first step in keeping the body out of the swing is to be sure that the muscular system is relaxed as much as possible. Once tension sets in, it is almost impossible for any one, even a star, to control body action. It will either lurch in ahead of the hands or it will remain rigid and prevent any smooth flow of the club head on its way through the ball.

For some reason the human body has abnormal aspirations in regard to taking full charge of the swing and hitting hte ball a mile. Endless failure hasn't discouraged the torso in the least. It keeps on trying, regardless of constant failure, and it will always take charge of the swing unless the golfer insists upon having his hands and arms do the dictating. When he moves in this direction he will begin to get somewhere. He will begin to have a feel of club-head control, the feel of swinging in the right way. It is difficult to think of more than one thing at a time in swinging a club, or in starting a swing, and this about as useful a thing to concentrate on as anything one can dig out of his mind.

Golf is the only game in the world that could have known such a showing of ex-champions. In nearly all other sports the ex-champion, as a rule, is soon doomed. At the best, there will be only one ex-champion making a strong showing such as Mrs. Mallory did, or Bill Tilden. But at Pebble Beach there were Findlay Douglas, who won in 1898; Cahndler Egen, who won in 1904 and 1905; Francis Ouimet, who won in 1914; Chick Evans who led the pack in 1916; Jess Sweetser, who won in 1922; Bobby Jones, and then George Von Elm. Here was a championship where two of the semi-finalists went back to 1905 and 1914 as titleholders. In what other sport could the champion of 1904 have reached the last four twenty-five years later, playing brilliantly? This is what Chandler Egan did, Francis Ouimet, ten years younger, but still thirty-six, played as fine golf as he has shown in years.

It took the new champion to stop him, a long, straight-hitting opponent who was riding the crest. Findlay Douglas, the 1898 champion, did not enter, but he was playing much better golf around Cypress Point and Pebble Beach than many of those who did. The U. S. G. A. president, who learned his game at Id St. Andrews, is still a star amateur who is always hard to beat. He plays steadily under 80 over any sort of test.

Findlay Douglas is among those who believe that the new ball will help the veteran in every way. He has been playing it for some weeks in preference to the smaller, heavier ball now in use. Hagen remarked to him some time ago that the new ball would add ten years to his tournament play. It doesn't call for such hard-hitting power. It is easier to get into the air from a close lie and will result in few flubbed shots. During the championship Max Behr played Cypress Point with his floater in a strong wind. Cypress Point, near Pebble Beach, is probably the most spectacular course in the world, and about as hard as Pebble Beach from the back tees. Almost as hard, any way. Yet, using the floater, Max Behr was around in 72, and his floater is a larger, lighter ball than the new ball that will be adopted around 1931. Findlay Douglas is confident that he can get more distance with the new ball than he can with the present brand, and many who are not as young and strong as they were at twenty, twenty-five or thirty will find the same truth. The championship at Pebble Beach had something on the way of inspiration for both the young and old—through Johnny Goodman and Lawson Little on one side, at the ages of twenty and eighteen, and such ex-champions as Eagen and Ouimet on the other side. Here was further proof of a game that belongs to all ages. Even in the championship lists.

'Sparky Adams, quarter, is lost to the North Carolina State team because of scholastic difficulties.

GLOOM HANGS OVER CAMPUS

Students' Pranks Cause Death Nebraska Boy At Ft. Collins.

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—A pall of gloom hangs over the Colorado Agricultural college campus here and the historic freshman track and field day may be virtually abolished as the result of the death of Leo J. Green, 20, of Gordon, Nebraska, a freshman.

Green, an unusually sturdy youth, incurred fatal injuries in the first activity of his college career—the freshman-sophomore tug-of-war. He was selected to fill the coveted position of "anchor man" on the freshman team. Contrary to rules, the heavy rope was looped about his body.

As the heavier sophomores dragged the freshmen through the water pit on the football field, while 2,000 college men and coeds looked on, the rope tightened about Green's body. Two of his ribs were broken, resulting in peritonitis. An operation failed to save his life.

President Charles A. Lory believes the school has outgrown the 22-year-olid event.

"I will advocate the virtual abolishment in its entirety of the annual track and field day," he said.

SIWANOY.

A screamer down the fairway
Without a slice or hook—
Second shot's a pippin
Far beyond the brook.
Stops stone dead beside the pin.—
Makes me laugh—tee-hee!
That's the way to start a game
With a birdie three—

Second hole is harder—
Five hundred yards—and more.
Splendid drive, approach is on,
Two putts—Oh, Boy! Par four—
Number three's a hummer,
Mashie shot goes true—
Stops two feet short—and down in one
And grab a birdie—two!

Six is just a mashie pitch
Across a gully rough—
All I need to do is give
The ball a little stuff—
Keep the head down, stiff left arm,
High the pellet flew—
Dropped just right, a tap and get Another birdie two.

But why go into detail—
When all is said and done
I never missed a single shot—
On 'leven got a one—
Total score was sixty-three,
I kept it in my head—
That's the kind of golf I play

FOOTBALL STRENGTH.

The listing of strong looking football teams is longer this season than it has been for many years. With no intention of offering a complete list those teams hard to beat will include Stanford, U. S. C., Pittsburgh, West Virginia, Princeton, N. Y. U., Army, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota. Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Florida, Tennessee, Harvard, Navy and Carnegie Tech.

Yet by the last week in October at least half of this collection will be among the beaten. There seems to be a better distribution and a wider one of football material through all sections than ever before. This should bring about the keenest football action any season has yet shown. The teams named above will not be the only strong ones. There may be others even stronger. But their strength is pretty well known.

THE FIRST BIG GAMES.

Three of the hardest games booked for next Saturday are Wisconsin-Colgate, Notre Dame-Indiana and U. S. C.-Oregon State. An even harder war might be worked from the Stanford-Oregon game as both are high ranking teams along the Pacific coast. They waste little time swinging into action through that fast moving section. Illinois has a hard game with Kansas and another high class card will bring Nebraska and Southern Methodist together. Southern Methodist at about this same date last fall came within an eyelash of hooking the Army in one of the best games played all fall.

Saturday's schedule is above the average for the first week of October. Texas and Centenary can be included in this list and so can Clemson and Aubur. There will at least be enough action Saturday to give the first clear line on several of the bigger teams.

ANOTHER RECORD.

Football is sure to break and set another record when it comes to the matter of attendance figures. Some expert estimated that 24,000,000 excited souls filed into various arenas last fall. The figures may be lifed to 30,000,000 this season. Several teams will play before 300,000 spectators, or possibly more. There are hundreds of games each Saturday that get little outside notice and yet draw out from 5,000 to 10,000 in the smaller corners of play.

Yale, Stanford, Michigan, Illinois, California, U. S. C., Army, Notre Dame and Pennsylvania will play to enormous crowds where the accommodations are more extended. Urbaoa and Ann Arbor will handle 160,000 when the Army and Harvard move west in November. Getting a ticket to a big game is now harder than making one of the teams.

THE NEEDED CHANGE.

President E. S. Barbard of the American league has announced that baseball's long drawn out season will be shortened considerably next year. As it is now there is another week left to a season that was practically over four weeks ago. The world series should be under way now ,or at least all set for the next day or so. The sporting game in general is demanding more action. There is too much competition for any one sport to loaf along and attempt to pad out the menu. Baseball once was the big card from April to October, but those conditions have changed. There are too many other big cards now.

Million Dollars On Hoof When Classic Starts Oct. 8

Fortunes Tied Up In Player Purchases By Owners of Bruins, A's

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—There will be almost one million dollars worth of human value out there in plain view when the world series gets under way in Chicago on the afternoon of Oct. 8. Mr. Mack alone will produce more than $500,000 worth as the Athletics take the field, for he has been a noted spendthrift during recent years and, if it hadn't been for the fact that he picked up men like Foxx and Dykes for haircut money, he would have virtually a million dollars going out there on the field for him almost every day.

Based On Cost Values.

These estimates, by the way, are made on the reputed cost of players when they came to the two clubs, and not on their estimated value now.

Hornsby and Grove are the most expensive luxuries in the list. No outsider really knows just how much Hornsby's release cost the Cubs. It might have been $100,000, considering the fact that the Cubs were taking a long-term contract at $40,000 a year off Boston's chest. Grove allegedly was purchased from Baltimore for a trick amount, $100,600, or something like that.

This Pair Cost Plenty.

It is obvious, anyhow, that this pair alone cost almost a quarter of the million dollars that will be romping about on the greensward in this series.

Others whose estimated expense didn't come out of the petty cash are:

Simmons, $50,000; Cochrane, $50,000; Hale, $50,000; Boley and Bishop, probably $80,000 together; Earnshaw, probably $30,000; Cuyler, probably $50,000, including Earl Adams, Floyd Scott and money. Emke, $30,000 in players and money; Carlson, $25,000 in the same commodities.

More On the List.

This list takes no account of men like "Bing" Miller, Grimm and Stephenson, obtained in trades, or the many who were purchased for comparatively nominal sums, such as Blake, Bush, English, Hartnett, Malone, Root and Wilson, who was drafted, Cronin, Hass, French, Quinn, Rommel, Walberg and others.

Yes, there will be close to a million dollars on the hoof out there when the bell rings.

CLUBS IN CLASH FOR THIRD PLACE

Redsins Scalp Browns In Opening Game of Crucial Series.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—The Cleveland Indians drew first blood from the St. Louis Browns in the battle for third place by taking today's game 4 to 1.

Walter Miller pitched air-tight ball, although hit hard, and kept the Browns safely in hand. The Tribe knocked Walter Stewart off the mound in the third and continued an effective bombardment of Sam Gray until the curve-baller was removed in the eighth.

Lew Fonseca made three hits to hold his own with Al Simmons in the batting championship derby and Joe Sewell also pickled three effective singles. The Browns hit safely in every inning, but could not score until the eighth. The score:

MEEHAN'S TEAM FLASHES POWER

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(INS)—New York university took a big step toward the national high score honors when the Violet defeated Vermont here this afternoon, 77 to 0.

The game was merely a workout for Coach Chick Mehan's powerful squad and the visiting team failed at any time to threaten.

The Violet scored twice in the first quarter, twice in the second, four times in the third and four times in the final quarter.

While Vermont was regarded as vastly inferior to the Meehan team, the overwhelming score rolled up by the Violet was a surprise and impressed critics who have worried over the stiff schedule the Violets face this fall.

Army Crushes Boston U.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 28—(INS)—Army ushered in the 1929 football season with 26 to 6 victory over Boston university here this afternoon and showed the Army's promises for one of the best teams in years to be well founded.

The West Pointers scored once in the first quarter, twice in the third and once in the final period.

Coach "Biff" Jones said he was elated with the performance of his players this afternoon and encouraged to face the stiff 1929 schedule of the West Pointers, which includes Stanford, Notre Dame and other powerful elevens.

Dartmouth Easy Winner.

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 28—(INS)—Norwich was crushed by a 67 to 0 score here this afternoon as Dartmouth opened its football season. The big Green machine was working brilliantly and in both open field and line plays gave an impressive performance.

The Green tarted with two scores in the first quarter, scored twice in the second period and routed its opponents with four more touchdowns in the third quarter. Hitting at a record mark, Dartmouth added two additional touchdowns in the final period.

Carnegie Tech Downs Bethany.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 28—(INS)—Scoring all their points in the first period, Carnegie Tech defeated the Bethany football team, 21 to 0, today. Carnegie threatened Bethany's goal line on many occasions later in the game, but the home boys held like a stone wall. Flanagan flashed for Carnegie, while Imet and Banker featured for Bethany.

Navy Walks On Denison.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 28—(INS)—Navy romped through Denison here this afternoon in its initial game of the season, 47 to 0. Al Kohlhas, Navy quarterback, figured largely in the Navy's scoring, working with Spring.

Kohlhas carried the first two goals across, after doing the bulk of the running. The third touchdown was made when Spring circled Denison's right end after Kohlhas had carried the ball to the 10-yard line. On a fourth down penalty, Denison got the ball on its own 12-yard line, but a blocked punt gave Navy another touchdown. Toth carried through later for another after a pass from Toth to Clifton had gained 35 yards.

Columbia Trims Middlebury.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(INS)—A half-new Columbia university football team, promising bigger and better things, rolled over a lighter outfit from Middlebury today by a score of 38 to 6.

Hewitt, the Blue and White sophomore flash, from whom great things are expected, made consistent gains around the ends. Stanzyck, Columbia's veteran fullback, scintillated with a number of long runs.

The Vermont lads took a brace in the second half and fought the Columbia heavyweights back from their goal line a half-dozen times. Guarnaccia and Hardy starred for Middlebury.

Buccos Break Up Card Club Streak

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28 — (U. P.) — The six-game winning streak of the St. Louis Cardinals was broken here today when the Pittsburgh Pirates won a slugging contest, 9 to 5. The Pirates drew first blood, knocking Johnson out of the box in the second, scoring three runs on two singles, a double and a triple by Grimes. The Cards came back to tie it in the fifth, knocking out Grimes and scoring four runs on a pass, two singles, two errors and a sacrifice fly. The Pirates clinched the game in the sixth when a pass, two singles and Bartell's triple off Sherdel gave them a winning lead.

Brass Tacks

GETTING down to the "Brass Tacks" of the situation, I feel that the Cornhusker cause merits a slight survey of the record, which suggests that Nebraska football has the habit of doing things in a reasonably big way. It reads, for instance, that in a membership of 22 years in Missouri valley conference company, the Cornhuskers have been the predominant factor; they have spread-eagled their own field more completely than any other institution in any conference in intercollegiate football.

Eastern skeptics have the habit of scoffing at football in the Missouri valley region, but the fellows in the Big Ten never will be caught in that sort of trap. After the tragedy of 1925, Bob Zuppke, for instance, dropped the Huskers much after the fashion that one lets loose of a hot poker, while Northwestern and Chicago, following disastrous experiences with Missouri, were equally agile in wiping the Columbia Tigers off their game slates.

As for Zupp, I feel sure he would be keen to agree with the suggestion that there is something more virile, even deadly, to Cornhusker football than a vermilion jacket.

CONFIDENCE IN CONNIE'S CAMP

Philly Fans Figure That Cubs' Chances Hurt By Defeats.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28—(U. P.)—Philadelphia baseball fans are becoming more and more optimistic as the day draws near when their beloved Athletics meet the Chicago Cubs for the world's championship.

Several things combine to forecast a Philadelphia victory, Philadelphia fans will tell you, not the least of which is the recent poor showing of Joe McCarthy's Cubs in their regular scheduled games.

Since the Boston Braves gave Chicago the pennant, margin by beating the second place Pittsburgh Pirates, the Cubs have won only one game out of five played.

During the same time the Athletics have been winning regularly, showing all the spirit and fight that carried them to their first pennant in fifteen years.

Chicago will lose the "victory habit" in the opinion of Athletic fans, if the Cubs continue at their present pace, allowing the Athletics a psychological advantage that may prove important.

RAGGED SHOWING IN ANNUAL CLASH

yard pass to Still and Captain Farley plunging for five yards more.

The "B" team played the second period, but failed to score, although forcing the play well into freshman territory.

Marrow Back With Punt.

A 30-yard return of a punt by Wally Marrow, an 18-yard off-tackle drive by Marvin Paul and a 10-yard pass, Long to Perry, were the varsity high spots in this quarter.

The third quarter was left in charge of the "C" team and the youngsters did very well. With Vic Scherzinger wading through the frosh for good gains and using his passing arm to perfection the third-stringers chalked up a touchdown.

A 40-yard pass, Scherzinger to Young, paved the way for the touchdown. The forward flip was a beauty and Young was apparently headed for a touchdown until cut down from behind by a speedy freshman. Scherzinger plunged over on the fourth play.

First Team Fails Click.

The first outfit returned to the game in the fourth quarter, but failed to make much of an impression. The backfield was shifted late in the period, Wally Marrow replacing Claude Rowley when the latter was slightly injured.

The regular game was played without intermission, Coaches Bible and Rhodes making frequent substitutions and feeling that the 15 minutes' rest was unnecessary. The day was ideal for the pigskin sport and the coaches ordered 30 minutes more of scrimmage, which the players breezed through without a letup.

"C" Team On the Job.

The "A" team still had difficulty in getting under way during the first half of the extra session. The "C" team, however, was going at top speed. The latter combination had Scherzinger, McBride, Young and Marquis in the backfield, with Byrnes and Morgan at ends; Jenkins and Kroger at tackles, Gilbert and Koster at guards and Rhea and Maasdam dividing time at center.

Scherzinger and Young started the fireworks with a forward pass that was good for 35 yards, Young downnig the oval 20 yards from the goal line.

Young and McBride.

McBride and Young then traded plunges, the latter lugging the ball across for the touchdown. Marquis flipped a pass to McBride for the extra point.

McBride's interception of a frosh pass put the "C" team in a position to score again. Bud planted the oval 25 yards from the goal and carried it across after a series of short plunges and passes. Lineups and summary:

FOLLOWING THE HUSKERS.

Ragged showing by the varsity Saturday will send the Cornhusker training program into high gear this week in preparation for the season opener with Southern Methodist university. Coach Dana X. Bible had the squad in the lecture room for a chalk talk following the Saturday game.

The next public workout will be Wednesday, when the varsity probably will work out against Southern Methodist plays as used by the freshmen.

The rather drab showing of the regulars against the frosh was nothing new to veteran followers of Cornhusker teams. The psychology edge is all with the yearlings and the youngsters invariably make the most of it.

Lettermen on the injured list and unable to get into the Saturday game were "Dutch" Witte, Clair Sloan and Adolph Lewandowski. Sloan and Lewandowski are expected to be in trim for the Southern Methodists, while Witte's return is problematical.

PHILLIES CLING TO FIFTH PLACE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—The Phillies today advanced their winning streak to seven games by taking both ends of a twin bill from the Boston Braves to hold on to fifth place before 10,000 fans at Baker bowl. The scores were 9-8 and 8-6.

The longest winning streak the Phils have had in years enabled the locals to increase their winning column to 70 games, the most battles a Philadelphia team has won since 1917, when the Bakermen finished second.

Tripp Sigman's heavy slugging in the second game was a big help to the locals. He pounded out four safe slaps, one of which was his second home run in the majors, a mighty drive over the screen and stopped by the score board in center. Score of first game:

Lord Charles Provides Proof Miracles Will Happen

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—Plenty of things which come under the general heading of "astonishing," "unbelievable," and "extraordinary" happened out at Pebble Beach while the boys were puttering around to determine who was good looking enough to wear the amateur golf crown of 1929. But none of all the other grotesque happenings compares with the one turned in by Lord Charles Hope of dear ol' Lunnon and other British way-stations.

Over the Cliff.

His ludship stepped on tee No. 18 in the first qualifying round, waggled a bit, got his optics properly focused upon the globule, and then gave it a jolly good spaninking. In due course of time, his ludship strolled up to the ball, armed himself with a brassie, took a man's sized swipe at the ball—and hooked it over the cliff and onto the beach of Carmel Bay.

Lord Charles took a look at his lie, saw the cliffs down which he must scale to reach it, determined it was a beastly nuisance to be climbing down after so wayward a thing as was that unfaithful ball, and he called upon his caddie for another, preferring to take a penalty to cliff climbing.

Three More Hooked.

The caddie supplied ball No. 3. Lord Charles Hope hooked it over the cliff as expertly as he had had hooked No. 1 and No. 2.

The boy dug out No. 4. And his ludship did nothing more and nothing less than to hook that one over the hill and onto the beach.

"Another ball, my good lad," spoke up Lord Charles Hope.

Sorry, sir," replied the lad, 'that's all there is; there isn't any more."

That Messy Situation.

"I can see the first ball down there on the beach," offered the boy.

"Yes?" asked the Lord hopefully. He took a look. "Right! There it is." Lord Charles walked to the cliff's edge. Steep—and all that. But one could scuttle down its side and not break one's neck, provided he was careful.

So Lord Charles Hope braved the daring climb. He located ball No. 1. He stood precariously on some rocks made slippery by seaweed. He steadied himself to shoot.

What Was He Playing?

Which shot was he playing? Why number 3—no more no less. For wasn't he playing only his third shot with the original ball and didn't the rules clearly state that these shots at balls No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4 did not count against him if he located No. 1?

Righto! They did.

It was about 10 to 1 that Lord Charles Hope could not do much more than hoist the ball out of the sandy mud with his third shot. It was 100 to 1 that he wouldn't clear the cliff, while standing in that perilous position, and about 1,000,000 to 1 that he wouldn't land it on the far away green.

Down for Birdie Four.

And that is how Lord Charles Hope, after driving four balls over a cliff, scored a birdie 4 on the 450-yard eighteen hole at Pebble Beach.

Hal McClain was bred at Trenton, Mo., by "Big Timber" McClain, a trainer recently mentioned in The Star and well known to Nebraska horsemen. That gelding is a member of the tsable trained by Roy Owen, having passed to that trainer during the Topeka meeting.

In The Star of Sept. 23, reference was made to the attendance at Hamline, Minn., on Labor Day, 1913, the year Uhlan, 1:58, was the chief attraction. As stated, a record attendance of 190,000 was made that day and whenever we recall that event we naturally think of Dr. M. T. Bernard, living at Grand Island in those years, who was at the Minnesota state fair on the day mentioned.

Dr. Bernard told us of his experience, especially his re-actions, as he told the writer of that immense gathering. He was thrilled as never before and the memory of Uhlan and the ovation given that fast trotter was still with the doctor as he spoke to us of Hamline several years later.

UHLAN, 1:58, by Bingen, 2:06¼, was the most impressive champion trotter the writer ever saw and he goes back in his experience to Dexter, 2:17¼, that he watched trot in 1866 at Chicago. Dexter was an attractive horse, but not to be compared with Uhlan, and the same may be written of other fast trotters.

Goldsmith Maid, 2:14; Rarus, 2:13¾; St. Julien, 2:11¼; Jay-Eye-See, 2:10; Maud S., 2:08¾; Sunol, 2:08¼; Nancy Hanks, 2:04; Alix 2:03¾; The Abbott, 2:03¼; Cresceus, 2:02¼; Lou Dillon, 1:58½; Uhlan, 1:58, and Peter Manning, 1:56¼, ere the champion trotters following Dexter in the order named.

UHLAN was the first horse to trot a mile in two minutes over a track situated west of Chicago, something that he did that week of the Minnesota state fair already mentioned. His mile in 1:59¾ that afternoon in September 1913 still remains the record for that mile track.

In 1925, the writer was present when Peter Manning attempted lowering that mark, but failed when his mile was trotted in 2:00¼.

Peter Manning gave his very best that afternoon and had a master reinsman behind him—Fred Egan—a native of Des Moines, Ia., and the man making Braden Direct, p., 2:01¼, and Louis Direct, p., 1:58½, son of Braden Direct.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1892, was a Red Letter day in the history of southern Nebraska and the harness-horse fans living in that section of the state, as every mother's son of that clan made the journey to St. Joseph, Mo., for the express purpose of seeing the race between Lobasco and Jack, the former owned at Beatrice by James Ladd.

It was well known that Jack, by Pilot Medium, was a fast and game race trotter and that he had in Budd Doble one of the greatest race drivers of his day and generation. It was also known that Lobasco was a game race horse and behind him would be Myron McHenry, a wizard with the reins and whip.

The race was all that the most enthusiastic fan hoped it might be, going four heats, with Jack winning the first and Lobasco the next three. As many a man present said: "That race was the best I ever saw and well worth the trouble and expense incurred in making the journey to St. Joseph."

FEW, if any, western race meetings equalled that one at St. Joseph the week of Sept. 13 to 17. At the time it was the greatest ever held in what we frequently call the Missouri valley country, as many new records were established, the first by Blue Sign, from Iowa, which paced the first 2:10 mile in the state of Missouri. That came about in the third heat of the 2:15 pace, when Blue Sign won in 2:08¼.

Lobasco and Jack raced the same afternoon, the Nebraska stallion gaining a record of 2:10¾ in the third heat, a performance that made him the fastest trotting stallion in a race. Later in the week, Nancy trotted a mile in 2:07½ and Martha Wilkes one in 2:09½, both driven by Budd Doble, and they were the first miles in 2:10 by a trotter over a track located west of the Mississippi river and east of California.

The mile in 2:07½ by Nancy Hanks was the best in the entire west, as Sunol's mile in 2:08¼, at Stockton, Cal., was beaten by three-quarters of a second.

BINGEN SILK, 2:07¼, by Bingen, 2:06¼, is the most successful sire of speed ever owned in the state of Nebraska and at the close of racing in 1928 had 117 standard performers to his credit, practically all bred in this state and at Midway Farm, Kearney, Neb.

He was purchased by the late E. D. Gould in his yearling form and placed in charge of J. B. Chandler, a man that started training in Nebraska early in the spring of 1885 and was still associated with the light harness interests of Nebraska at time of his death.

record of 2:28¼, a two-year-old Bingen Silk gained a yearling record of 2:08¾ and a three-year-old record of 2:07¼, a very remarkable series of performances. We note with interest that during racing this season, the Bingen Silks are making their usual good showing.

A RECENTLY published report of racing at Holyoke, Colo., tells of Goldie King winning the 2:18 trotting class. That chestnut mare, now owned at Denver, Colo., has been racing since a two-year-old, at which age she gained the world's record for pacers of her age over a half-mile track.

The following season, while raced through the Grand Circuit, Goldie King gained a three-year-old pacing record of 2:07¾, which made her the fastest for age and gait in 1919. At the same time, she was largest money winning three-year-old pacer of that season.

Later the mare was sold by her breeder, E. D. Gould, Kearney, Neb., and has been racing each season since, being changed to the trot shortly afterwards. This is the eleventh season of racing for Goldie King, by Gold Bingen, 2:21¼, dam by Norval King, 2:12¼.

THAT item concerning Goldie King reminds us that of all the stallions owned by the late Ed Gould, only Gold Bingen remains as part of his estate and that stallion still is located at Kearney.

While never given the opportunity at Midway Farm enjoyed by Bingen Silk, Judge Maxey and Peter McKlyo, Gold Bingen proved himself a consistent sire of racing speed. He was only bred to such mares as were considered good enough for the trio of stallions mentioned or to mares that had proven difficult to get with foal.

He was even turned on a range near Arnold, Neb., with a bunch of shy-breeding mares and that course was followed several seasons.

But with all those handicaps Gold Bingen is represented in the 2:10 list by Gold King, 2:07½; Bingen Todd, 2:08½; Ivan Bingen, 2:09, trotters, and Gold McKinney, 2:07½, and Goldie King, 2:07¾, pacers. A daughter is the dam of Bin McKlyo, p., 2:09½, as a three-year-old.

FRED WARD of Hemet, Cal., died Sept. 14 at a hospital in Los Angeles, following a rather long illness. That successful breeder and trainer was well known to Nebraska horsemen, having raced at meetings held in this state several seasons. He was born at Peabody, Kan., but had resided in California since a young man.

Fred Ward was a horseman of unusual ability and, in addition, was something of a financier, leaving a considerable estate to his widow and twin sons.

Of the horses raced through Nebraska by Fred Ward, the best known were Don de Lopez, 2:04¼; Louise de Lopez, 2:04½; Allie Lou, 2:04½; Edith aCrter, 2:06¼; Dr. Wayo, 2:12¼; Great Northern, 2:12½, trotters, and Harry R. 2:09¼, and Matilda Lou, 3, 2:14¼, pacers.

In 1916, Fred Ward won the two-year-old trot at Lincoln with Louise de Lopez an dthe three-year-old trot with Don de Lopez, the former event noted for the high-class bunch of young trotters racing the afternoon of Sept. 5., among them Alicola, later gaining record of 2:07¼.

MANY readers of The Star will recall the years Al Thomas raced Captain Aubrey, by Peter the Great, 2:07¼, at Lincoln—the first time in 1908 when that stallion was a green trotter. Captain Aubrey, owned at the time referred to by Col. John Donovan, proprietor of King Hill Stock Farm, St. Joseph, Mo., later gained a record of 2:07¼ and became at an early age a sire of extreme speed. His fastest trotter sired at St. Joseph was Sweet Aubrey, 2:08¼, joint holder with Peter Dallas of the world's record for a five-heat race by trotters over a half-mile tack.

After the death of Col. Donovan, Captain Aubrey was sold to parties residing on Prince Edward's Island, eastern Canada, where he has gained additional fame as a sire of speed. We were surpriesd to learn recently that of the 14 races on the program at Halifax, N. S., nine were won by sons and daughters of Captain Aubrey, 2:07¼, and that was something we had never learned of previously.

We should add to this item that Sweet Aubrey was bred by Joe McGuire, Benson, Neb., and owned from the time she was one year old until her death in 1928 by Dr. C. C. Hall, Omaha. That fast and game trotting mare was the dam of Silk Aubrey, 2:10¼.

THE four-year-old trotting filly Mattie Silk, by Bingen Silk, gained a record of 2:18¼ at Longmont, Colo., Sept. 3. As we know nothing of this filly, any information concerning her breeding and history will be appreciated by "Columbus," as evidently she is a product of Nebraska. Possibly this young mare is owned in Colorado as she was second in the class for Colorado-owned three-year-old trotters at Pueblo last fall and must be better than an ordinary trotter.

A number of trotters and pacers owned in Nebraska raced and won money at Hutchinson, Kan. Park Silk, bred in this state but owned in Illinois, won the three-year-old pace and Scott Abbe, owned but not bred in Nebraska, won the class for two-year-old pacers.

Travel Air, by Bingen Silk, was second to Scott Abbe. That own brother to Air Silk, p., 2, 2:12¼, is owned at Wichita, Kan., but was bred at Midway Farm, Kearney, Neb. Dick Volo, owned in Lincoln, was second in the class for 2:10 trotters, finishing first in the final heat. Lelia Gentry, also owned in Lincoln, finished fourth in the 2:15 pace, an event won by Chancellor Cigar, 2:05, a horse that raced through Nebraska in 1927 and has been winning consistently all season.

WHILE not as fast a track as the one found at Lincoln, faster miles by pacers were recorded during the week of racing at Hutchinson, where several miles were paced faster than 2:10, and two faster than 2:09. Hal Conner, p., 2:07¼, owned in Omaha several years, gained his second 2:10 performer when Hal McClain won the 2:20 pace with one of his miles in 2:09½.

Roy Owen, racing Hal McClain, also won with Maxhall, a three-year-old trotter and incidentally reducing the track records for three-year-old trotters to 2:12½.

Warren Dennis of David City led all the drivers at Hutchinson in number of winning races, having four to his credit. He likewise was the leading money-winning driver at the Kansas state fair meeting.

LUCK PERSISTS TRAILING BURNS

All-In Ball "Vet" Lands On Third Team In World Series.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(I. N. S.)—Some men are born lucky; others get tossed into the world's series while they aren't looking.

Take George Burns, for example. He was traded to Cleveland by the Athletics in time to get into the 1920 series with the Dodgers and earn a full share—a winner's share at that.

Burns was presumed to have outworn his welcome by 1927, but the Yankees figured they needed him, so they picked him up and set him down in the middle of the 1928 event. Then he was through in New York, so the Athletics took him on and—here he is in another series.

Summa Gets the Break.

And what of Homer Summa, who was turned loose by Cleveland because it figured that Porter, a recruit, as more to its liking? Porter failed, but Summa, not wanted elsewhere, happened to be wanted by the team that won the pennant.

The Athletics also recalled Lebourveau, who couldn't catch on anywhere before, and the Cubs did the same for Mike Cvengros, who previously had missed fire with nearly every club in both leagues.

Nehf and Collins.

There isn't anything particularly unlucky about the fact that Grimm's injury brought Tolson on from the coast just in time to cut in on the dough. Nor is there any suggestion of mis fortune in connection with eligibility of Art Nehf and Eddie Collins. The former is almost through, the latter altogether so, yet Nehf is getting his fifth series check and Collins his seventh. Ruth, by the way, holds this record, too. He has lined up for the pay off nine times.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28

Grains finished easier today. Wheat was off ⅛ to 2c, corn ¾ to 1⅛c and oats ¼ to ¾c.

Grains were easy in the early trading on the local exchange. Weaek cables and the decline in stocks were responsible for scattered selling in wheat.

Coarse grains followed the general trend of wheat prices. Trade was moderate in all the pits and fair support was encountered on the setback, with the result that the prices held to a relatively narrow range.

The easier opening in wheat on the local exchange was in line with general expectations. Weakness at the previous close and lack of support had been responsible for bearish sentiment. When Liverpool cables showed that market had closed 1¾@1¾d, moderately lower than due, local prices started below the previous finish.

Relatively little change was shown in news of the wheat situation which had accumulated overnight. Good rains were reported as having fallen yesterday in south Australia and sowers in New South Wales and Victoria. Argentine weather is now generally clear and cool.

There was a quiet week end trade in corn. The September showed more resistance than on Friday, which was more encouraging to long holders.

TIME CHANGES SUNDAY.

With the ending of daylight saving time Sunday, markets will be received in Lincoln one hour later beginning Monday.

NEW YORK STOCK.

By the International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.

Industrial stocks declined sharply and rallied feebly in the week-end half-session of the stock market today. Weakness in the motor and steel stocks, most of which were pushed down to the low price levels of the move, was the biggest handicap to the bulls, offsetting the effect of short covering in the final period.

Another deluge of selling orders for General Motors forced that stock down more than a point to the year's lowest price of 66. Marmon crashed to 48 for a new loss of 6 points. Chrysler, Studebaker, Willys Overland and Nash held steadily around Friday's closing prices, but were unable to make any headway in the face of a steady stream of selling orders to the market.

United States Steel settled down to the lowest price of the move at 222½ and closed at 225 for a net loss of 1 point. General Electric closed at 364½, up 7. American Can at 168⅝, up 2-; American Tel. &-Tel. at 294½, up 2⅜; Standard Oil of New Jersey at 74¼, up 1¼; Consolidated Gas 157½, down 1½; Columbia Graphophone 57⅝, up 2½.

Wall Street was unable to determine, at the close today, whether the market has had a "temporary reactions" or has started on a long decline similar to the 1926 break in prices. Most stock market experts lean to the view that the market has been a corrective stage, which may pave the way for another upward move before the end of the year.

Effects of Friday's violent selling wave were still in evidence when the gong rang for the resumption of trading on the big board today. Selling orders for the active industrial and utility stocks piled in in such volume that prices were again swept downward, with little evidence of the "support" which had been looked for in bullish quarters.

General Motors and U. S. Steel, recognized strongholds of bulls, failed to hold their grounds as selling orders in blocks of 5,000 to 15,000 shares forced their way into the market.

U. S. Steel broke a point below yesterday's low price to sell at 222½, or 3½ points in the first half hour and 40 points from the year's peak.

New losses of about a point on the average were recorded in the active independent steel, copper and oil stocks but offerings of stock dried up near the end of the first hour and some stocks began to show their first real resistance to selling pressure. Bethlehem Steel dropped back 1¼ to 114¼; Andes Copper was off about a point; Kennecott down a point at 81; Standard Oil of New Jersey down fractionally at 72¼.

The high-priced utilities declined 2 to 4 points, but the volume of selling was comparatively small and little "distress selling" was reported. American Waterworks lost 4 points at 191 and American & Foreign Power was down 3 points at 169½.

The week-end business reviews showed that while a let-down from the remarkable summer activity was in evidence in many lines of American industry, business as a whole was on a larger scale than at this time last year. Railroad traffic and bank clearings, two of the most important barometers," show large gains over a year ago.

Prices continued to settle in the second hour. Westinghouse dropped back 4 points to 229, off 64 points from the high of last month. Montgomery Ward was under pressure and sold at 118½. Marmon Motor crashed about 6 points to 46, completing a 56-point reaction from the high of the year. Even the high grade rails were unable to hold their ground in the face of unusually favorable car-loadings and net earnings statements. Week-end commodity markets were irregular, with cotton practically unchanged and wheat prices about a cent a bushel lower.

Industrial stocks were still unsettled at the opening of the market today and lower prices were quoted for Steel, Motor car, Utility, Copper and specialty stocks. General Motors was again under pressure, opening fractionally lower at 67 and declining to 66½ in the first period. Studebaker gained ¾ at 64¾; Chrysler was down ⅛ at 68½; Mack Trucks unchanged at 95; Nash up ⅛ at 78⅛.

A block of 26,000 shares of United Gas Improvement, new sold at 51½, down 2 points. North American was down 3½ at 165¼; American and Foreign Power down ½ at 172; Public Service of New Jersey, down fractionally at 124; United Corporation down ¼ at 69.

United States Steel lost a point at 125 and moved down to 124½ in the first period. Andes Copper moved off a point to 51¾, while Anaconda rallied ½ to 117 and Kennecott was unchanged at 82.

Rails were irregular with narow price changes. New York Central rallied ¼ to 223¾. Union Pacific was down ½ at 269; Pennsylvania down, ⅜ at 100¼. Allegheny Corp. down ⅛ at 49⅝; Pullman down ⅝ at 95½.

Aluminum Corporation of America, after a show of strength late yesterday afternoon, tumbled 145 points down to 415; Colgate Palmolive, another strong spot yesterday, sold off about a point. Shares in the utility issues were lower, Electric shares showing a loss of more than a point and American Gas & Electric and Cities Service opening fractionally lower.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.

After being under considerable pressure most of the session, curb stocks closed the week in a decidedly erratic manner. New low and new high marks were made. In the main the list went lower. Nervousness was accentuated by the continued weakness in leading utility investment trust issues.

A collapse in the support of Electric Investors sent the stock down almost 10 points. In its footsteps followed Electric Bond & Share and Electric Shares which lost more than a poine each. American & Foreign Power warrants at one time showed a 5 point loss, but rallied a bit toward the close. Strength in the shares of American Commonwealth Power B was a feature of this group.

A decline of more than 6 points in Gold Seal Electric saw the stock at 10, the lowest price in its career.

Goldman Sachs led the decline in the investment trust group. Blue Ridge Corporation and Shenandoah Corporation in which Goldman Sachs trading corporation has substantial interests, remained heavy. Lehman Corporation slipped into lower territory.

Strong spots in the maket included Brazil Light & Traction, Crocker Wheeler and Cohn hall marx. Dow Chemical leaped 21 points to a new high record at 476.

There was no change in the general market situation today. The same type of selling which characterized yesterday's debacle was in evidence in the short session today. Inability of the market leaders to withstand the onslaught of the bears, undermined still further the confidence of those supporting the general list. In direct contrast to the nervousness of stock traders, weekend reviews of conditions in mercentile lines reported sustained distribution of goods, making for stability in general business.

Aviation stocks continued highly irregular. Aviation Corporation of America, which yesterday suddenly dropped more than 18 points, just as suddenly regained more than 10 points today in inactive trading. Dayton Air Engine and Fokker Aircraft sold at about yesterday's levels. National Aviation declined a point.

Utilities held the center of interest in the way of activity and in the wideness of price ranges. Electric Investors tumbled almost 10 points to around 270. Electric shares, Hydro-Electric securities and Electric Bond & Shares, declined substantially. A strong spot in this group was American Commonwealth Power B which spurted upwards 5 poits in the face of general selling. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore sold off almost 2 points at 136½.

De Forest Radio does not seem to be able to get started. The company is understood to be enjoying a profitable year in spite of strong competition. Announcement that De Forest is trying to acquire Jenkins Television through an exchange of stock was favorably received by those interested in the stock.

As a group the oils were more active than they have been recently, but were decidedly irregular. Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania advanced about 2 points while Humble Oil and Vacuum were inclined to go lower. The Standard Oils clug around their previous levels.

Starrett Corporation was a firm feature. The company's prospects and present circumstances are of such calibre that the stock is attracing buying even in the face of the general decline.

Bonds were irregularly lower.

LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

William Penn APARTMENTS

The new William Penn is one of Lincoln's fine new apartments. Located at 14th and E streets, they are within walking distance of the uptown business districts. They are on the direct route of the South 14th street bus line and one block from the 13th street arterial highway.

John M. Miles, the owner, spared no pains in making this a model of perfection in modern apartment buildings. All the newest features in furnishings and equipment were installed.

DODGE BROTHERS SET RECORD FOR EXPORT SHIPPING

Shattering an all-time record in the history of the company, Dodge Brothers export shipments of trucks and commercial cars from plants in the United States and Canada totaled 8,163 units for the first eight months of this year. This large volume represents an increase of more than 11 per cent over the corresponding period last year, and factory officials analyze the record as reflecting widespread approval of the new complete line of four and six-cylinder trucks now offered by Dodge Brothers.

Partial credit for the gain in the export market is attributed to the recently announced four-cylinder trucks now available in the half-ton, ¾ ton and one-ton capacities. In addition, five capacities of six-cylinder trucks ranging from the ¾ ton to the heavy duty three-ton type are offered. Unfilled orders have required overtime production schedules at times to keep pace with the demand.

OVERSEAS SALES OF DE SOTO PROVE UNUSUALLY LARGE

"With the production of De Soto Six automobiles breaking all records for a first-year car, it is interesting to note that over 14 per cent of the entire production was sold overseas," according to H. P. Stewart, in charge of sales for the De Soto division of the Chrysler Export corporation, division of Chrysler Motors.

"A year ago last month, the De Soto Six was little more than a name," he said. "Starting from scratch, with no dealers, a new name, and with an entirely new product, the end of the first year of manufacture found the De Soto Six firmly established among the leaders in the automobile industry.

"During the first year of manufacture from August 1928 to August 1929, overseas sales totaled 11,469 units—a remarkable record when one considers the fact that during that same period it was necessary to organize the entire overseas distributing organization."

Special Fall Show Of Willys-Knight Sixes Announced

The Willys-Overland Co. of Toledo, O., builders of the Willys-Knight and Whippet lines of motor cars, announce a nation-wide special fall showig to be held the week of October 5 to 12 in the show-rooms of the company's dealer organization. This special exhibit will include the new Willys-Knight great six models recently introduced by the company and admitted to be one of the outstanding achievements of the current year's motor car presentations.

Executives of Willys-Overland state that the new great six is easily the masterpiece of the company's 15 years in the building of Knight engined cars, both from an artistic as well as a mechanical viewpoint. The wide public reception acorded these new models and the resultant high sales volume indicates that car building schedules for this new line must be increased beyond the original plans in order to fill the demad from the field.

In the lower priced field of the Willys-Knight division the Willys-Knight "70-B" has achieved marked popularity. This popularity is attributed, not alone to the low price range but to the new lines of beauty incorporated in the design of the various body models

Thousands Inspect Ford Motor Display Held the Past Week

The Ford Motor company of Detroit, Mich., through its Lincoln dealers, Hussong-Rogers, Inc., and O'Shea Motor Co., presented an auto show at 1705 O street the week of Sept. 22 to 28. Thousands of Lincoln people visited the auto salon throughout the week. Saturday, 3,500 people passed through the doors between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m.

All models of Ford cars were on display. Included in the showings were a yellow convertible coupe, a green four-door sedan, a brown coupe without a rumble seat, a brown four-door sedan, a black business coupe, a black touring car and a dark brown convertible coupe with a rumble seat.

There were also two delivery trucks, a one-ton truck, a small bus, a light delivery car, a black leather-topped coupe, a tan roadster, a three-window black four-door sedan, a green roadster without a rumble seat, a black three-window four-door sedan, a light blue convertible coupe with a rumble seat, a dark blue three-window four-door sedan, a tan tudor and a dark brown town car.

ARGENTINE STOCK CAR RACE IS WON BY GRAHAM-PAIGE

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 28—Road racing is becoming more and more popular in Argentina, and the present season has brought out some models. American cars largely predominate.

A typical road event was the 30 kilometer race at Venado-Turto for stock cars, in which all but three of the entries were of American make. The course was 20 kilometers around an irregular circuit of dirt roads, with four bad corners.

A most remarkable performance at the turns was a factor in the victory of the four-speed Graham-Paige, which finished well in the lead. Its pilot approached each corner at high speed, then shifted into third. By thus utilizing the superior acceleration of the lower gear, he passed the cars that were obliged to remain in high gear.

Several novelties in race driving were noted. One pilot filled up with gasoline while doing 70 kilometers per hour, and in the next round his mechanic was seen to climb out on the hood and fill the radiator.

OAKLAND-PONTIAC SERVICE SCHOOL SOON TO REOPEN

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 28 — The Oakland-Pontiac dealers' service mechanics training school—one of the many safeguards by which the Oakland Motor Car Co. protects the investment of its car owners—will reopen here soon, it is announced by R. A. Armstrong, service manager. The school, whose students are selected from among the 20,000 Oakland Pontiac mechanics in all parts of the United States, was closed during the busy summer season because many of the dealers could not conveniently spare their service men at that time.

"Our sole object in conducting this school is to make available for dealers, an establishment where their mechanics may receive special intensive training in the maintenance of Oakland-Pontiac cars," said Mr. Armstrong. "These training facilities are unsurpassed in the industry. We maintain a completely-equipped model service station in connection with the school. The men perform their shop exercises in this model service station which affords them an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the latest tools, equipment and methods, admirably supplementing their work in the class room.

CHRYSLER SAYS NOISY SHACKLE IS ELIMINATED

The problem of the noisy shackle has been attacked from a new angle in the new Chrysler "66,' in which the molecular displacement of rubber compensates for the spring action, with a consequent elimination of all metal-to-metal contact in the shackle assembly.

Since motorists neglected oiling shackles, for years it has been necessary to do a complete overhaul job on the shackles after every few thousand miles if silence was to be maintained.

On the new Chrysler the use of rubber solves the problem of the neglectful motorist who will not attend to lubrication. It cannot be neglected because there is nothing to do and it also defeats the usual effects of normal wear, because it absorbs shocks and is self adjusting and self compensating.

The construction of the "66" shackle is so arranged that rubber is interposed between the spring and the shackle. Shocks on the wheel are transmitted to the vehicle first through the spring and then through the resilient rubber sleeve which is the key member in the assembly.

Driving Over Broken Stones.

The best way to drive a car over a short stretch of broken stone is to take a short run at it—not too fast—and let the car coast over the stone with the clutch out. Thus the rear tires are relieved of driving strains and of the resulting tearing actions of sharp stones on the rubber. Of course, it is not always practicable to do this, but when it can be done it adds just a little more to the life of the tires.

PLYMOUTH BUILT FOR COMFORT IS OFFICIAL'S CLAIM

The farther people drive, the more the automobile engineer must look to comfort in his product and the result is that comfort in an automobile is one of the prime factors upon which cars are built and sold," declares A. Van Der Zee, general sales manager of the Plymouth Motor corporation.

"In the full-size Plymouth," Mr. van Der Zee continued, "All these things which make for comfort have been taken into consideration. All the space that could be used to make roomier interiors has been utilized. Hundreds of tests have been made to determine the proper amount of space necssary for each individual and the proper angles at which to place the seats.

"Plymouth engineers have given special attention to the driver's seat so that all controls are easily within reach and the car may be driven with the least amount of effort. Small wheels with large balloon tires add a degree of comfort which a few years ago was unobtainable in a car of any price."

Auto Notes

When the New Car Is Delievered.

Read the instruction book carefully.

Avoid strong soaps in cleaning the car.

Familiarize yourself with the mechanism.

Keep the mechanism clean; wash underneath.

Study the car, its parts, their operation and care.

Do not race the motor and do not allow it to labor.

Apply brakes progressively and start and stop slowly.

Examine tires for cuts and misalignment every 150 miles.

Change motor oil after 250 miles and thereafter every 500 miles.

Costly Habit.

Despite the fact that a car starts just as easy in second or even third speed as in first, it is a very bad practice. The purpose of the three speeds is fundamentally to get the car in motion with the least possible strain on the engine and that is why all three speeds should be used. Omitting one of the speeds only shortens the life of the car. It submits the clutch to undue wear and puts unnecessary strain on the rear axle. From an economic standpoint this habit is bad, as gasoline consumption is determined by the pull on the engine.

Oil Consumption Depends on Speed of Car.

The consumption of oil practically doubles while driving at 50 to 65 miles an hour as compared with the amount used at 30 miles an hour. The car running at average speed pumps from 150 to 200 gallons of oil hourly.

Change of Gas to Eliminate Sticky Valves.

Motorists whose engines are afflicted with sticky valves should consider the possible advantages in changing the grade of gas they have been using. It has been found that some gasoline leaves a gummy deposit that is especially hostile to valves. One of the difficulties in refining gasoline by the so-called "cracking" process is the elimination of the gummy substances. "Cracked" gas is the kind that has revealed greater anti-knock tendencies but this does not mean that all anti-knock gas, or all "cracked" gas causes valve stickage. As a matter of fact, one of the most popular gases actually improves valve operation, and it is well to remember that careless (excessive) use of the choke will make any gas wash the valve stems dry until they stick.

Higher Sparking Voltage.

Spark plug gap settings which formerly were more or less standardized at .025 to .030 inches must be now at .018 to .022 inches and distributor points, in most cases at .015 to .020 inches.

Cars Act Queerly in Mountain Travel

A motorist usually fears all sorts of trouble in his car while traveling along at a good rate of speed over high mountain roads. Engines suddenly lose their power and the cars slow up perceptibly, with a tendency for the engine to overheat. As suddenly as this condition comes on, it leaves after a few hundred yards of travel. This condition is due to "dead spots" or air pockets along the road, where some atmospheric condition causes a temporary but drastic maladjustment of the mixture in the carburetor.

Never Neglect Brakes.

A motorist should have the brakes of his car inspected at intervals and constantly keep them in good shape—so that it will bie possible to stop the car almost instantly at a time of emergency. The requirements in the traffic ordinance relating to brakes state that they must be of such power so as to bring the machine to a full stop from the point where brake pressure is applied within the following distances; 10 miles per hour—10 feet; 15 miles per hour—21 feet; 20 miles per hour—37 feet. If brakes cannot do that the car is then operated in violation of the law and in disregard of the safety of the occupants, other vehicles, and pedestrians.

The glass of a windshield is in danger of breaking if it is not tightly fastened on both sides, when swung out. The crash will come when driving fast or when running over a rough road.

Traffic Problems.

The Use and Abuse of the Auto Horn.

The horn is the voice of the automobile and its proper use is very necessary to the proper regulation of traffic.

Sections 17 and 28 of the Lincoln traffic ordinance require the use of a signaling device.

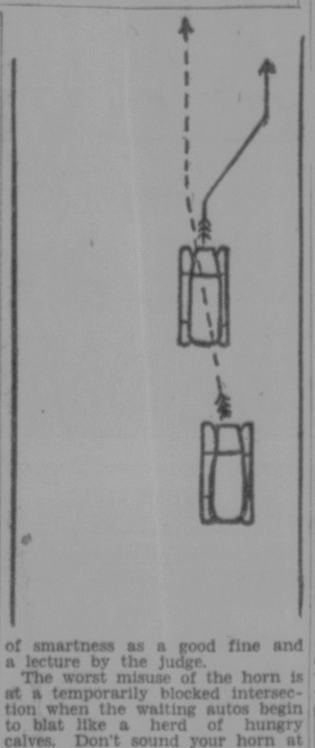
The approach of your auto is so noiseless that often the drivers of nearby autos will not know of your presence unless you signal your approach and they may steer their auto directly into your without knowing you are there 'till the collision.

When you approach another auto, sound your horn if you think that the driver does not see you. It may prevent a collision.

If about to pass another auto from the rear you should by all means sound your horn. Not a tremendous aggravating blast but just a little "toot toot" to let him know that you are there.

Probably the most important use of the horn is its use to request an auto in front of you to pull to the right and let you pass.

Section 17 of the Lincoln traffic ordinance is very specific in its ruling that if a following vehicle gives a signal of a desire to pass, the driver of the vehicle in front must turn to the right to allow the other vehicle to pass. The accompanying drawing illustrates this.



There are a few drivers of the "smarty" type who will not pull over to let you pass no matter how much you signal. The best cure for them is to take their number and report them. There is nothing so curative for this type of smartness as a good fine and a lecture by the judge.

The worst misuse of the horn is at a temporarily blocked intersection when the waiting autos begin to blat like a herd of hungry calves. Don't sound your horn at such a time. It does no good and only annoys the neighborhood.

Fall Wedding Is Gaining Favor With Brides-To-Be

Marriage of Miss Dorothy Heldt to F. E. Lyon at Cleveland, September 10, and Miss Eula Duncan and Otis Tilly to Be Solemnized Next Saturday, Prominent in Early Autumn Ceremonies.

Even before Florence Coolidge set her seal of approval on fall weddings, they were extremely popular. More than ever this year it seems that the richness of autumn flowers and the informality of the season is tempting brides to select autumn dates for their marriages.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Heldt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Heldt of Scottsbluff, to F. E. Lyon, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lyon of Lincoln, which was solemnized September 10, at Cleveland, O. Rev. Higbee performed the ceremony at the Presbyterian church. The couple took a trip to Buffalo and Chicago before returning to Lincoln where they are now living at 645 South Seventeenth street. The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is a member of Alpha Phi.

An unusually complete program of sports has been arranged this year for University of Nebraska girls, and every co-ed with a sport complex can find some activity to suit her desire. The members of the sport board for women's intramurals for 1929 are shown, above and they include: upper row, left to right, Ruth Diamond, chairman; Lucille Ackerman, archery; Minerva Worthman, baseball; Alice Buffet, basketball; Helen McCoy, bowling; Nellie May Bloss, tennis; Antoinette Lococo, dancing Fayette Norris, golf; lower row, LeNette Knox, hiking; Louise Westover, hockey; Jane Beaumont, horseback riding; Margaret Hurd, Nebraska ball; Mary Ann Davis, rifle; Jean Rathburn, swimming; and Betty Harrison, deck tennis. Betty Kelso, speed ball chairman, is not shown.

During the fall season, a girl's singles tennis tournament is planned, and any one is eligible to enter. Speedball is a new game at the university, but it is expected to be one of the most popular of the outdoor sports. Intersorority groups are to be entered in a tournament to be conducted in much the same fashion as are Nebraska ball tournaments, by a round robin arrangement of games. Nebraska ball is a game similar to volley ball.

A rifle team, to take part in about twenty-five telegraphic meets with other schools, will be selected from among the girls going out for practice in the gallery in Andrews hall. No regular hockey tournament has as yet been planned. A. A. A. points will be awarded for hours spent in hiking and horseback riding.

In the late winter and early spring, tournaments and contests in the other sports will be arranged.

How much importance should we give to the social side of our lives?

"Henry" writes that his wife is "society-mad." She squanders her strength, her time and "his" money on parties, says "Henry", and he wants to know what in the world she gets out of them anyway, and "where he gets off."

"Henry" doesn't give any statistics about these parties, either as to the financial output they involve, or the time allotted to such pleasure seeking. So I can't render a judgment as to whether she goes to extremes on the matter or not.

But I believe "Henry" needs to pause and consider the social needs of his wife and of himself. And we may all give consideration along with them to the balance we need to strike in this matter. Some women do most decidedly go to extremes in their seeking of social outlets.

Some men are entirely lacking in social instincts and have no comprehension of the wife's need for luncheons, teas and clubs. Therein lies the source of much matrimonial conflict.

Man (genus homo) is a social creature. Every man and every woman has a decided and definite need for social contacts with his fellowmen. The man who lives alone becomes narrow-minded, self-centered, retrospective, unambitious—in short, is not good company for himself, as a steady diet.

To keep the mind fresh, it needs to be frequently changed and aired. This is accomplished through the exchange of ideas with others.

Relaxation, relief from the tension of personal problems, is gained through social contacts with other people.

The home-keeping wife and mother must resort to artificial methods of gaining needed social contacts. Her work does not throw her in the company of any people. The grocer, the ice-man, the milkman, the postman, the laundryman—such contributors to the household mechanism—are her only regular contacts in the work-a-day.

Thus she must give and attend parties, join clubs, make and receive calls in order to establish social interchange with others.

The average man has many contacts with other people during his normal day. The regular disposal of his business affairs usually entails the exchange of ideas with many other minds. In fact his business contacts often carry him to the golf course and to the luncheon clubs, where pleasure and business are pleasurably combined.

The woman has to work out her social schedule according to her own needs and means. So long as she is not going beyond her financial means and neglecting her home duties, I do not believe any husband should complain about her parties and friendships. She needs them and is the better wife for having them.

Moreover, the husband should be sympathetic and understanding and co-operate with his wife to the fullest of his ability in seeking the social outlet she needs. Even though he does not crave society himself, he should seek some of it in his evening hours according to his wife's desires, and he will find himself profiting by it.

The wife, on the other hand, should temper her requirements according to her husband's time and state of mind to a temporate degree.

Stolen Ring?

Dear Minerva: What would you think of a girl that would accept a diamond ring from you as engagement ring and then move away, take the ring with her and in a month write you that she was breaking her engagement because she was in love with another man? I hate to admit that I am easy, but that is just what happened to me. I had known this girl for nearly a year and six months ago I proposed to her and she accepted me. Naturally, I bought her the best engagement ring I could afford and she wore it everywhere. She told her friends and I told mine that we were engaged. And now she not only throws me down, but she keeps my ring. Would you advise me to write to her for it or should I write it down as profit-and-loss in the column headed "What I Know About Women."—A POOR SAP.

A. I fear you have become somewhat cynical, and I must say that you are not without some provocation. I certainly would write to the girl and not only suggest but urge in very uncertain words that she return the ring to you. It is her privilege to break the engagement, and since she has shown herself to be the kind of a girl she is, you may consider yourself lucky that you found out before the marriage ceremony. But she is certainly very small if she does not return the ring to you.

A Mother's Love.

Dear Minerva: I am the mother of an eighteen year old boy and until the past year he has never caused me any trouble. In fact, I have always thought him quite a model son. But for a year now he has caused me a great deal of worry and this is the reason: he has become crazy about airplanes and says he is going to learn to fly as soon as possible. He has a job at the airport and even now goes up in airplanes whenever he has an opportunity. He never tells me about going up until after he has done it, but I am getting so I worry all the time for fear something will happen to him. He knows that I worry when he goes up and if he learns to fly an airplane by himself I fear it will just about kill me. Is there anything I can do about it. If I went to the man he works for and asked him not to let my son fly, do you suppose that would do any good? You have helped others with their problems and I wish you could help me. —WORRIED MOTHER.

A. Your question is a very difficult one for me to answer. I can readily sympathize with your maternal anxiousness for your son's safety, and I must confess that almost daily stories of aviation accidents make it impossible for me to say that flying is the safest thing in the world. On the other hand, thousands of people do fly every day without mishap, and the hazards of aviation are becoming less by great strides. We are living in a flying age and nothing will stop it. Your son is possessed with the same twentieth century ambition as that which possesses nearly every other young man of that age. His desire is certainly normal.

Every mother sometime or another experiences a horror of the hazards which her beloved children inevitably face as they grow to manhood or womanhood. Of course, sometimes this horror is based upon facts more hazardous than others. In your case, my advice would be for you to sincerely try to overcome your fear. But if that fails, I admit that it seems that your 18-year old son might postpone his flying ambitions for a year or so at least for your sake.

Briefly Answered.

Peggy: Do not write to the boy until he writes to you. He owes you an apology and if he is not man enough to make it, you had better forget him.

S. O. S.: I will answer your questiton if you will send me a self-addressed stamped envelope.

H. M. F.: The use of a straw at a soda fountain is entirely up to the individual. If you find one more convenient for your drink, it is proper to use it, otherwise not.

Esther: A girl of 15 should not expect her parents to let her go automobile riding with a boy and stay out until midnight. Your mother is absolutely right in criticising you for the late hours which you keep.

Watch Them Made

WHEN order some from your own grocer. Those delicious cottage doughnuts made by Gooch are of the best ingredients obtainable and can be ordered fresh each day from your grocer for only 25c a dozen. At 1537 O street you may view the making of the gastronomical delights and for convenience you may then order from your own grocer. Just the thing for breakfast, without the problem of making them confronting the housewife. For sale by all good grocers.

Glista Glass

ART work is the newest thing for for folks who love to make pretty gifts, etc. It is being taught in the art department at Gold's by the well known Camp Fire director, Miss Flossie Yeck. She has had a wide knowledge and loads of experience in teaching art work of all kinds. This type of Glista Glass work is easy to learn and so beautiful. Business girls may have lunch hour classes and it is still time to enter the kiddies for their class next Saturday morning.

Mettalic Hoods

Probably from Orkins

ARE those smart shoes you've been admiring for they have a host of new fall footwear at the price of $6.85 and $7.85 and co-eds just flock there for their shoes. Orkin's who are always conceded to be an authority on style are also showing exquisite fabric coats, some luxuriously fur trimmed at $85 to $150. You'll feel assured at every occasion if you've thoughtfully selected your apparel at Orkin's. Travel print frocks for street, others for dress and evening are seen in profusion and the smart girl's dream is just to step in Orkin's and select her clothes from head to foot. If you've moved from a big city here, you probably have always considered proper chiffon hose a necessity. The fashioning of these gauze like frivolities are surely an achievement for they almost give the illusion of no hose at all. Orkin's have them for $2.50 and $2.95 although they still feature the popular Blue Moon hose.

Although these coats were fashioned for utility and comfort, you'll be struck with their unusual smartness as well.

When It's Home Coming Time For Pawnee

Golden Jubilee Of County Fair To Bring Pioneers, Former Residents, And Nebraska Officials Together For Four Days Of Old Time Musical Organizations, Home Town Opera, Parades, Memories, Athletics, and Reunions

BY LULU MAE COE.

Airplane stunts, county vaudeville teams, midway, with the tinselled dancers, fat lady, and sword swallower, roll call for all those who drove ox teams, old time fiddling by Sisco brothers of Burchard, six-horse team parades, picnic dinners, children's track and field meet, horseshoe tournament, races, showing of the best team in the country, greyhound racing—ice cream, candy, lemonade and pop.

And you haven't heard the half yet.

The Pawnee county fair ain't what it used to be. It followed Mr. Coue and in every way is better and better.

In the fall of 1879, pioneers of Pawnee county, partly for social purposes, and partly to promote the development of the section, organized the first county fair. A simpler affair than that of today. Planned in 1879 as the Pawnee County Mechanical and Agricultural society, the association has grown, and sometimes prospered, through the years.

The "pumpkin shows" of other days no longer satisfy, and the public is demanding real entertainment. A brief time ago, folks were glad to walk to Pawnee's fair; now they chafe at anything less than 35 miles an hour.

In 1893, the visitors gasped as they looked up at a little hot air balloon and its daring pilot, A. W Ward of Sioux City, in his advertised death-defying flight. The first automobile was a thriller of the 1901 county fair, and the first airplane came to town in 1913.

Celebrating Golden Jubilee.

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the county is having the golden jubilee anniversary of the Pawnee county fair and reunion of Pawnee county pioneers. The usual stock shows, stock judging and agricultural exhibits have been augmented by a program that is drawing hundreds of persons back to the old home county for reunions and reminiscenses.

A motor caravan, headed by Frank A. Harrison of Alhambra, Calif., former Pawnee county resident, is bound for Pawnee City and the fair. The travelers left California the middle of September and plan to arrive in Pawnee City by 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the hour of the official welcome to the homecomers. During the cross-country trip and in Lincoln, a number have joined the party, so that it is thought a large number of the returned ones will arrive together. The committee finds that nearly all of the forty-eight states will be represented and that at least one family is coming from Canada especially for the affair.

A bulletin, containing extended details of the fair, together with many historical facts, has been dedicated to the Pawnee county pioneers and to Nebraska's first state governor, Governor David Butler, a county pioneer. It is also dedicated to Pawnee's most famous son, Harold Lloyd—who hasn't told the committee he won't be there—to Governor Weaver, son of a pioneer family in southeast Nebraska, that in early days included Pawnee county in its area of Richardson county, and to Jack Story, the county's noted aviator and pioneer mail pilot.

Uhler Draws Cover.

The cover of the bulletin was drawn by Emil E. Uhler, owner of the Theatrical Poster Co., and The Advertisers Display Studio of Chicago, who received his education in Pawnee City. Against the background of a fair, with an Indian, an ox team, and a log house lightly suggested above it, is depicted a pioneer couple, who have lived and prospered in the county.

Jack Story is to be at the fair, and will give a program of stunt flying. Friends of Harold Lloyd think—or hope—he will come quietly and unostentatiously to be among the homecomers. Born in Burchard, he was reared in Pawnee county and attended high school in Pawnee City before entering motion picture work.

The old band—the band that brought distinction to Pawnee City half a century ago and played many engagements in the larger middle west cities—is to have its reunion. Some can never come back, some live too far, but many of the former band members of the Pawnee City military band will return to hold a reunion, under the direction of Frank Harrison, one of the former members.

Expect Large Crowd.

Tuesday is to be known as Homecoming day, and the events open at 9 o'clock at the fair grounds. Although no estimate of the number coming can be made, more than 4,000 former residents have been invited back home, 5,000 invitations have been mailed to Pawnee county families, and 26,500 families of surrounding counties have been invited.

The main event of the day is the arrival of the homecoming caravan at 3 o'clock. Dusty, tired, making a trail into the old home country, as some of them and the parents of others made a trail with ox team and covered wagon more than half a century ago, this caravan, with its many cars will move in front of the grandstand, before those who have always remained at home. Ten minutes after the arrival, the Pawnee City band will serenade the visitors as the cars circle the track.

No one is going to miss the evening attraction, "The Isle of Tasboni," which is to be repeated the two following nights. It is a revival, and some of those who sit in the grandstand are going to remember back to April, 1901, when the original production was given in Pawnee City.

Fulton To Be Present.

E. L. Fulton, now of Oklahoma, will be present, for he wrote the opera more than twenty-five years ago. The opera was produced again in 1922, and again in 1929, for the homecoming. August Hagenow, member of the first orchestra that played under Linnie Fulton, will direct the orchestra for this year's presentation. Members of the old Pawnee City band played for the first showing of the opera, and many of them will see it again this week.

Pawnee county, having the reputation of the highest per capita enrollment at the university, has designated Wednesday as University day, and the program has been arranged in honor of all of the county graduates and attendants of the college. Judges of stock will be university men, the music will be by the male quartet of the university, the chancellor will speak, and two teams will stage a football match—young athletes of freshman intramural teams.

A solid half mile of history of Pawnee county will pass in review at 10:30 in the morning, when the district schools participate in a parade of old-time pageant. The Pawnee City band will play the song each float represents as the float passes the grandstand.

Weaver To Pay Tribute.

In memory of the men and women who made today's life possible, a memorial gateway will be dedicated at 11 o'clock. Governor Arthur J. Weaver will deliver a tribute to Nebraska's pioneers, and Mrs. Violet Butler McCoy, daughter of the first governor, will accept the memorial plaque in behalf of the pioneers. The Rev. S. A. Whysong will deliver the invocation. Chief White Cloud of the White Cloud reservation will speak, the university male quartet is to sing,

NEBRASKA RANCH ONCE SCENE OF BATTLE.

There's much more than a slip of paper involved in the leasing of War Bonnet ranch from th eowner, John Anderson, by Dr. R. L. Ivins of Crawford.

It can't tell of the romance of the 7,000 acres lying in the Hat Creek basin north of Harrison.

The formal phrasing suggests little of the frontier days, of Indian warfare, of the old cattle country, of Nebraska when it was the west, of a country in the making, which once formed the background of the ranch.

War Bonnet ranch achieved a fame greater than that its pastures and rich farm and hay land would have brought it. An interesting bit of Nebraska history, the high point of which some say is fact, and others say, is fiction, took place there more than fifty years ago.

Heard of Custer's Fall.

Custer had fought his last fight. News of the ambuscade and its fatal termination swept through the hills. White men became uneasy, fearing for their safety, and the word of the success of the Indians on the Big Horn fired the war fever of the Indians to an even higher degree.

At the Red Cloud agency, there were 5,000 or more Indians. A great number of them were rather friendly, indisposed to take up arms. Some 800 of the Cheyennes stirred by Sitting Bull's accomplishments, left the agency to join him to put the white man out of the hills forever.

The Custer massacre had had its effect. The white men immediately believed in the deadly purpose and effectiveness of this Indian campaign

While the Fifth cavalry was scouting on the trails between the Black Hills and the agencies, word of the Custer trouble was brought. On the same day this disastrous information was received, warning was brought in of the 800 Cheyennes leaving the reservation on their deadly purpose.

Indians Ready to Fight.

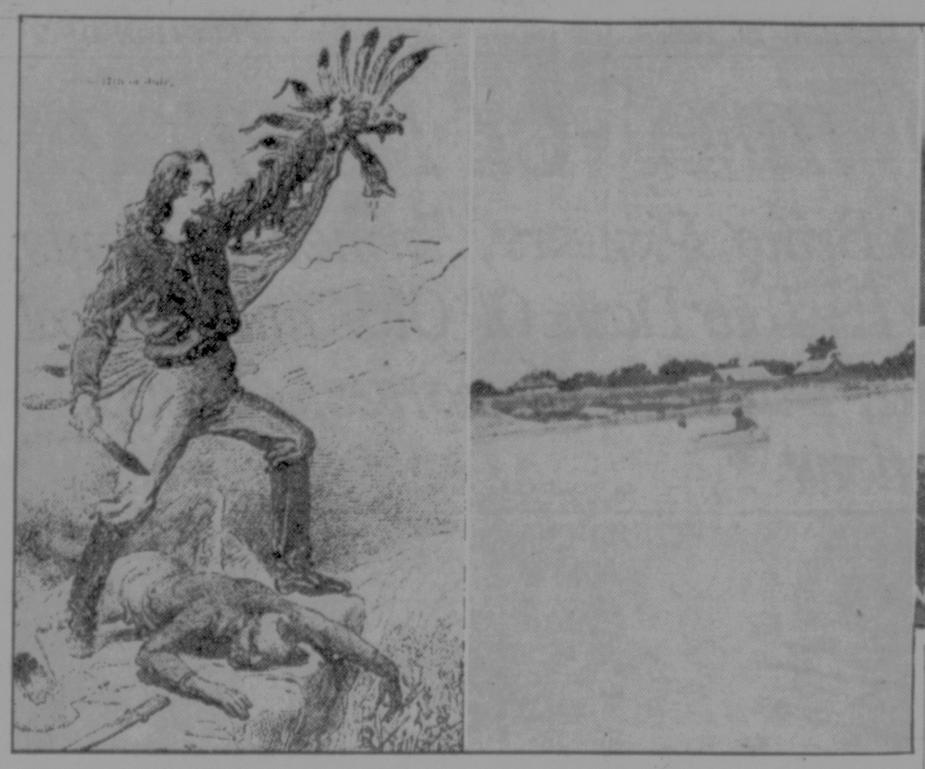
It seemed to be the Red man's day. Flaming with their latest victory, hating the enemy, prepared and eager for battle, the Sioux and their supporters were roaming around somewhere in some 90,000 square miles of territory, much of it unknown to the soldiers, practically all of it well known to the feathered warriors. Estimates have said that more than 29,000 Indians were ready for battle, with their knowledge of the country to their advantage, and possibilities of ambush and unforeseen attack to the disadvantage of the cavalrymen.

General Sheridan ordered General Merritt and 400 members of the Fifth to reenforce General Crook on Big Goose creek. Having been warned of the Indian approach, he ignored the orders of Sheridan and suited his movements to the need of the moment, and, instead, planned to meet the Cheyennes and cut them off from Sitting Bull. In this case, the change of movement was effective.

At this stage of the red and white battle, Buffalo Bill, or Colonel W. F. Cody comes into the story. A showman, then, taking his western ponies and riders and blank cartridges battles around the country, he closed his show, at a real financial loss, and volunteered his services. He was chief of scouts under General Merritt.

Cody Directed Cavalry.

Cody directed the movements of the cavalry, the soldiers moving seventy-five miles in twenty-four hours, to the Indians thirty, with the aim of placing themselves directly in the Indian path. They gained their objective, and met the Cheyennes at the crossing of Hat creek.



Yellow Hand Reproduction by Bucklin.

The soldiers from Fort Robinson and the Cheyennes met on the present War Bonnet ranch. During this battle, Buffalo Bill is said to have had his famous duel with Yellow Hand, and to have killed him, although the real facts have long been in dispute.

Some believe that Cody killed the chief that July day. Others say he was killed by another man's bullet. Another group believes that the man who caused his death is not known or that two or three guns were leveled on him, and that no one can say positively whose bullet killed the chief.

Indians Attacked Riders.

At daybreak July 1, a few Indians attacked two despatch riders. Cody with a small group, started a running fight with the Indians. The main body of warriors, surprised by the cavalry, drew up in battle line to await re-enforcements. The cavalry also waited.

War Bonnet ranch, a peaceful enough place today, had its moment of warfare, bloodshed, and strife, which has given it a reputation lasting until today.

Little Bat, the interpreter translated the challenge to the general. the battle of War Bonnet creek was in progress.

In "The Making of Buffalo Bill," Richard J. Walsh describes the fight in Cody's own words:

"'The chief was riding his horse back and forth in front of his men, as if to banter me, and I concluded to accept the challenge. I galloped towards him for fifty yards and he advanced toward me abuot the same distance, both of us riding at full speed, and then, when we were about thirty yards apart, I raised my rifle and fired; his horse fell to the ground, having been killed by my bullet. Almost at the same instant my own horse went down, he having stepped into a gopher hole. The fall did not hurt me much, and I instantly sprang to my feet. The Indian had also recovered himself, and we were now both on foot, and not more than twenty paces apart. We fired at each other simultaneously. My usual luck did not desert me on this occasion, for his bullet missed me, while mine struck him in the breast. He reeled and fell but before he had fairly touched the ground I was upon him, knife in hand, and had driven the keenedged weapon to its hilt in his heart. Jerking his war bonnet off I scientifically scalped him in about five seconds'."

The duel had taken but the briefest time, but the Indians, seeing Cody apart from the troops, tried to cut him off from support. General Merritt, it is said, sent a company immediately to his aid. As the soldiers came up, Mr. Walsh says that Cody cried, as he swung the chieftain's top knot and bonnet:

"'The first scalp for Custer'."

Eager to avenge the death of Yellow Hand, the Indians were sweeping forward, but they were not strong enough to face the carbines. They fled, trying again and again to make a stand, but they finally fled toward the agency and safety. Fearful that they might excite the Indians there, the troops, in solid formation, rode through the agency, toward the fort.

That ended the battle of War Bonnet creek.

It did not end the discussion of the Cody-Yellow Hand duel, which is continuing to the present day.

CODY'S DUEL TOOK PLACE IN REGION

THREE NEBRASKA STUDENTS SPEND SUMMER IN MOUNTAINS.

SELLING PICTURES TO TOURISTS, TRIO FIND PROFIT AND PLEASURE WORKING ALONG CODY ROAD LEADING TO YELLOWSTONE PARK

Back to the quiet of life as dental students in the University of Nebraska are Johnny Kish of Omaha, Bud Bailey of Lincoln and Al Goding of Gettysburg, S. D.

True the tranuility and peacefulness of college life is not apparent to many people but it is to these three students as they contrast it with their strenuous experiences of the summer.

To remember a summer of hard work, which began each day long before the sun thought of rising, the youths have well filled purses. They also have memories of working in the midst of beautiful and awe inspiring scenery that tourists drive thousands of miles to see.

They recall with pleasure horseback riding on the P-Bar-P dude ranch, dancing in railway recreation cars, swimming in sulphur pools and sightseeing in Yellowstone park. Theycan still get a healthy wallop out of thinking about the riot in the Wolfeville dance hall, the thrill of beating their competitors to a sale, and the joys of hitch hiking.

The day after they took their university exams last June the trio pulled out of Lincoln for Cody, Wyo. Bud traveled with Al in his "Old Faithful" roadster which had already seen a year of service in the mountain region. Johnny drove a car out for a group of tourists.

When they reached Cody, Kish and Goding immediately started to work peddling views of the Cody road to Yellowstone. Bailey, who didn't have anything in sight when he started but a vision of the mountains, also began to work but not at any regular job. He washed dishes, painted signs, cleaned windows and did whatever else offered until fortune smiled on him and he also landed a "position' as a picture salesman.

The "boss" of this picture-selling crew was F. J. Hiscock, a kindly, picturesque photographer who has been taking pictures of mountain beauty spots for more than thirty years. Tales of earlier and wilder days as spun by Mr. Hiscock, who boasts of the largest collection in the world of original portraits and pictures of Buffalo Bill, could furnish the entertainment for many an enjoyable evening. The boss, however, was kept busy most of the time developing and printing views for his crew of salesmen.

Slept In Tents.

The Nebraska youths bunked in tents to the rear of the Hiscock home — and therefore can speak vociferously about the cold summer nights in Wyoming. They also took breakfast and their evening meal with the Hiscocks.

Since many tourists are "early birds," the boys were forced to arise at about 5:30 o'clock every morning — or perhaps it would be more truthful to say "nearly every morning. After a supply of pancakes for themselves and views for the tourists the trio piled into Goding's roadster and drove the seven miles up (and the word "up" is used advisedly) the Cody road to the Shoshone dam.

The crew made its headquarters just above Shoshone dam, where everybody making the Yellowstone park trip from the east stops to see the 328-foot mass of concrete which holds back 456,000 acre feet of water.

As soon as the tourists stopped the picture salesmen were on hand to give them a cordial greeting and to sell them a collection of fourteen pictures for $1. Sometimes it was necessary to help push a car up the hill ,to fill a radiator wtih water, or to listen to a hard luck story of punctures and car trouble to help along a sale. At other times the customers had to be entertained. When the big yellow busses which take dudes through the park stopped above the dam the company of Kish, Bailey and Goding always presented a little impromptu clowning to help along business.

Rival Crew Appeared.

After the Nebraskans had been working for several weeks they ran into some competition, another photographer sending out a crew with somewhat similar views of Shoshone dam, lake and the Cody road. Two members of this rival crew were brothers of the young supply pastor who preached at Coolidge's church when the former president spent a summer in Wisconsin. Besides these two brothers, one a Yale student and the other a Minnesota university student, there were two Wyoming university boys with the rival outfit.

The competition for business was intense. As soon as a car came to a stop its occupants were literally engulfed by smiling college boys eager to do them a favor by selling them the best "dam" pictures.

Outside of business, however, the two crews were quite friendly. One day, for example, Bud and one of the Wyoming "U" students climbed Cedar mountain. This was an all-day job, the difficulty of which is realized when it is known that only seven persons have accomplished the feat.

Join In Free For All.

Toward the last of summer an incident occurred which helped to draw the rival salesmen much closer together. All of them dropped in on a dance that night at the Wolfville dance hall, "Where the Wolf Howls Last."

Some of the oil field workers at this dance had imbibed too deeply of bootleg. When one of these drillers tried to pull a "little rough stuff" Goding attempted to play the role of peacemaker. For his efforts he was rewarded with a clout in the mouth. A general free for all followed during which someone struck Goding a blow across the back of the head which knocked him out.

Then a man pulled a revolver, pointed it directly at the obstreperous oil driller and pulled the trigger.

"Horror stricken I awaited for the man to fall," said Johnny in recounting the incident, "He continued to stand there, however. I wondered what kind of a man he was that he wasn't affected by a bullet through his middle. Then the room began to fill with gas and the tears commenced to stream out of my eyes. Afterward I learned that the man who did the 'shooting' was a deputy sheriff and what he fired was a tear bomb."

Thrown In Jail.

Goding, still unconscious, was carried from the dance hall by the other boys and taken to his room. He was revived just in time to be arrested with Johnny, Bud and the members of the rival crew. The boys then had the somewhat dubious pleasure of becoming acquainted with the interior of the calaboose. It was but a few minutes, however, until they were freed as there were many witnesses to testify that the boys were not responsible for starting the riot.

From that time on, however, there existed some enmity between the picture sellers and the oil drillers. Al, nursing a beautiful shiner, took a trip through the park while some of the oil workers "cooled off." During the rest of the summer none of the crew ventured down town of a night alone.

Some of the best times of the summer were spent at the P-Bar-P ranch, which is located 25 miles west of Cody just below Jim mountain. Several evenings they would start on a horseback ride at about 9 o'clock and end their trip at midnight with a wiener roast and a story telling session before a huge camp fire. Several enjoyable Sundays also were spent at this ranch.

Entertain For Dudes.

The university boys were welcome visitors at this ranch, since they provided entertainment for the eastern "dudes." Johnny, who is a two-year letterman at the university in wrestling, would team for gymnastic stunts with Bud, who has taken part in several university Kosmet Klub shows. Then trio then would entertain with sleight-of-hand stunts and then Al would hypnotize one of the "dudes."

All of the boys learned to hypnotize a willing subject. When they were learning they had one subject that they had a little difficulty in bringing out of the spell. That person was Sam Myers, who being a fraternity brother of Goding and Kish, naturally was skeptical of their ability. They put him under the spell once and brought him out without difficulty and then hypnotized him again. When even a bucket of ice water failed to arouse him the hypnotist became alarmed but after about twenty minutes of frantic work Myers finally came to.

Toward the last of August the weather became so cold that it was necessary for them to keep a big bonfire burning during the entire day. So they weren't at all sorry when it came time to leave.

Al had made the trip through Yellowstone recently so he headed back for Lincoln while Bud and Johnny decided to try a little hitch hiking.

Begin Hitch Hiking Trip.

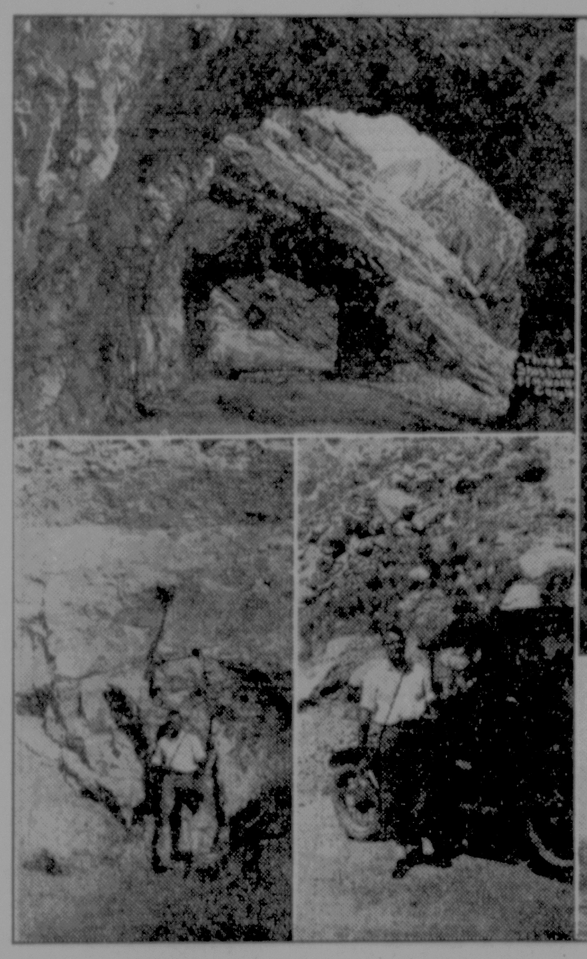
Equipped with nothing but slickers and shaving outfits they established what they believe is the record for an inexpensive trip through Yellowstone, their outlay being but $2.25 each. They had little difficulty in getting rides while in the park—with one exception.

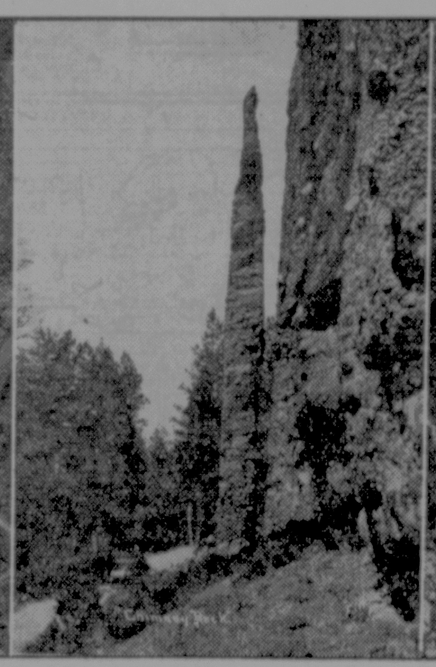
The exception was one evening when they found that at 9 p. m. they were many miles from any camp and apparently all traffic had stopped. The falling snow reminded them that it would soon be extremely cold so they began gathering wood and hunting a nice warm geyser. Just as they were becoming reconciled to the idea of sleeping on a geyser, however, they heard the sound of an approaching car. The driver proved to be kind hearted, so they slept that night at the Old Faithful camp.

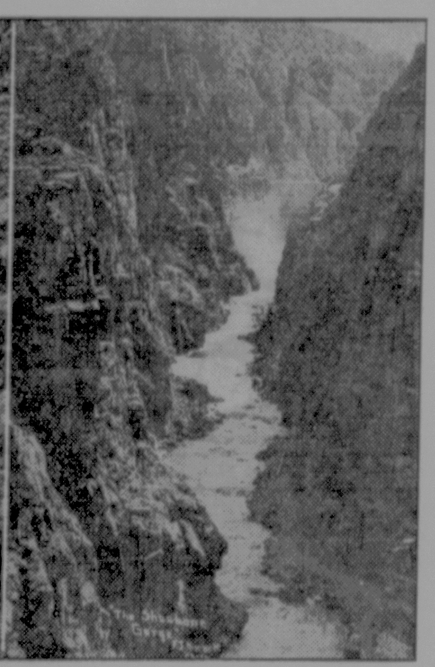
Their real hitch hiking began at the west gate of the park. Since there was little prospect of a tourist giving two persons a lift they would decide on their destination in the morning and then start out singly. They found that their best method was to make friends in the tourist camps, hotels and filling stations. Later in the day if these people passed them along the highway the boys were nearly always certain of a ride.

Kish Wins First Race.

They made a race of each day's trip. Kish won the honors the first day out of Yellowstone when Pocatello, Ida., was the destination, by a scant five minutes. The following day both arrived at Boise, 280 miles from Pocatello, at exactly 4 p. m. Boise remained their headquarters for three days. They made side trips to see Arrowrock dam and to Melba, Ida., where they talked with the Indian, "Doc."







The beautiful mountainous region between Cody, Wyo., and the eastern entrance of Yellowstone park, which is pictured above is where three University of Nebraska students spent the summer selling views to tourists, The trio lived in Cody and early every morning drove up the Cody road to the Shoshone dam, where they worked until the tourist traffic stopped.

The upper four pictures are some of those which the youths sold and were taken by F. J. Hiscock, the pioneer photographer of Cody and the Big Horn basin by whom the students were employed. Three tunnels on the Cody road through Shoshone canyon can be seen in the picture to the upper left. Next to it is a birdseye view of Shoshone dam, reservoir, and power plant. Then comes Chimney rock, a beauty spot along the road. To the upper right is an excellent picture of Shoshone gorge.

Hison, who has been in the canyon for thirty years.

This Indian eats nothing but fish and whole wheat but has a storehouse full of food donated to him by visitors. "Eat all you want," he told the boys. Which they did.

From Melba the two hitch hikers made their way back to Pocatello. The next trip was to Salt Lake City. When Johnny arrived there he found that Bailey had preceded him by nearly four hours so there was little question who won that race. The next day they attempted to "crash" the temple but failing in that consoled themselves by taking a swim in the Salt lake.

Ritzed It At Denver.

From Salt Lake City they went to Cheyenne and then on to Denver. In the Mile High City, they "ritzed" it by staying at a big hotel instead of choosing a hay stack or a barn for sleeping quarters. The next hitch from Denver to Kearney and the following night, September 14, they arrived in Lincoln, just in time for fraternity rush week. Kish and Goding are members of the Theta Chi fraternity and Bailey belongs to Alpha Sigma Phi.

Bud who is a freshman in the dental college, already is making plans for another season of picture selling. Kish and Goding, however, graduate next spring. After they get their degrees they plan to go places and see things for a while and so already are making inquiries with the view of setting up dental practices in South America.

Pawnee Arranges For A Big Home-Coming

Ruth Pyle will read the prize poem, and Kenneth S. Wherry, president of the fair association, will give the address of welcome.

Following a program by the united Pawnee City bands at 12:30 o'clock, John Story and Larry Ruch, chief test pilot of an American aircraft corporation, will deliver a program of cold chills through their planes. They'll fly upside down, have a toy baloon bursting contest in the skies, do tail spins and loops, a falling leaf and dives, with their other stunts ,each afternoon.

Chancellor E. A. Burnett will speak at 2 o'clock, preceding which all those connected with the university will stand during his introduction. His talk will be followed by team exhibitions and a matinee, after which comes the university football game. With the boys will be "Indian" Schulte, Herbert Gish, athletic director and possibly Coach D. X. Bible. The evening program closes with more music by the band, a real carnival atmosphere for a time ,a night show—and "The Isle of Tasboni."

A Richardson county organization of the first congressional district—the day being officially titled for the district which opens the Thursday program is the Humboldt Thursday program—is the Humboldt band.

Leading in interest the opening program of the day is the grand band contest. Six or eight bands are to compete. Table Rock band which won the state fair championship of Class C in September, making a higher rating than the winners of Class B; DuBois, with home rooters in 400 cars accompanying them, and Summerfield, Kas., are among the bands competing. The Pawnee City high school band, which took first place in Class A, and became grand champions in the contest between Class A and Class B, in 1928 and 1929, is playing often at the fair, but is not competing, because of residence and because of its state fair competition.

Thursday is a full day. After the band contest, the livestock will be paraded, picnic dinners in the grove will again be enjoyed, and during the luncheon hour, the Humboldt band will give a concert. Racing and the usual fair attractions occupy the early part of the afternoon.

At 2 o'clock. John E. Curtiss, chairman of the railway commission, is to speak. At the close of his remarks, a stockyards team of high merit will show again, and the grayhound race will be held.

Morehead Will Speak.

Congressman John H. Morehead has accepted an invitation to speak at the fair, and his address is scheduled for 3 o'clock. The afternoon program closes with a parade of the Pawnee City band, a good ball game between Humboldt and Summerfield, Kas., another concert by the Humboldt band, with the colorful, tuneful, captivating "Isle of Tasbonio" as the final delight.

Friday night, as the close of Kansas-Nebraska day, brings the big athletic carnival. It is an evening of athletic numbers, wrestling and prize fighting, climaxed with an exhibition match between Harold Matthews of Lincoln, a former Pawnee boy, now a well known light weight fighter, and Kid Shadow. Matthews has just returned from a successful tour of the Pacific coast where the papers pointed him out as one of the best in his class. His opponent is a slugger—so action will be the result of the evening's card. Ira Vorhies, state boxing commissioner, is arranging the preliminaries and procuring the referees and other licensed officials.

Women are especially remembered Friday morning, for a rolling pin contest has been arranged. Half a hundred women entered this event last year, and it is thought it will draw out a larger registration this year. Preliminaries and semi-finals of the Shetland pony races will be held in the morning, and the finals in the afternoon.

Just preceding the luncheon hour, a grand auto parade is to be staged on the track. It will include the latest models in passenger cars and the most utilitarian of trucks. The dining hall on the fair grounds celebrates its first birthday at noon on Friday.

Free acts, guaranteed to have a thrill, will alternate with the racing events during the afternoon. As a contrast to the fair and its pleasures of fifty years ago, the afternoon's air program will be especially daring, recalling to those who were present at that fair half a century ago and who are enjoying this one of the differences the interim has wrought.

C. A. Sorensen, attorney general of Nebraska, is to address the fair crowds at 2:30 o'clock Friday. Later in the afternoon, a football game between Pawnee City and Seneca has been arranged, and the Seneca band will play at 6:30 o'clock.

The officers of the Pawnee County Fair association, who have planned this homecoming jubilee, include Kenneth Wherry, president; Byford Kenneth Wherry, president; Byfor Anderson, vice president; D. W. Osborn, secretary; Joseph Petrea, treasurer; C. T. Barton, G. F. Avery, jr., A. J. Niles, George M. Miller, Joe Vance, Fred Woods, directors.

Monday will mark the opening of the fall session of the home economics department of the adult education division of the Lincoln public schools. According to Mrs. Daisy H. Kilgore, supervisor of the department, thirty-three different classes will be held each week for the nine weeks term.

From its meager beginnings in 1924 when it had an enrollment of less than 400, the department has grown until the enrollment averages about 1600. Mrs. Kilgore, in discussing this growth in the work, stated that people are just beginning to realize the value of training in home building. She illustrated the appreciation of those enrolled in these courses by quoting the words of one of the mothers in the home training class. The mother, who had been using only canned milk for her children before the school taught her the danger of the practice, exclaimed. "It frightens me to think what the consequences might have been had I not learned the importance of milk in children's diet."

Much Progress Recently.

Mrs. Kilgore dwelt particularly on the advances that are being made in the field of adult home economics education. She told how in the early stages of this branch of education, only simple cooking and sewing were taught. In the former, no scientific basis was given for the instruction as is true today. At present, home economics classes delve into problems of child management, artistic planning of the home, maintenance of the proper social relationships within the family, child nursing, and similar more advanced subjects.

According to Mrs. Kilgore, the increasing complexity of the problem of home economics instruction can be gathered from the statement made by Dr. W. W. Carters of Ohio State university that a mother in the home has between 5,000 and 6,000 different specific tasks to perform.

Receive Federal Aid.

The maintenance of the department is made possible through appropriations by the city, state and national governments for adult education. One sum is received from the federal government under the Smith-Hughes act while a new large appropriation is received under the Georges-Menges-Reed bill which was passed this year This provides for $4,300 for adult education in Nebraska for the ensuing year. This amount is to be compounded each year for five years by the addition of an additional $4,300 each year.

Besides Mrs. Kilgore, the depart-

Radio Digest

Radiograms.

Radio broadcasting stations are owned and operated by 11 cities and towns in the United States.

China has about 12 radio stations, all owned by the Nationalist government or the various state government.

Of the estimated 10,500,000 homes in the United States having radio receivers, only about 3,000,000 have electric light power operated sets.

The radio division of the U. S. Department of Commerce maintains nine district offices, seven suboffices, a personnel numbering 160, and a fleet of test cars euipped with the most modern apparatus.

A portable radio-transmitter has been developed, which can be carried strapped to the shoulders of an announcer, to describe events from points where the regular microphones cannot be placed. The range of the transmitter is said to be about one mile, and the antenna carried by assistants, is held aloft by two poles. The apparatus resembles the old-style gas mask.

Miss Helen Schwieger, popular university co-ed, and Governor A. J. Weaver will officially christen and dedicate the Profitable Pork Special exhibit train Tuesday afternoon of the coming week. The train is to start Tueseday evening on its tour of sixty-three towns along the Burlington route.

Of all the educational trains to be operated in recent years this one is the first to receive the official attention of university, state, and railroad representatives, W. H. Brokaw, director of the extension service of the agricultural college, pointed out Saturday.

Miss Schwieger will swing a bottle of lard against the nose of the largest locomotive on the Burlington lines when she christens the special. The young lady was chosen as representative of the Cornhusker state and the university. She is a Kappa Alpha Theta and prominent in student activities.

Ceremonies At Depot.

Pure lard, the product of Nebraska hogs, is being used in preference to the usual christening fluid on this occasion. Prof. William J. Loeffel, in charge of the meats courses in the college of agriculture, has prepared the lard.

Ceremonies will take place promptly at 2:30 on a platform erected just south of the Burlington station. The big engine will push its nose up to the edge of the planks and wait for the christening. It will bring the exhibit coaches in to the side tracks so local people may go through the entire train as soon as the ceremony is over.

Two hundred guests have been invited to take luncheon with the chamber of commerce at noon. Two thousand Lancaster county farmers have been invited to visit the train during the afternoon.

President Eager of the chamber will preside at the train program. He will introduce a Burlington official who will tell how farmers along their lines interested them in operating special hog exhibit train. Chancellor Burnett will tell how the university has co-operated in preparing the exhibits and manning the train with college authorities. Governor Weaver will dedicate the train "to its tour of usefulness," and then Miss Schwieger will christen it the Profitable Pork Special.

Six Coaches Of Exhibits.

Exhibits on the train are to be contained in six coaches. Uniform production of hogs year after year, prevention of disease and parasite troubles through hog lot sanitation, Ernest Whisenand of Harvard and his own pigs which he has raised on clean ground, results of recent experiments at the college of agriculture, hog equipment, feeds and feeding, and types of hogs and carcasses are the main topics of the exhibits.

It is expected that the "Pig Tale" of Shorty, Ham And, and High Pockets shown in the picture will attract a lot of attention during the trip. Some farmers still raise the Shorty type of hogs. Some breeders insist that High Pockets is the kind to have while the general run of farmers like Ham And the best.

Rooters day, ordinarily held at the college of agriculture each October, will be carried to the towns of the state this time in such exhibits as the feeding panels show. Balanced rations, value of pasture and high protein, use of a self feeder, etc. are emphasized in one complete coach.

The special is scheduled to pull out Tuesday evening and make the run to O'Neill that night. The first stop will be at that town Wednesday forenoon. The train will cover the Burlington lines in northeast Nebraska during the week and return to Lincoln again Sunday Oct. 6. It probably will not be open on that day, however, and the chance for Lincoln people to see the exhibits will be on Tuesday afternoon.

RADIO DIGEST

Proper Tubes Necessary for Correct Voltages.

In an A. C. receiver, only the tubes for which the set is designed should be used. Substituting different types of tubes will not only cause different (and incorrect) voltages to be impressed on the substitutes, but will also cause wrong values to be impressed on the other tubes in the set.

Arrange for Demonstration of Set in Home.

Noisy reception, in most cases, is caused by extraneous pick-up by the power lines. It is recommended that prospective purchasers of A. C. sets arrange for demonstrations in their own homes (most dealers are willing to do this) and select a receiver that is least noisy. The well informed dealer can tell which receivers he sells are especially equipped for noise reduction. A good A. C. set should be satisfactorily quiet.

Faulty Shielding Causes Sputtering.

Electrostatic shields must always be grounded and well grounded in a firm manner. These connections are important, and where the shield is aluminum the connection cannot be soldered and there is a mechanical joint which has a possibility of getting loose. This loose ground from the shield will affect reception very much as any other loose joint would. Even though the shield and its ground wire are not in the radio set circuit it must be treated exactly as though it were. Nothing will so definitely give rise to sputtering as a loose shield, loose parts of the shield, or loose connection to the shield or between the shield ground conductor and its ground terminal.

Tuning for DX.

In tuning for distance, it is customary to tune in a squeal or whistle from the carrier wave, then reduce it until the signal is audible, then by readjustment on the tuning controls, it will be possible to make the signal audible in the speaker.

When the Old Battery Wears Out.

Inability to bring the specific gravity up to its original value by a normal ammount of charging is an indication that the useful life of the battery is all over. After a certain length of time the active material on the plates becomes exhausted and nothing can be done to bring it back.

Placement of Aerial.

An outdoor aerial should, whenever possible, be strung in an open space away from nearby objects, such as trees, buildings, and other wires particularly those that run parallel with the aerial. Anything of a nature that will absorb radio signalss will take away just so much energy from the aerial.

When Buying Modern Receiver.

The most important thing to watch when buying a modern receiver is the attitude of the dealer rather than the behavior of the set. Be sure that the purchase is made from a concern that is handling a radio with intent to serve the buyer rather than just to sell a set. The set to choose is the one that will best suit the pocketbook, look the nicest in the home, and give a pleasing sound. Be assured that the installation will be done by an experienced person and that the tubes that are bought with the set are of a reputable manufacture with a reasonable guarantee.

Concerning the Lead-In.

The lead-in wire that connects the antenna to the receiving set and the ground wire should be considered as part of the aerial system. It is advisable to have the top of the aerial and the lead-in made of a single or continuous piece of ire. It is sometimes necessary to splice the lead-in and aerial ires, and in so doing it is advisable to make a good electrical joint by soldering. The point should be taped or otherise covered to prevent corrocion. The lead-in wire should be kept away from the side of the building at at least 2 feet avoiding all metal objects, such as eaves, gutter pipes drain and soil pipes and telephone or electric wires.

Screen-Grid Useless in Old Circuits.

The screen-grid tube has four elements instead of three; it has six terminals instead of the usual four or five; an additional voltage, now required by three-element tubes, must be provide dfor the fourth element in the screen-grid tube; the transformers used with the screen-grid tube must have different electrical characteristics. Because of these physical and electrical differences, the screen-grid tube cannot be substituted for the regular tubes in existing receivers. It would not fit, in the first place, and if it did it would not work. Nor can the screen-grid tube be used in circuits designed for three-element tubes; an entirly different kind of circuit must be used.

For the Notebook.

The average A. C. receiver consumes about 100 watts of electric power.

The wire of an antenna should be higher than other objects, such as the house, trees, and other wires.

The best practical test for tube sensitivity is to put one in the first socket and see what can be done on weak signals.

The fading of distant stations is sometimes due to atmospheric conditions. It may be also caused by the set of another antenna close to the aerial wire.

A transformer will burn out if the winding becomes open circuited through mechanical defect or through mechanical stresses that develop after a period of time.

The cost of A. C. receiver operation is less than the former cost of charging the storage battery and buying new "B" batteries.

The importance of a grid leak and regeneration control must not be underestimated in the reception of distant stations.

Stations will overlap if an antenna is too long. From 75 to 100 feet, including the lead-in, is the correct length.

Ground connections should not be made at the same point as telephone or electric lighting grounds. This will avoid any possible noise arising from these service wires.

Radiograms.

Radio advertising on Sunday is barred in Germany.

Farm families own more than one-fifth of all the receiving sets in use in the United States.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, led by Leopold Stokowski, will broadcast three concerts this winter.

Educational institutions, ranging from high school to state university, own 68 broadcasting stations in the United States.

Sweden leads the world today in the number of receiving sets in proportion to its population. The latest statistics show that there are 412,115 sets to about 6,000,000 inhabitants, or 67.5 per each thousand.

Upwards of $25,000,000 is invested in broadcasting equipment in the United States alone, while more than eight times that amount is said to be invested in radio set manufacturing and distributing plants.

SHOULD SHE GO TO PRISON?

Nowhere has a more puzzling question of justice arisen than in the case of Mrs. Alexander Pantages, of Los Angeles, convicted of a manslaughter charge in connection with an automobile accident which resulted in the death of a man. On the day Mrs. Pantages was to appear in court and receive sentence, her attorney informed the presiding judge she was in a state of complete collapse. An authoritative statement from her physician carried the news that her condition was extremely serious, and later legal counsel declared that to commit her to prison would result in her death.

In effect, then, if the facts have been correctly stated, the penalty of one to ten years in prison, which is the punishment for manslaughter, becomes one of execution.

She had a fair trial. She had the aid of the finest legal counsel which money can procure. As the wife of a multi-millionaire theatrical man, it is certain that nothing was left undone within the limits allowed by the law to establish her innocence. Wealth and prominence were two of the factors which entered most prominently in the case of Mrs. Pantages. The incident out of which grew the charge brought against her might arise to most of us. She had factored in an automobile accident, which had cost a life.

It was claimed that she was intoxicated at the time but that was disputed. In her case at least, wealth and prominence proved a handicap for there was the unswerving demand that here was a case which should be pushed to the limit. It became a matter of discussion in the churches, and in the press, and everywhere there was that cynical conclusion she would go free because money was behind her. If anything it tended to prejudice her case.

We do not mean to suggest the evidence was lacking. It must have been plain and convincing, or the jury would not have returned the verdict which it did. We do not mean that in the courtroom Mrs. Pantages was deprived of her rights because everything which a judge could do to insure a fair and impartial trial was observed.

The case is interesting because it so forcefully illustrates that mere prison confident is not the full torture which falls upon those confronted with charges of lawlessness. A sensitive man or women suffers as much before the jury returns its verdict as they do when their doom is pronounced. The anxiety, the worry, the dread which precedes those weeks of formal arraignment cannot be weighed unless it is possible to determine the cost of sleepless nights and dark days which are blackened with the grim spectre of possible conviction. Then there is that seemingly interminable whirl of evidence, the arguments of lawyers before the jury, and finally those hours which must be endured while those to whom a decision is entrusted have arrived at their finding. Isn't that punishment?

It is a peculiar part of human nature to suffer under uncertainty. We can bear up under surprising shocks and bumps and blows if we only know what they are and where they come from. Even prison life, horrible as it is, become bearable and preferable to uncertainty. Mrs. Pantages has already paid a very heavy penalty for the deporable accident which is charged to her recklessness and criminal negligence.

We repeat that here is a case which calls for the wisdom of Solomon in the serving of justice. The great wealth back of Mrs. Pantages complicates it. If she were a nobody without position or money it could be settled without much trouble. If it were actually established that her life would be imperiled by imprisonment she would be paroled beyond question. The penaty for manslaughter is not death. But because it has been said by the man on the street that you can't convict and imprison wealth, the course appears less clear. Should it be?

THE ANXIETY FOR LINDBERGH.

Col. Charles Lindbergh, it is announced, upon his return from his present mission to the West Indies and South America, will fly over the almost impenetrable jungles of southeastern Mexico for the purpose of locating cities of the vanished Maya civilization, which flourished unknown ages ago. He will be accompanied by scientists and photographers and it is expected that the adventure will result in the development of knowledge of the greatest scientific value.

This trip will without doubt be one of the most perilous which Col. Lindbergh has ever undertaken. for a forced landng would in most cases prove disastrous. It is also stated that there is a scarcity of safe drinking water in the area to be covered, so the voyage might prove doubly dangerous.

All of the people of America will be deeply interested in this venture and most of them will wish that it might not be undertaken. They will feel that this young man, than whom none ever held a higher place in the estimation of his countrymen, should not submit himself to such a hazardous venture, and news from him will be watched for with the deepest anxiety.

Such attitude, however, must seem somewhat inconsistent. Col. Lindbergh is the apostle of aviation He believes thoroughly in it and is convinced that the coming mode of transportation, especially for passengers, is through the air. Since his first and most startling adventure he has devoted himself most assiduously to the promotion of aviation and there is no doubt that much of the advance that has been made in recent months is due to his efforts and example.

Col. Lindbergh believes in the airplane and he has confidence in himself and without such belief and confidence no venture can be made successful. Had not Columbus possessed such attributes he would have turned back when his sailors rebelled, and no one can tell when America might have been discovered. The quiet harbor was no place for the great admiral and no more can the Lone Eagle confine himself to smooth fields. He has been pleased to make of himself the pioneer; the demonstrator, and he is willing to go where anyone else would dare to go.

But Col. Lindbergh is no more brave than he is thorough. He never takes off in a plane without making a thorough personal inspection of it. He knows the condition of every part and never takes an unnecessary risk. His business is flying, his element the air. We may worry about him, but it would be vain to attempt to keep him on the ground.

JOHN D'S FIRST JOB.

Seventy-three years ago Thursday a youth by the name of John D. Rockefeller took his first job in a humble clerical capacity. He became the richest man in the world and the master mind who moulded together the greatest oil organization in the world.

Rockefeller went to work as a youth because he wanted to work. In his very first job he took something with him which proved invaluable in his climb to the lofty pinnacle which he attained. That was a liking for the job and a willingness to study its requirements. It is related that the yonng Rockefeller welcomed criticism and made a careful study of his mistakes.

In spite of the vast changes in business and industry which have taken place, some of those traits which brought Rockefeller his success can still be utilized to the best advantage by ambitious boys and young men. The capacity to bear up under criticism and fire, and to profit by it, is of invaluable worth to one who desires to progress.

What transitions have taken place since young Rockefeller reported to the boss in 1856. Industrial America had not been born then. The machine age, with its changes, was unheralded. The west had not been conquered. America was for the most part largely primitive agrarian in its occupation. There were no large cities; what we call the corporate form of business and industrial operation was yet to be devised. The United States has become an industrial instead of an agricultural empire. Machinery has revolutionized production. But the same virtues which enabled young Rockefeller to become a commanding world figure still have their place.

MORE SHAPELY PICKLES.

It appears that the lifelong efforts of Professor George E. Starr are to be rewarded. He has been laboring to produce the perfect, aesthetic pickle, with a graceful streamline body.

That is a laudable endeavor. We demand beauty as well as substance. There is no joy in swallowing a pickle so twisted and knotty. Even though it came from the same brine and through the same processes which imparted a delightful taste to its more symmetrical cousin it does not taste as good.

"I am employing an old eugenic principle to develop them," he said at the national packers' convention recently. "I am using a process of selection and inbreeding on the raw cucumbers, such as was employed by the ancient Egyptians to keep the royal strain pure. The perfect pickle is on the horizon."

There is a real sales talk. It should appeal greatly to the reputed sentimental American to learn that the same process which produced the greatest beauty of ancient Egypt has produced the perfect pickle.

BROOKHART TO THE RESCUE.

Senator R. B. Howell did not add to his prestige through the recent episode which startled Washington and for the time being focused the spotlight upon the Nebraskan. His challenge to President Hoover to put teeth in liquor law enforcement in the national capitol made Senator Howell a day's news sensation. Then when Mr. Howell admitted he was not prepared to cite facts and furnish information to back up his charges the eighteenth amendment was openly flaunted in Washington, the excitement flattened out.

But Senator Smith Brookhart of Iowa reveals none of the timidity which characterized Senator Howell. He rose to the assistance of his colleague and offered to give facts.

Brookhart challenged District Attorney Leo A. Rover to call him before the grand jury. In the senate Mr. Brookhart described a dinner attended by members of congress at which he said liquor was served. More than that hip flasks were given to senators as souvenirs, the Iowan insisted.

"Why doesn't District Attorney Rover have me summoned before the grand jury," Senator Brookhart said. "I will take oath to tell the truth and I will tell all of it."

That is something tangible for Mr. Hoover to investigate. The president called upon Mr. Howell to produce the truth of his charge of lax enforcement and the Nebraskan declined. But a fiery and willing substitute has appeared in the person of Brookhart. It puts the next move up to Mr. Hoover. No doubt the president was sincere in his expressed indignation that a member of the United States senate should make such charges as Howell made. His insistence that Washington was free from bootlegging and illegal liquor drinking has thrown the entire question open. For the time being the spotlight rests upon Senator Brookhart. Will the district attorney call the Iowan before the grand jury to tell of a congressional dinner at which liquor was served? In the event the district attorney fails to act, will Mr. Hoover direct the Iowan be given a chance to tell his story. Never popular with his fellow legislators, it's a safe gamble that Brookhart has not made any new friends in congress.

Homely Philosophy

There has been a boom in your town and a small sum of money invested by you some time ago has suddenly jumped in value to heights you never dreamed.

It is such a surprise to you and so acceptable in your present financial condition that you almost go wild with enthusiasm.

You had never hoped to call any such sum your own.

You are not a man versed in Wall street and your education did not include the methods of big business nor tips on stocks and bonds.

You immediately, however, imagine yourself a great financier and quite lose sight of the fact that it is through no business sagacity of your own that you many times doubled your money.

The conditions which enhanced the market value of your investments is something beyond your control—in fact you cannot understand how it all came about.

Look here, old man, it is time for you to exercise your bump of caution—time for you to get some outside angles on the changed business conditions in your town.

Don't borrow beyond your depth to invest again, for bubbles burst.

Story Of A Misspent Boyhood

BY WILL ROGERS.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. Course football is getting all the play now and it beehooves us old Alumni's to get out with the cash and do our bit for old (I forgot the name).

I don't mean spend the money now. I mean get ready to spend it for later on when you see whether they need ends, or backs, or tackles. But get out now and go all over the country and see all the Prep school games you can and when a promising head arises why get on the job. Every time a good tackle is made go to the boy and explain to him the advantages of a free education under a splendid coach at old "Bohunk College."

I was just a thinking what I would have to do if I was to start out to help out my old schools. "Drungoul" was a little one-room log cabin four miles east of Chelsea, Indian Territory. (where I am right now writing this article). It was all Indian kids went there and I being part Cherokee (had enough white in me to make my honesty questionable).

Now that schol is not now in existance. Why? Why because the old alumni let the football material fall down.

There must have been about thirty of us in that room that had rode horseback and walked miles to get there, and by the way it was a Co Ed Institution. About half of em was Coo Coo Eds. We graduated when we could print our full name and unumerate to the teacher, or Principle, or Faculty, (Well whenever we could name to her) the nationality of the last Democratic President.

But as I say the schol went out of business. We wasent able to get games which was profitable. It seems that other schools grabbed off all the other good dates, and got the breaks in the newspapers. We couldent seem to ever be accused of proffesionalism. I could see the finish even as far back as when I was there along in 1887. I could tell then that the old Grads wasent getting out geting us the material that we should have to complete for the big gate receipts. We could tell it there in the school.

Why I can remember when the Coach couldent get enough out of us 15 Boys out to make a team. We got to running Horse races instead. Why there was just lots of days I dident go out for Skull practice at all. I had a little chestnut mare that was beating everything that any of them could ride to school and I was losing interest in what we was really there for. I was kinder forgetting that we was there to put the old school on a Paying basis by seeing how many times we could get through that Goal with that old pigskin.

Lacked Foresight.

I got to thinking well Horseracing is the big game, thats where the money is, thats what the crowds pay to see. But as years went along it showed that I was a Lad of mighty poor foresight. Little did I dream that it was football that was to be the real McCoy. Course we had no way of hardly teling it then, for we was paid practically nothing at all. In fact we had what I would call a Real Simon Pure Amateur Team. Course we got our side line, (Schooling) free. The Cherookee Nation, (we then had our own Government, and the name Oklahoma was as foreign to us as a Tooth Paste). Well the Cherookee Nation paid the Teacher, and I guess Rockefeller paid the Football Coach.

But anyhow there was mighty few of us that was there under any kind of a guarantee. Course I will admit one of the Alumni got me to go there. He had spent three weeks there and couldent get along with the Teacher and he wanted to do what he could for the old School so he procured me. I looked like a promising End. I could run pretty fast. In fact my nickname was and is to this day among some of the old timers "Rabbit." I could never figure out of that referred to my speed or my heart. But I, like a fool, dident make him put up anything, or guarantee me any privaleges while at school.

Needed a Stadium.

Mind you, you wouldent believe it, but we dident even have a Stadium. Think of that in this day and time! Thousands and Thousands of acres surrounded us with not a thing on it but Cows and not a concrete seat for a spectator to sit on. Well you see as I look back on it now, a school like that dident have any license to exist. It had to perish. It just staid with books, such as Rays Arithmatic, and McGuffy 1st, 2nd, (and two pupils in the 3rd) Readers. We had even a Geography around there but we just used it for the pictures of the cattle grazing in the Argentine and the wolves attacking the sleighs in Russia. Well you see they just couldent see what was the future in Colleges. They just wore out the old books instead of wearing out some footballs. We was a printing our A B C's when we ought to have been marking down "Tackles Back" and "Lateral Passes." We had Indian Boys that could knock a Squirrel out of a Tree with a rock. But do you think the Regents knew enough to get a Pop Warner and teach em how to hide a Ball under their Jerseys? No. They just had the old fashioned idea that the place must be made self-sustaining by learning alone, and you see where their ignorance got them. Now the weeds is higher than the School house was, and thats what is happening in a few places in this country. We got those same "Drumgoul" ideas. Course not many but a few. They wont switch and get to the new ideas that its open field runinng that gets your old College somewhere and not a pack of spectacled Orators, or a mess of Civil Engineers. Its better to turn out one good Coach than Ten College Presidents. His name will be in the papers every day and it will always be referred to where he come from. But with the College Presidents, why as far as publicity is concerned they just as well might have matriculated in Hong Kong. So dont let your school be another Drumgoul.

Parental Plans

(The Wabash Plain Dealer.)

The business man was talking about his plans for his son.

"I want him," he said, "to have enough money so that he can really live. I want him to be able to enjoy life, instead of having to spend all of his time working his head off just to make a bare living. When you work too hard life goes by you before you know it—and by the time you have money and leisure to do the things you want to do, you've forgotten how."

That wish—to smooth things out for our children so that they can have a better life than we have had—is a wish that all of us share. Our highest, dearest plans are always the plans that revolve about the son or the daughter. Like this business man, we want them to be free from the demands of bread and butter, "so that they can really live."

Some men succeed in this ambition and some men fail; but the point worth remembering is that it doesn't matter very greatly, after all, which way it comes out.

Money and leisure are fine things, but the genuine fruits of life are not bought with them, in fact, life's real richness has a way of coming to those who forget all about the great quest for happiness and apply themselves strictly to the job at hand.

Consider the case of Mr. Average Man. He is young, ambitious and full of fine dreams. He marries, and always, just ahead, he foresees a day when he and his wife will not have to work quite so hard, when the visions of his youth can be made real, when he can have time to taste the savor of life and escape from the daily routine.

If he is like most of us, that time never comes. He finds, in the course of time, that he is always going to have to work hard. The bright tomorrow of his dreams never comes. Life never reaches a climax, as he had expected it to.

In other words, like most of us, he has to stick close to his job as long as he lives.

But it is a mistake to feel sorry for him.

The pattern of life is not worked out by restful contemplation and idleness. It comes into shape by dint of hard work. The man who is forever busy, working so that he and his may be fed and housed and clothed, is closer to the ultimate secret than any philosopher in his study.

For it is only by toil and sacrifice and endurance that a man ever gets a realization of life's nobility and high purpose. The workaday path may lead through deep valleys and monotonous plains, but there come times when the man who follows it finds himself on a lofty peak, from which he can see distant, miraculous vistas.

Here and There

(Kansas City Star.)

No more fatalities growing out of the inexperience and incompetency of pilots should be necessary to bring enforcement of the laws covering use of aircraft for carrying passengers or for commercial purposes of any kind. Missouri now has air regulations which supplement the federal laws, so that both intrastate and interstate operations can be adequately checked. There must be rigid control of the matter, both in the interest of public safety and of aviation progress. To the inevitable hazards of the air must not be added the readily preventable accidents.

Attention to this situation is demanded by the growth of the aviation business. In Kansas City alone there now are about ten schools that are giving instruction to approximately 500 students of flying. There are hundreds of these schools and increasing thousands of students in the country. In addition, there is individual instruction by pilots who take one or more students in charge from time to time. The department of commerce is preparing to bring all the schools under standard and uniform regulations and may find a way to deal with the individual cases.

But there will be the growing menace of flying by those who have not completed training or had necessary experience, of the use of unsafe planes, or other violation of air regulations. The federal department has its inspectors and representatives at various points in the country. It is too much to expect, however, that they will be able to keep tab on every plane that may take off from an airport. But the field manager or an assistant can do it. The responsibility ought to be definitely placed and maintained. It would mean the saving of lives and the building up of public confidence in use of the air.

The Henpecked Man.

(E. W. Howe's Monthly.)

A form of hen-pecking has been common since the beginning of time, but women originally voiced their protests in private, when the children might not hear. In modern days hen-pecking has become the most public thing we have, ranging from suits at law, in presence of great crowds, to public shooting. Formerly women had only their natural wit to voice their wrongs, and men might make such defense as they were capable of under fair rules, but now the women are represented by the best lawyers, assisted always by public sentiment, and too frequently by jurymen and judges who, hen-pecked at home, perform in the same spirit in public. The subjugation of men has gone to such lengths that the newspapers say one man has already devoted 20 millions to settling with defendants his gallantry has aroused, and who, still having confidence in justice, has lately married again.

Japan Has Expert Builders.

(The Osaka Maunchi.)

So far as sheer skill and craftsmanship go, Japanese carpenters are probably the greatest artisans in the world. Consider the houses they build. Unlike their occidental brothers, whose building process is little more than assembling, they create houses from the ground up, out of crude timber. The part they play is unusually heavy, for they saw, plane and chisel! Yet the "children of their brain" are a marvelous display of artistic creation. What is more, save in such instances in which they erect imposing religious edifices, they usually erect the houses without any expert draft plan at their disposal. Taking all these facts into consideration, the skill they display is little short of wondrous.

Artistic as their creations are, the houses they erect leave very much to be desired, when hygienic aspects and actual living comfort are taken into account. It must not be forgotten that it is not exactly their fault. On the contrary, the home-owners or home builders are as much—or more—to blame, as the carpenters, most of whom are usually devoid of scientific knowledge. Another thing which is retarding the modernization of dwellings in Japan and is making them less sanitary, is the apparent unwillingness of people, probably by force of habit, to discard the practice of squatting on mats.

The ill effects of squatting habits are really too obvious to be dwelt on here at length, and can be best appreciated by those who have lived long abroad. In a country like Japan, whose area is none too large, it would be wise to make very best use of the limited space at one's command. Yet, the fact remains that altogether extravagant space is used in houses.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright 1929, New York Tribune.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

Augusta, Ga.

Why do you spend so much time and pains on married people's troubles? Isn't it apparent that if they cannot settle their difficulties themselves outsiders are not of very much use? Would it not be better to stick to the moral and religious difficulties put up to you? I would appreciate an explanation.

ANSWER.

No problems, personal or social, involve more serious moral and religious difficulties than those of matrimony. However you may regard marriage, it is by general consent more sacred in character and far-reaching in influence than any other compact between individuals. One of the reiterated cries arising from its disruption or violation is: "My soul is at stake!" It is impossible to exclude the marriage tie from any consideration of life. History writers dwell on it in diversified ways in an effort to solve and eliminate its difficulties.

The family, friendship, sex, work, society, private habits, ethics and faith are all swept into the scope of this primary social engagement. Although one receives hundreds of communications concerning the unique contact of two personalities with different parentage, temperaments, tastes and habits, nearly every one of these has distinct characteristics which call for careful consideration. If a man or woman honors me with the submission of a domestic difficulty I will endeavor to repay his or her confidence by giving the best solution of which I am capable, inadequate though that solution may be in many instances, a fact I assure you I fully realize.

Moreover, the situations disclosed in questions and answers dealing with problems of marital and domestic relations may serve as warnings to others of the difficulties to be expected if a given course of conduct is pursued. For a wise husband and wife to be thus forewarned is to be forearmed against suffering a like fate.

I agree with you that outside interference with married couples is often disastrous. But some one must undertake it, the divorce courts being my witness. The wise mediation of city magistrates has prevented thousands of separations and divorces. Medical as well as clerical advisers have likewise rendered a great social service in the reconciliation of quarreling couples, who, if left to their own devices, would have wrecked their homes and stunted the lives of their children through sheer stubbornness and anger.

Moreover if husband or wife or both submit their troubles by correspondence, the response at least has the advantage of being impersonal, detached and non-partisan. The stiffest reserve I discern in these situations is not that created by sex. It is the propensity of wedded couples to interpret their experiences for themselves. Needless to say, many of these interpretations are plainly wrong from an outsider's viewpoint. Might I add that the grateful acknowledgements of help received which come to me emply reward my poor efforts.

Milwaukee, Wis.

Will you kindly tell me what is meant by the term "the freedom of the seas," as used in the various naval disarmament discussions

ANSWER.

Broadly stated, it means the abrogation of any nation's claim to stop and search neutral vessels on the high seas in time of war. Since this claim is necessarily associated with predominant naval power, Great Britain has hitherto been its principal champion.

Her density of population, large industrial interests and geographical position as an island kingdom make her dependent upon extensive importations of food and raw materials. Hence the plea of her naval authorities that the right to stop and search enemy and neutral ships is essential to the feeding of her people and the maintenance of their work during prolonged intervals of armed conflict. By exercising this disrupted right the British navy ultimately vanquished Napoleon I and materially contributed to the defeat of the central powers in the great war. Yet the latter catastrophe showed that had the submarine operations been carried on a little farther, Great Britain's sole salvation from starvation would have been in allowing neutral vessels to carry provisions to her people.

Doubtless her economic life is closely related to her foreign commerce. But this is true of other nations and increasingly so of our own. Nevertheless, we set aside our historic doctrine of the freedom of the seas during the Civil war, and to a lesser extent during our participation in the World war. You will see that the present situation is one of real gravity. But public discussion, both in Great Britain and America, reveals a growing sentiment against the assumed dominancy of the high seas' highways by any navy.

Surely they are the common inheritance of all nations and should not be submitted to the exigencies of physical force. Conference and again conference leading to established laws ruling ocean traffic in peace and war is the sole alternative to a competitive building of war fleets, which no intelligent citizen at home or abroad for a moment desires.

THE TOURIST AS AN ASSET

(The Pittsburg, Kas., Sun)

Frequently you hear someone say that the tourist business doesn't amount to anything to a town, that the tourist passing through doesn't leave any money in the town. That is a stock objection hurled at those who propose to build through roads or strive to get their town on a federal or state highway.

Ordinarily the argument is attached to another one, that road efforts and money should be expended to connect up local sections with the towns. "Build the roads to let the farmers get to town," it is urged.

A Fort Scott restaurant keeper kept account of the strictly tourist business he did at the evening meal time the other day and found that this class of business for that one period amounted to $60. Pittsburg restaurant and hotel proprietors are having experiences that leave them in no doubt about the value of the tourist trade, or about the volume of it when the straight line along the Kansas-Missouri border—73-E—is completely surfaced and straightened, finishing the plans already in progress of completion.

The modern motor tourist is an economic asset to the cities that are on the main highways.

THE SPOKEN DRAMA

Gorgeous Pageantry :: Chorus ;; Orchestra

60,000 Americans in 1921 traveled to Freiburg, at great expense to hear this company in this play. You can now see it in Lincoln for only $2.50 or less.

In 1264 the inhabitants of Freiburg (Baden), Germany, first presented the Passion Play. They have given it periodically in Freiburg since that time, as well as in nearly every city in Europe. Regardless of religion, sect, or creed, this dynamic story's appeal is as wide as human nature, and with offense to none, as it is the traditional Biblical story.

The production is colossal with hundreds of people participating, a thousand of the most beautiful costumes, camels, and a donkey. Scene blends into scene without pause, as one marvels at their genius of stagecraft.

The company was brought to America to dedicate the great Krug Park Bowl at Saint Joseph, Missouri, in August, 1928. In eight evenings, more than 100,000 people paid admisions. They next visited St. Louis, where, in eight performances, more than 80,000 people attended.

The play begins with a prologue depicting Adam and Eve in the Garden, and the Fall of Man. This is followed by a tableau of the Glorification of the Cross. The great drama of the Passion of Christ closes with the Resurrection, and the singing of the might "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah."

O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" To Play Omaha Engagement

One of the most noteworthy events in the entire theatrical history of this section will occur when New York Theater Guild production of Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer Prize play, "Strange Interlude," is presented at the Brandies theater Omaha Oct. 7 for an engagement of 3 days. Owing to the unusual length of the play, which consists of nine acts and runs from 5:30 in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night, with a dinner intermission from 7:40 to 9 p. m., no matinees are given.

Probably no other play ever produced on the American stage has been provocative of so much discussion. Some older playgoers have been heard to declare its candor shocking. The younger generation seems to find it most entertaining, but are puzzled by its philosophy. Yet from reports received from other cities where it has created new house records, it would appear to possess a rare fascination, as no complaints have been made against its long hours of rendition.

As for the story of "Strange Interlude," assuming that there are even now some playgoers who do not know all about it, it may be said that O'Neill evidently intends it to be the portrayal of the complete love life of Nina Leeds, who, cheated of her sweetheart through the war, decides to spend her life giving happiness to others, as they seem to desire happiness. It is a peculiar complex, for she herself feeds on what she gives to these others, and she is only content when they are all completely dependent upon her. As an example, it is with every loving thought of Sam, her husband, that she wants a son for him. And her way of achieving both their happiness is not new to real life; in fact, it has its counterpart in many stories which appear in the daily press. But only a skilled craftsman such as Eugene O'Neill could even attempt that which he has so successfully carried through in this his greatest play.

Myrna was a dancer before she started her picture career, and it was because of her dancing ability that she won the coveted role of "Azuri" in "The Desert Song."

Gary Cooper is also from Montana. He was born at Helena and lived there until he was nine, when he went to England with his parents. After about four years abroad, the family returned to Helena, where Gary went to high school. He was injured in an automobile accident and went to his father's ranch to recuperate.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Please give me the cast of Buddy Rogers in "The River of Romance."

How old is Buddy Rogers? How old are Mary Brian, Esther Ralston, June Collyer, Lila Lee, Constance Howard and Rod La Roque?

The girl that played as "Eva" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is she a movie actress or was she chosen to take that part?

Thanks for the time and trouble. Hope to see this in print soon. JUST A FAN, VI.

Charles Rogers had the role of "Tom Rumford," who later became "the notorious Colonel Blake," in "The River of Romance." The role was created on the stage by Leo Carrillo. Mary Brian was "Lucy," and Lucille Powers took the part of "Elvira." Walter McGrail was assigied the part of "Major Patterson," and Anderson Lawlor took the role of his brother, "Joe Patterson." Wallace Beery was the gambler who was responsible for Tom's change from the timid youth to the bully who finally proved to his sweetheart that he was not a coward.

Mr. Rogers is 24, and Mary Brian has celebrated her twentieth birthday. Esther Ralston was born in 1902, and Lila Lee also claims that year as the date of her birth. Constance Howard is 24, June is in the early twenties, and Mrs. La Rocque is 32.

Virginia Grey is the young lady who took the role of "Eva" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." She was especially chosen for the part from a large assembly of applicants. Virginia is a newcomer to the screen.

Dear Movie Editor—Please give me the cast for "Someone to Love," "The River of Romance," "Close Harmony" and :"Four Sone."

Is there a film called "Magnolia?" I thought "The River of Romance' was taken from the book, "Magnolia."

What is Mary Astor doing now? I knew she was married, but I didn't think she stopped playing in pictures.

How old is Buddy Rogers and how did he get into the movies?

Who was the little girl in "That's My Daddy?" How old is she and what is her address?

How old is June Collyer? What color of hair and eyes does she have?

Will films made five or six years ago ever be shown again, for instance "Peter Pan?" M. N.

"The Close Harmony" cast is: "Al West," Charles Rogers; "Marjorie Merwin," Nancy Carroll; "Ben Barney," Jack Oakie; "Johnny Bay," Richard "Skeets" Gallagher; "Max Mindil, "Harry Green.

And here is your "Four Sons" cast: "Joseph," James Hall; "Grandma," Margaret Mann; "Von Strom," Earle Foxe; "Franz," Francis X. Bushman, jr.; "Andres," Georke Meeker; "Letter Carrier," Albert Gran; "School Master," Frank Reicher; "Inn Keeper," L. J. O'Connor; "Von Stromm's Orderly," Michael Mark; "Johann," Charles Morton; "Burgomaster," August Tollaire; "American Girl, Ann," June Collyer; "James Henry," Wendall Franklin; "Johann's Girl," Ruth Mix.

"The River of Romance" is adapted from the book, "Magnolia." There was a picture made from the book a few years ago with Cullen Landis in the role of "Tom Rumford." If I remember correctly, it was released as "Magnolia."

Mary Astor has been working in pictures since her marriage. "The Woman From Hell" is one of her late releases. Her Fox contract was not renewed and she has not yet signed another, so she is "between pictures" at present.

Mary Pickford is working on "The Taming of the Shrew." Mary Brian will be seen next in "Kibitzer." She also plays in "The Virginian."

"Buddy" Rogers has completed "Illusion," and will soon start work on "Here Comes the Bandwagon."

Barbara Kent is working for Universal in "Flaming Daughters" and "Keep on Dancing."

Mr. Rogers is twenty-four. His picture career came about accidentally. The theater manager in Olathe, Kansas, where "Buddy" was born, sent his photograph into the Paramount School of Acting, and Buddy was one of the few lucky enough to be chosen as a student of the school from among thousands of applicants. When he made his screen debut in "Fascinating Youth," the picture which featured the graduates of the school, "Buddy" made a big hit with the fans. Each graduate received a year's contract with Paramount, with an option on their services for a longer period. Mr. Rogers is still with that company, and has become a star.

Jane La Verne, who played in "That's My Daddy," is eight years old. You will find her at the Universal Studio, Universal City, Calif.

June Collyer is in the early twenties and has medium brown hair and eyes.

The old films are often re-issued for second run theaters if they happen to prove popular with the fans. "Peter Pan" may be shown again sometime with sound, as several of the former favorites are taking on new life that way. "The Phantom of the Opera" is already "taking voice" and will be released in the near future as a sound picture.

Dear Movie Editor—I wrote you once before about two years ago, so of course I am stuffed full of questions to ask you.

First of all I want to say same things about pictures I have seen. Last night I went to see the most wonderful picture. Victor MacLaglin in "The Black Watch." That picture outshines all pictures that I have seen for ages. I am especially fond of pictures of that sort, but that one, words can't describe it!

Another picture that I thought was wonderful is "The Wolf Song," starring Gary Cooper and Lupe Velez. That one and "The Desert Song" were just as good. Both were perfect.

Now for the disgusting pictures. Without naming any, I think any picture starring Greta Garbo and John Gilbert are perfectly disgusting. John Gilbert is always showing his teeth. Well, we all know that his teeth are perfect, so why always have his mouth open showing his teeth.

Also "Wings" was a disgusting picture. A sort of slam for Buddy. Aren't Buddy Rogers and Mary Brian adorable? Well enough for that.

Could you please give me the cast for the following pictures: "The Black Watch." "Wolf Song," "Lilac Time," "The Desert Song," "The River of Romance" and "The Midnight Taxi?"

Why do we not see Antonio Moreno any more? I don't see why they always stick the good actors and actresses in the background.

Could you give me all the information you know about Victor McLaglen, the boy who played the part of Victor's brother Malcolm in "The Black Watch," Nils Asther, Lupe Velez, Ramon Novarro, Doloros Del Rio, Myrna Loy and Gary Cooper?

Where could I write for the following pictures: Al Jolson, Sonny Boy, Antonio Moreno, the boy and the girl who played the leading roles in "The Voice of the City," Buddy Rogers, Mary Brian, Ronald Colman, Clara Bow, Mary Pickford, Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and Francis X. Bushman, Jr.

Oh yes, what was the theme song Lupe Velez sang in "The Wolf Song?"

Well, I have rambled along long enough, so will jump off. JESSE.

Just a minute until I get my breath! Whew! But then, since you haven't been here for two years, there's a reason. Come oftener.

The cast for "The Black Watch" is: Capt. Donald Gording King, Victor McLaglen; Yasmani, Mynra Loy; Lieut. Malcolm King, David Rollins; Colonel of the Black Watch, Lumsden Hare; Rewa Ghunga, Roy D'Arcy; Mohammed Khan, Mitchell Lewis; Major Twynes, Cyril Chadwick; Harrim Bey, Walter Long; Field Marshal, David Torrence; Black Watch Officer, Pat Somerset.

"The River of Romance" feature Charles Rogers as Tom Rumford, later Colonal Blake; Mary Brian as Lucy; Walter McGrail, Anderson Lawlor, Wallace Berry, Lucille Powers, and Percy Haswell.

"Wolf Song" presented "Sam Lash, Gary Cooper; Lola Salazar, Dupe Velez; Guillion, Louis Wolheim; Rube Thatcher, Constantine Ronamoff; Don Solomon Salazar," Michael Vavitch; Duenna, Ann Brody; Ambrosia Guiterrez, Russell Columbo; Louisia, Augustine Lopez; Black Wolf, George Rigas.

"The Midnight Taxi' cast is: Tony Driscoll, Antonio Moreno; Nan, Helene Costello; The Baron, William Russell; Al, Tommie Dugan; Gertie Fairdax, Myrna Lou; Blake, Pat Hartigan; Jack Madison, Bobby Agnew.

Not last, after all, because you later asked for the cast for "The Voice of the City; Doyle, Robert Ames; Biff, Willard Mack; Beebe, Sylvia Field; Wilmot, James Farley; Wilkes, John Miljan; Johnny, Clark Harshall; Mary, Duane Thompson; Kelly, Tom McQuire; Martha, Alice Moe; Betsy, Beatrice Banyard.

Mr. McLaglen started his career up in Canada as a boxer and wrestler. He was a professional wrestler at the Happyland Park near Winnipeg until J. W. Parkers show arrived in Winnipeg. Hume Duval ,another wrestler and a friend of Victor's, and Victor offered an act constitutin ga physical culture exhibition, with boxing and wrestling as an added attraction, to the Carnival Show, and followed that line for several seasons.

Finally Victor arrived in Hollywood ,and was given the opportunity to play the role of Capt. Flagg in "What Price Glory." He has just recently filmed a sequel to the picture called "The Cock-Eyed World, in which he again assumes the role of Capt. Flagg.

David Rollins, who played the part of Malcolm in "The Black Watch," was born in Kansas City Mo, just twenty years ago September 2. He is one of the most promising of the young actors and has been seen in several hits. One of his most popular pictures was "The Air Circus."

David has medium brown hair and blue eyes. He is nearly five feet eleven in height and weighs 140.

Mr. Asther is a native of Malmo, Sweden. He is another player who owes his screen chance to Mauritz Stiller, the man who was responsible for Greta Garbo's entrance into pictures. Nils had stage as well as screen experience in Sweden before he came to this country. His first movie here was with the Duncan sisters in "Topsy and Eva." He is now under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and was seen recently with Greta Garbo, in "The Single Standard." Nils has brown hair and hazel eyes, tops six feet by half an inch, and weighs 165.

Mr. Novarro is a Mexican. Durango was the scene of his birth in 1899. Ramon's family name was Samaniegos, and there were many children in the family. When Ramon was in Jesuit college, he went in for athletics. It was because of his grace that Marion Morgan gave him an opportunity to dance in her act, when he had had no experience in dancing.

It wasn't long before Ramon was among the "extras" in Hollywood, and it was from the "extra" line that Rex Ingram picked him to play in "The Prisoner of Zenda." Ramon was too good looking to go unnoticed, and he continued to climb steadily to the top. His excellent voice will win him new laurels now on the sound screen. Ramon has dark hair and eyes.

Lupe and Dolores, also Mexicans, have hair and eyes that match Ramon's. Dolores was born at Durango, where she lived on a ranch until she was five. Her name was Dolores Asunsolo, and she was an only child of wealthy people.

From the time she was seven, until she was fifteen, Dolores went to school in a convent, where she learned to speak French as well as her native Spanish. She later had a trip to Europe, and upon her return was presented to society.

When she was still in her 'teens, Dolores married to Jaime Del Rio. She was active in the social activities of the younger set in Mexico City when Edwin Carewe met her and persuaded her to become a picture player.

Lupe was one of the two "unknowns" selected by Douglas Fairbanks for "The Gaucho." Now she is one of the most talked of players in the film city. Lupe started out as a dancer. She was born in Mexico City, and danced in the cantinas there. Then she went to Hollywood to dance in "The Dove," which Richard Bennett expected to produce there. He changed his plans, and Lupe took film tests, which eventually won her a role in "The Gaucho." Her vehement personality did the rest.

Myrna Loy isn't an Oriental as so many suspect. She's a little girl from Montana, whose real name is just ordinary Williams. She has red hair and green eyes which are particularly alluring. She has been in pictures three years, but it was not until "The Desert Song" that she received much notice.

It was when Myrna played the role of the half-caste girl in "Across the Pacific," that Warner

ROBBINS STUDIOS.

Gladys Loetterle, contralto, was the soloist for the opening reception of the Sigma Alpha Iota held at the governor's mansion Wednesday.

Edith Schlytern, of the Interstate concert bureau, Chicago, was a studio guest this week. Formerly a student with Edith Lucille Robbins, Miss Schlytern now makes forty states yearly in her talent and executive work. While in the city Miss Schlytern held conferences with a number of the pupils of the Robbins studios, regarding chautauqua and lyceum contracts for this coming summer.

The Robbins Folk Song Singers, an organization of ladies voices, are now being trained for concert, entertainment, and chautauqua appearances. The work includes folk songs under the guidance of Edith Lucille Robbins and rhythmic interpretation by Marjorie Barstow. Groups of six, eight and ten ladies, members of the Robbins voice classes, will study this work. The work is offered as a special training for music supervisors. The first appearance will occur in Lincoln in October. A few vacancies remaik to be filled.

Ruth Casselman, contralto, a former member of the Los Angeles Oratorio society, John Smallman, director, has registered with Miss Robbins and as a member of the oratorio study in this studio.

Mrs. Floyd Robbins, assisted by Floyd Robbins, presentde the music program Friday evening for the Professional Men's club at the Lincoln hotel.

Much interest, with many new voices ,has been manifested in the reorganization of the Bel Canto Oratorio society for the coming year. The following choral numbers will be presented during the year: The dramatic oratorio, "Ruth," by Cowen, in December, Gaul's "Holy City" will be reviewed and sung. After the holidays the famous "Mass in B Minor," by Bach, will be studied. More tenors are needed in this organization. Tryouts with Miss Robbins. A waiting list of all voices is now being arranged. Interested voices should make application immediately. All voices are enrolled on the waiting list, following the success of the try-outs. A good voice quality and a knowledge of music reading are the essentials for membership. Voices need not be trained singers.

The Oratorio study on Tuesday evenings will begin at 7:15 hereafter, instead of at 7 o'clock as formerly.

MARY HALL THOMAS STUDIO.

Maxine Black played three piano selections for the music appreciation class at the Raymond high school.

The male quartet, in which Harold Hollingsworth is first tenor, sang last week for the Fall Fun festival, Kiwanis football luncheon, and Red Long's. The quartet goes to Pawnee City Wednesday.

Velma and Leita Likes sang a duet for the reception at Warren Community church Friday evening. Viola Curry accompanied.

The personnel of the studio girls' quartet follows: Viola Curry, first soprano; Maxine Black, second soprano; Leita Likes, first alto; Velma Likes, second alto; and Mary Alice Hall, accompanist.

Lincoln Symphony Orchestra Notes

BY ERNST HERMINGHAUS.

There were some interesting notes on the Philadelphia orchestra in a recent issue of the New York Times. The most noteworthy item was the announcement by Mr. Stokowski that there would be no regular concertmeister; the men in the first violin section will rotate in that position. How positively marvelous to have ten violinists capable of assuming the concertmeister's chair! He has a large responsibility. He not only gives the cues to the entire orchestra, but must play solo parts when the score demands.

Let's consider what a concertmeister is. In the first place, he is sort of a liaison officer between the conductor and the personnel. I saw a striking example of this in Chicago a few years ago when Maurice Ravel was conducting. The ovation at the end of the concert was tremendous, and really for Mr. Ravel. He gallantly wished the orchestra to share it and asked them to rise, but they refused to move. Then he appealed to Jaques Gordon, the concertmeister, who was able to bring the men to their feet.

The concertmeister gives the cues to the entire orchestra and sometimes saves the day for the conductor when he forgets and is mistaken. Once Rimsky-Korsakoff was conducting the Beethoven Fifth without score, and became lost in the passage leading from the third to the last movement. The concertmeister carried the orchestra on and gave the beat to Rimsky, who never conducted without score thereafter. The concertmeister not only plays violin cadenzas or solo parts in the score, but is responsible to the conductor for the section. The conductor makes the corrections and notations to the concertmeister rather than directing remarks to the entire section. The others are supposed to follow.

Lastly, the concertmeister is supposed to determine the bowing so that it is done in unison, giving a uniform movement. The effect is very bad when one-half the section bows down while the other half bows up.

Other string section heads have the same responsibilities in relation to their section as the concertmeister has to his. The conductor tells him what to do when he is actually instructing the entire section, but it gives the others an example in the principal. While he is responsible to the conductor, the men are responsible to him.

When Gary entered Grinnell College, he expected to be a newspaper cartoonist, and it was with that aim in view that he went to Los Angeles.

It took some time to get started as a cartoonist, so Gary decided to secure work as an "extra." A featured role in "The Winning of Barbara Worth" caused Gary to change his mind about becoming a cartnoonist, and to stick to pictures. He is now on the road to stardom with Paramount. The "big boy" is two and a half inches over six feet tall and weighs 175 . He has blue eyes and brown hair.

Address Al Jolson and Davey Lee at the Warner Brothers Studio, 5842 Sunset Blvd, Hollywood, Calif. Mr. Moreno is with First National, Burbank, Calif. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., is also at that place.

Ronald Colman, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbank all work at the United Artists Studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood. Address Ronald in care of Samuel Goldwyn Productions.

"The Voice of the City" cast may be reached in care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Culver City, Calif. Address Francis Bushman, jr., there also.

Mary Brian, Buddy Rogers and Clara Bow receive their mail at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathan, Hollywood, Calif.

By the way, Antonio has been doing considerable work since the pictures have found voice. He played with Colleen Moore in "Synthetic Sin," and with Billie Dove in "Adoration," and "Careers."

"Yo Te Amo," was the theme song of "Wolf Song." Miss Valez also sang "Mi Amado," and "To Lola" in the picture.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first letter I have written you, so you may exect a long one. I am twelve yearps old, and am just crazy about movie actresses.

Where could I reach Al Jolson and Davey Lee? I think Betty Bronson is sweet.

Clara Bow isn't bad. I saw her in "Dangerous Curves." I also admire Nancy Carroll and Ruth Taylor.

Hoping this will not reach the waste basket, I remain BLUE EYES.

Davey Lee and Al Jolson are both under contract to Warner Brothers, 5842 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor— Here I am again to thank you for answering my questions concerning some of the movie stars.

I read in the Photoplay magazine where there was a prize given for the best name for the 'talkies," but have never read of a name being selected. Have they found a name for the talkies, and if so, what is it?

Well, as Tom Mix has left the movies and joined a circus, I seldom hear from him. The last, I believe was where he was in trouble about his income tax, but I have never read how he came out about it. Do you know how he came out about his taxes?

I also heard his wife was yet trying for her freedom and had slipped back to the U. S. with little Thomasina, but I have never heard if she has filed for a divorce yet. Has she? What color hair has Thomasina?

Well, some of the new stars will prove good. I think, but it will be a long time before they will surpass some of the old ones. Douglas Fairbanks and Mary, and Milton Sills, and several others are hard to beat.

I have troubled you enough this time, and will appreciate any information you can give on the questions I have asked. Respectfully yours, UKNOWN, Havelock, Neb.

You are always welcome.

I do not try to keep up on all the contests conducted by the various movie magazines, but I've never heard that any definite name has been bestowed upon the sound pictures. We frequently heard them referred to as Vitaphone pictures, because it was the Vitaphone that was first used for the audible film, but there are several other synchronizing attachments now in use of which Movietone is the most popular, perhaps.

There's nothing late on the income tax scandal that has involved several of the prominent players, including Tom Mix. Mr. Mix claims that he had no knowledge of any fraud in the matter, since he left the affair in the charge of an income tax expert.

Mr. and Mrs. Mix are not yet divorced, Thomasina's hair is brown.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first time I have ever written to you, although I never miss reading your interesting letters. I have many questions to ask, so here goes.

My sister and I have had a dispute for some time over a certain matter. She says she heard not long ago that Rin-Tin-Tin died. I said he didn't. Which is right?

Will you please give me the cast for "Keeper of Bees?"

Are the following married and if so to whom, and have they any children: Nancy Carroll, Esther Ralston, Jackie Logan and Irene Rich?

Who is the most popular girl and boy on the screen?

Please give me the names of all stars whose birthdays are in March. Also the date.

My favorites are Buddy Rogers, Mary Brian, John Mack Brown and Clara Bow.

I saw "River of Romance" and thought it was keen.

When will "Little Pal" be released? Will Betty Bronson be in it?

Hoping to see my letter in print soon. A friend of Movieland, BEE.

I just love to settle arguments, and in this case you take the money. Rin-Tin-Tin is still very much alive. Peter, the Great, and Strongheart are the dog actors who have died during the past few years. Strongheart has only been dead a few months.

The cast for "Keeper of Bees" is: "James Lewis McFarlane," Robert Frazier; "Michael Worthington," Jesef Swickard; "Margaret Cameron," Martha Mattoxl; "Alice Louise Cameron, 'Lolly'," Clara Bow; "Molly Cameron," Alyce Mills; "Jean Meredith," Gene Stratton; "Angel Face," Joe Coppa; "Fat Ole Bill," Ainse Charland; "Nice Child," Billy Osborne.

Nancy Carroll is Mrs. Jack Kirkland, and thye have a small daughter. Mrs. Webb is known on the screen as Esther Ralston. Jackie Lofan and Irene Rich are married to non-professionals. Irene has two daughters by her first husband, and Jackie has no children. Neither does Esther.

Anita Page is nineteen and weighs 115. Joan Crawford's twenty-three, and she tips the scales at 112. Clara Bow is twenty-four and keeps her weight down to 110. In spite of the fact that Mary Pickford has been on the screen for years, she is only thirty-six. Mary's an even hundred in weight.

Alice White weighs 105 and is twenty-two. Louise Brooks was born in 1901 and weighs 110. Nancy Carroll is the same age as Alice, and the scales register 118 when she step on them. Loretta is sixteen, and can hardly bring her weight up to 100 pounds.

If you judge by the Fan mail, Clara Bow and Charles Rogers are the most popular players on the screen. Clara get's about 35,000 letters a month, and no player has topped that, and Charles receives more letters than Valentino ever did at the height of his career.

The picture which was filmed under the working title, "Little Pal," had its premier in New York, August 6, as "Say It With Songs." Davey Lee and Al Jolson were in it, but Mary Nixon and not Betty plays the leading feminine role.

There seems to be several birthdays in March. John Loder celebrates on the very first day and Doris Hill ends the month. Gloria Swanson celebrates the third, and Dorothy Gish and Lois Moran could have one birthday cake together as their birthdays fall March 11. Betty Compson came March 18, and Syd Chaplin would have been called Patrick had he been born in Ireland, as his birthday comes on the Irish Saint's day.

The west of the house faces a variegated tile terrace onto which the dining room opens through French doors. The lawn extends at the terrace level to overlook a sunken garden, the main features of which are a lily pool and rock garden. The background is furnished by the orchard and garden 200 feet to the rear; these are to be partly hidden by trellis work.

The interior consists of nine rooms, the conventional living room, dining room and kitchen comprising the first floor group; the upstairs contains a master bedroom and two smaller bedrooms, while the basement in addition to the usual utility rooms has a maid's room and a large den.

The fireplace of tuscan red mosaic tile with its walnut mantel forms the keynote for the color harmonies of the living room, while the large fireplace of rustic field stone is the center of attraction in the den.

Screen Siftings

Joins Talkies—Another vaudeville favorite has decided to cast his lot with talking pictures. Harry Green has signed a long term contract with Paramount, and will start work on a new picture for that company as soon as he completes his role opposite Fannie Brice jr. "The Champ," a United Artists production. Mr. Green recently completed the title role in "The Kibitzer," a Paramount production. He was a headliner on the Keith and Orpheum vaudeville circuits for many years in his characterization of "George Washington Cohen."

Use New Closeup Lens—A new camera lens, called "The Fischbeck third-dimensional lens for camera portraiture," is being used for all of the close-ups of Clara Bow and her supporting case in "The Saturday Night Kid." The lens is designed to preserve the natural roundness of the facial features in proper perspective and relationship, an effect that has heretofore been attained by lighting alone.

Stay In California—As long as the California sun shines, motion picture producers will never locate elsewhere, in spite of the talk that moves will hereafter gradually move east because of the New York stage talent. Warner Brothers, who decided about a year ago to film their short subjects in the east, have decided that the year-round climatic conditions in California are more of an advantage than the New York stage talent. They will film 312 short subjects on their new season's program in Hollywood, where there is not only New York talent, but Hollywood talent, more picture facilities, and ideal climate. Bryan Foy is in charge of the short subjects production.

Cast Duncan Sisters—The Duncan sisters of "Topsy and Eva" fame will take part of two shop girls who make good in vaudeville in their first all-talking and singing picture, Cotton and Silk." Jed Prouty, who played the part of the booking agent in "The Broadway Melody" is the latest addition to the cast. He will be seen as the sweetheart of Rosetta Duncan. Lawrence Gray, who recently signed a new contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will play opposite the girls. Sam Wood is directing the picture.

Title Is "Untamed"—Joan Crawford's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, which was adapted from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Jungle," comes to the screen as "Untamed." Miss Crawford is surrounded by a strong cast made up of Robert Montgomery, Ernest Torence, Grace Cunard and Holmes Herbert.

Paired Again—Lois Wilson and H. B. Warner will make another bid for honors as a screen team in "The Furies." This is the third picture in which they have paired together in the romantic leads. They just completed "The Gamblers," for Warner Brothers," and are now working on "The Swan," for First National. "The Furies" is a talking version of Zoe Aiken's play. Alan Crosland will direct it in sound for First National.

Stone Has Role—Lewis Stone, who has made a hit in such talking films as "Madame X" and "The Trial of Mary Dugan," will take the role of Norma Shearer's father in her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, "Their Own Desire." Belle Bennett, Regis Toomey, June Nash and Mary Doran are other important members in Miss Shearer's latest audible production.

Returns To Screen—Fritzi Ridgeway, who has been absent from the screen for several years, is returning in a featured role in "Three Godfathers," Peter B. Kyne's story. The picture will be an all-talking production, which William Wyler will direct for Universal. Charles Bickford, Raymond Hatton and Fred Kohler carry the other important roles in the cast.

Shows Unusual Ability—"Buddy" Rogers displayed such unusual dramatic ability in "River of Romance" that Paramount have purchased "Here Comes the Bandwagon" as his next feature. The picture is adapted from Henry L. Gates' best seller and is a romantic adventure story with a beach carnival background. The story was for months the fifth best seller on the bookstands throughout the country. George Abbott, co-author of "Coquette," and "Broadway," will direct the film.

Small People Scarce—Small people are scarce in Hollywood, at least men who are not over three feet in height. Paramount's all color production, "The Vagabond King" which will also be made with sound and dialogue, calls for the services of six dwarfs who can sing, dance and tumble, but to date no such extras have registered at the casting bureau. The small people are to serve in the screen court of Louis XI of France. Dennis King will play the title role in "The Vagabond King," and Jeanette MacDonald, a recruit from the musical comedy stage, has the feminine lead.

New Contract—Clara Bow has signed a new contract which will make her a Paramount star until October, 1931. Miss Bow will do four talking films during the next year, the first of which, "The Saturday Night Kid," has already gone into production under the direction of Eddie Sutherland. The announcement of the new contract sets at rest the rumor that the popular "It" girl would leave Paramount.

Were Schoolmates—Nancy Carroll and Jack Oakie, both members of the Paramount Studio, went to school together in New York. They are now working together in "Sweetie," Paramount's musical comedy dealing with campus life.

Jolson Ready To Work—Al Jolson and his wife, Ruby Keeler, have arrived in Hollywood from New York by way of the Panama canal. Mr. Jolson is preparing to start work on "Mammy" his next feature for Warner Brothers. It is adapted from a story by Irving Berlin, and the music will also be written by Mr. Berlin. Mr. Jolson's latest release, "Say It With Songs," had its premier at the Warner Theater in New York on August 6.

Given A Raise—Clara Bow isn't the only girl of the flapper type who will remain on the screen. Alice White, her rival for screen honors, has also signed a new contract with her company, First National. Miss White is to have a nice raise in her salary check. She was also presented with a new automobile as a reward for her excellent work. Miss White's first picture under the new contract is "Playing Around." William Bakewell is the hero of the story.

About one hundred and fifty years ago, Nathan Hale, one of America's immortal heroes, left this small schoolhouse, where he was teaching, to fight for his country. He served under Washington as a spy, and was caught by the enemy while trying to learn their maneuvers. He was executed and thereby won immortality.

All Year Program For Chest Agencies Great Aid In The Upbuilding Of A Bigger And Better City

Poverty, despair, ill-health, pauperism, discouragement, fraud, maladjustment, unemployment, crime, cruelty to animals, juvenile delinquency, bad habits, undesirable companionship for boys and girls, non-support, racial prejudice, ignorance are only a few of the community evils against which sixteen welfare agencies in the Lincoln community chest are waging an unceasing battle.

The average Lincoln citizen has the community chest brought to his attention but once a year. This is in the fall when the annual campaign for funds to finance the city's welfare program is held. All year 'round, however, the sixteen agencies in chest are at work. Here are some of the things they did last year:

Red Cross nurses made 5,500 visits to 1,402 sick persons and cared for 12 per cent or 165 of the 1,324 infants born in Lincoln.

Five agencies secured employment to the extent of 3,018 jobs for Lincoln men and women.

Forty-three thousand free meals were given to needy persons, along with 180 tons of coal and 7,002 free lodgings.

132 At Tabitha Home.

Aged persons and orphans numbering 132 were cared for at Tabitha home.

Boys, girls, young men and young women numbering more than 12,000 were actively engaged in the character-training activities at such organizations as the Y. M. C. A., Boy Scouts, University Y. M. C. A., Camp Fire Girls, Y. W. C. A., Girl Reserves, and University Y. W. C. A.

Lincoln youngsters numbering 1,656 spend a part or all of the summer at the summer camps of the chest agencies and the Lincoln and Lancaster county chapter of the Nebraska Tuberculosis committee.

Help Prisoners.

Seventy-one families of prison inmates, involving 376 persons, were given relief by the Society for the Friendless, and jobs were found for forty-two released or paroled from penal institutions.

Besides giving relief to the needy, chest agencies have a still greater valuable service to the community. The Social Welfare society, which cared for 3,416 individuals in 854 different families last year, also studied the cause of the need and succeeded in placing many of the families back on their feet, self-respecting and self-supporting members of society. This is done by providing vocational guidance, medical attention and encouragement.

Working on the belief that it is better to "prepare and prevent than to repair and repent," the chest character-building agencies provided wholesome, supervised sports, health talks and educational classes for the youth of the community. Whether this program pays may be judged by police and juvenile court records which, combined, show a decrease of 22 per cent in juvenile delinquency during the past six years.

Neither is the city's health program neglected. Besides the physical education classes of the boys' and girls' organizations, much has been and is being done to make Lincoln a healthier community through the efforts of the Red Cross visiting nurses, the Tuberculosis association, and the Junior League baby clinics. The latter will be a new agency in the chest in 1930.

Agencies In Chest.

The welfare agencies which will participate in chest funds for 1930, to be raised October 1 to 9, follow:

Social Welfare society, which cares for three times as many needy families as any other privately supported family welfare organization in the city. H. T. Folsom is president.

Red Cross, which has brought expert medical and nursing service within reach of the poorest member of the community, and carries on many other phases of relief-giving and character-training work. Dr. B. F. Bailey is president.

Tabitha Home, a refuge for aged and infirm people and orphans. J. H. Humpe heads this organization.

University Y. M. C. A., known as the "Y" on the campus. Prof. C. H. Patterson is president.

Council of Social Agencies, which co-ordinates and studies the welfare work, has succeeded in improving welfare standards. Prof. E. S. Fullbrook is president.

Society for the Friendless, which does welfare work among inmates of penal institutions and the families of the inmates. Judge Frost is president.

Baby clinics of Junior League, which provides examination and medical attention without charge for infants of Lincoln families of limited means. Mrs. C. W. Roberts is president.

Y. M. C. A., which provides a character-training program and recreation for more than 3,000 boys and young men of the city. H. W. Noble is president.

Lincoln and Lancaster county chapter of the Nebraska Tuberculosis committee, a health agency of which Dr. H. J. Lehnhoff is president.

Aid To 1,000 Boys.

University Y. W. C. A. Mrs. E. L. Hinman is president.

Humane society of which Judge Frost is president.

Y. W. C. A., which carries on a health, educational and character-training program for more than 3,000 girls and young women. Mrs. [illegible]

The presidents and other officers of these agencies, as well as many business and professional men and women who serve as officers and committee members of the community chest, give of their time and energies to Lincoln's welfare program without pay other than the satisfaction which comes from serving one's community and fellowmen.
